ARMED WITH REVOLVER BLEW UP A SAW MILL

YOUNG MAN CHASED TRAMP FROM HIS HOME

Tramp on Being Refused Something to Eat by David Bauder, on Bath Road Drew Knife - Was Nabbed by Police on His Arrival in City.

Armed with a big club, a tramp, giving the name of John Simpson, went to the home of David Bauder, on the Bath road, about 11.30 o'clock on Sunday morning, and demanded that he be given something to eat. As this district has been infested with tramps of late, asking for something to eat, Simpson was given his walking ticket. He took offence at this, and it is claimed he then drew a knife and threatened the life of Bauder. The latter's brother came on the scene with a loaded revolver, and succeeded in frightening Simpson off the premises. Later on Simpson was nabbed by the city police when he walked into the city. On a charge of vagrancy he was sent to jail for a month. There was a second charge, that of threatening bodily harm, but as it occurred in the county Mr. Bauder was told to make his charge before a county magistrate.

It is stated that people on the Bath road have been troubled a great deal of late with tramps calling for something to eat, and that it has become so bad that women are afraid to be left alone in the house. It is claimed that when Simpson was refused a lunch, he was very abusive, and it was at this stage that the men in the house decided that he must be put in his place. Simpson told the magistrate he was guilty of begging, but stated that he did not know anything about the other charge.

The Bauder boys say that Simpson walked into the house unawares to all inmates and hammered his club on the dining room door. Ladies who were in the house were badly frightened. After the man was chased off the premises, the Bauder boys kept track of him until he reached the city, and then they gave the police the tip and had him arrested.

A VERY MYSTERIOUS OCCURRENCE AT PERTH ROAD

The Foxton Mill Evidently Dynamited - Only Reason is That Some Persons Held Spite Against Owner.

At three o'clock Monday morning, the residents of Perth Road were suddenly awakened from their comfortable sleep by a terrific noise, which could be heard for several miles. At the time they could not realize what had happened unless it was a heavy peal of thunder, they having had a severe electrical storm earlier in the night. However, an investigation was made by several of the residents, when it was shortly discovered that Frederick Foxton's saw mill was blown up.

No cause for the act could be given unless it was spite against Mr. Foxton for having secured a grant of $300 for locating at Perth Road. He formerly ran a saw mill at Sydenhau. There could have been no other grievance than this because the mill was run by steam, thereby allowing no water to be held back to flood lands.

Mr. Foxton had sent the boiler of the mill to Toronto to be repaired, as it had blown out when in the midst of a heavy run of sawing logs. There are at present some few hundred logs awaiting to be saved, which will have to be held over for an indefinite period until a new mill can be built. It is suspected that dynamite was used to blow up the mill, as it was completely demolished.

Armed With Revolver.
Simpson appeared before Justice of the Peace George Hunter on Monday afternoon, and was committed to stand trial before Judge H. A. LeVell.

Little One Blown Into Lynn White Picking Violets On the Bank.

Simcoe, Ont., June 1.—While picking violets on the banks of the river Lynn late Sunday afternoon, in company with a number of other children, Anna Winters, eight years old, was blown into the stream, and was going down for the third time, when Isabelle Diver, a girl of sixteen, plunged into the river and carried the drowning youngster to safety. The little girl fainted away after being brought to the bank, but was soon revived, and is able to be running around this evening.

ADHESIVE POSTAGE STAMP

Had Its Origin in England and Was Used in America in 1847.

The adhesive postage stamp had its origin in England seventy-four years ago as a direct outcome of the postal reforms introduced by Sir Rowland Hill, whose master mind created not only the inestimable boon to penny postage, but the means by which it was carried into effect—the adhesive postage stamps.

At the time of the passing of the Uniform Penny Postage Act in 1839 all postal charges were paid in cash (usually on delivery), involving an enormous amount of bookkeeping on the part of the post office, which would have been increased a hundredfold when the reduced rates of postage came into force, but for the suggestion of the great postal reformer, for "a bit of paper, just large enough to bear the stamp, and coated at the back with a glutinous wash," being subsequently embodied in the famous one penny black postage label and its consort, the two-penny blue, which made their debut in May 1840, and were the progenitors of all adhesive postage stamps.

"For three short years Great Britain enjoyed a monopoly of this novel and handy method of collecting postages, until in July, 1843, the enlightened empire of Brazil followed suit with a series of unproportionally adhesive labels of native manufacture adorned with large numerals of value in place of a design.

In 1847 the United States entