

The Man On Watch

Probably the Duke of Connaught is coming back to Kingston to inspect the new heating in the town buildings. When H.R.H. was here a year ago, Ex-Mayor Rigney and the town clerk covered up the old wood box stoves in the hall with union jacks and screens, and prayed that the duke would not look too closely and discover the deception. Now that the buildings boast of a fine heating system, and since the portraits of Donald McIntyre and Frank Ireland, two bachelor ex-town officials, hang on the historic walls, the royal governor may wish to see the improvements and adornments.

The latest in Kingston moving picture shows is for excited people to applaud the actors in the movies. The other night the Lampman saw a fat girl spanking her hands vigorously when the female principal in a picture did something that was real human. Others caught the applauding fever, and looked sheepish when those around them gave them the laugh. However, if there is to be laughter in expressing one's emotion at funny pictures, why not hand-clapping to express other emotions, the Lampman asks?

The Lampman is told that the W.C.T.U. wants to know if policemen, postmen and soldiers are allowed to smoke on the street when on duty. A member of this organization stood on a downtown corner, and saw a postman, a policeman, a soldier and a boy pass along smoking. Naturally the good lady was shocked.

His worship the mayor evidently believes in doing to all things useless as was done to the fig tree of bible story. The unprofitable tree was cut down, and his worship's aching tooth was pulled out.

Carrying a walking stick is again becoming popular with Kingston ladies, as the Lampman notices a number of the fair sex carrying a cane, which would be a very handy weapon for girls who parade the streets at night, and are annoyed by "Johnnies." The Lampman would rather see a woman carrying a walking stick than leading a pup by a chain.

A property owner who was crying out for material to fill in his quarry-like lot, received more than he bargained for, the Lampman hears. It seems that the clean-up days brought to his land-holding all kinds of tin cans, old bed ticks and the like. This was like asking for bread and getting a stone.

Still another religious sect has been annexed by Kingston, namely, the Apostolic. If it can improve the moral and social conditions of this old town, it is very welcome, and if it can heal divers manners of diseases that the town's physicians have been unable to cure, the arms of the people should be open wide to the belief that can do miracles.

"No talkies and no smoke" is the rule of the paving contractors who are doing work in Kingston. The old clay pipe is debarred from the excavation work that is proceeding on Princess street, and the foremen in charge do not countenance little chats among the workmen every five minutes. The men toiling on the underground work are certainly earning their daily wage, the Lampman remarks.

The Lampman is told that in a

Kingston dance hall they have a performance that has the tango beaten a mile. It is called "the dip," and the couples have to squat in a very undignified manner to go through the evolutions, which shock the more sensitive of the young ladies, who refuse to perform them. Kingston's censor (if there be a guardian of the town's social morals) should put on his spectacles and witness "the dip."

Members of the Woman's club say it is not proper for ladies to carry purses on the Sabbath. The Lampman thinks that when the ladies go to church it is quite right to be accompanied by their purses, and church managers would excuse the noise occasioned by the opening of the purses at offertory time.

AIR TO STAGE FUTURE WAR

Republican Leader Mann Says That In His Conviction

Washington, May 23.—Wars of the future, in the opinion of Representative James R. Mann, of Illinois, the republican leader in the house of representatives, will be fought in the air. He expressed himself on the subject in the house and said that the time had practically arrived "when flying machines will have control of war." "If we have battle in the future," he said, "in the main they will be fought in the air."

Mr. Mann's statement was prompted by a statement of Congressman John J. Fitzgerald, of New York, foreman of the appropriation committee, that his committee had voted only $5,000 for an aeronautical laboratory in Washington. Mr. Mann wanted to know if it was intended to have experimentation with reference to river navigation conducted under army supervision. He said that the navy was just as much interested in the subject as the army.

Mr. Fitzgerald replied that his estimate of $50,000 had come from the Smithsonian Institute, and that it was for the use, so far as necessary for both the army and navy.

Canadian In Slavery

London, May 23.—Sir Edward Grey stated in the House of Commons that the attention of the foreign office had been called to the report that a British Canadian was being held in slavery in Paraguay. The British charge d'affaires had been requested to report the facts immediately by cable.

Wise and Otherwise

It takes a sensible woman to generate silence.

One way to dodge a breach of promise suit is to buy a wedding ring.

The Modest Reader.
In the old days a book was suggestive. Because it was found that would sell it.

But now I'm decidedly restive. Instead of suggesting, they tell it!

Fruit.
Mr. Peach, before leaving town on a business trip, instructed his wife's nurse to apprise him of the arrival of the stock. She obliged with the following telegram.

"Mrs. Peach has a pair."

Just That.

Brown-Smith married a virago. Didn't he?—No, I think it was Jones.

Seemingly So.
Father—Jane, are that young man's intentions serious?

Daughter—I think so, pa; he says our carriage shed could be easily transformed into a garage and the attic would make a dandy billiard room and bowling alley!

Pardonable.
The prisoner sat disconsolate in his cell. Suddenly the warden appeared.

"We have obtained proof," he said, "that another man committed the crime with which you are charged."

"Well, I guess that lets me out," said the prisoner.

Technical.
"I have just received word," said the clerk to the telephone company president, "that a man out west has been caught holding $200,000 embezzled from us. What reply shall I send?"

"Tell them to hang up the receiver," said the president.

The Source.
"I heard the latest gossip?"

"I guess so. I've just been talking to the village postmaster."

Obedient Willie.
Willie was struggling through the story in his reading lesson.

"No," said the captain, "it was not a sloop. It was a larger vessel. By the rig I judged her to be a—a—a—"

The word was new to him.

"Barque," supplied the teacher.

Still Willie hesitated.

"Barque," repeated the teacher, this time sharply.

Willie looked as though he had not heard aright. Then, with an apprehensive glance around the class, he shouted:

"Bow-wow!"—Detroit Free Press.

Convincing to Ladies— This Oven Test!

So that you may use less flour, we do what a home cook would do if she were in our place.

From every shipment of wheat delivered at our mills we take a ten pound sample. We grind this into flour. Bread is baked from the flour.

We find that some samples make more bread and better bread than others. So we keep the shipment from which the more and better bread comes. The others we sell.

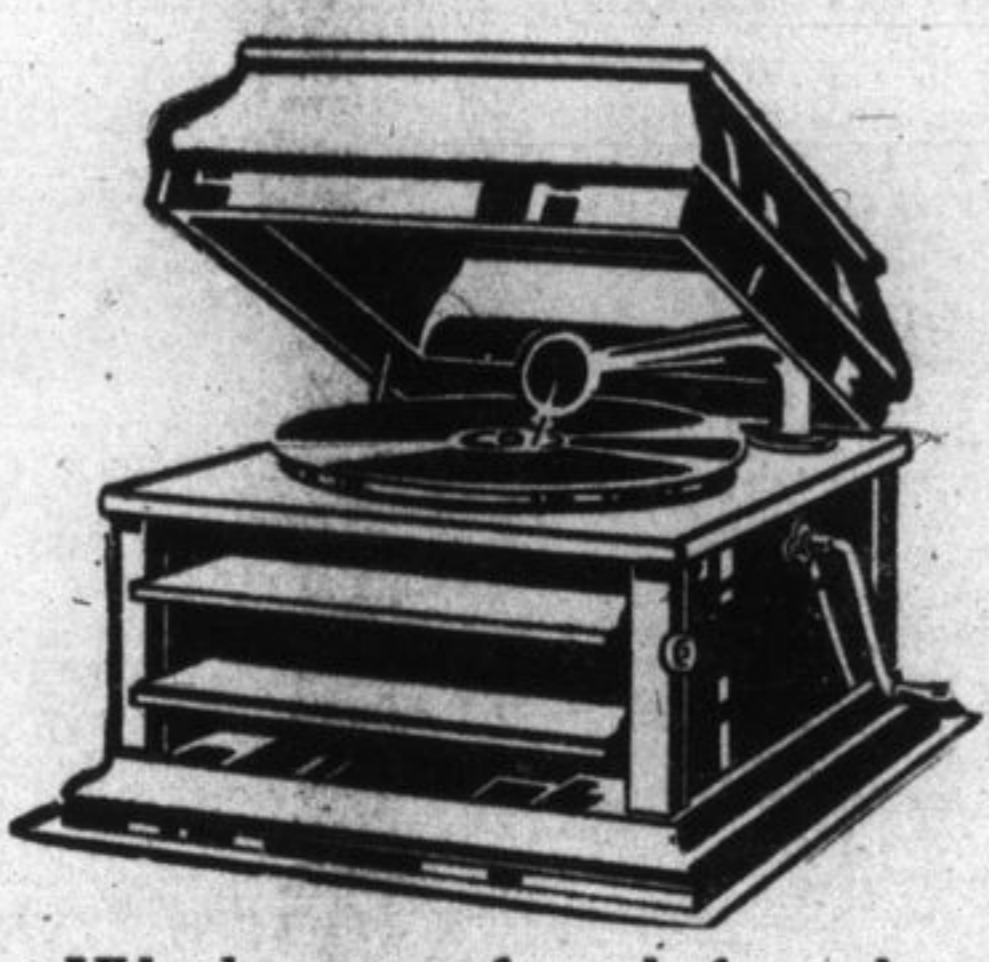

You save money by using flour that bears this name. And you get better bread.
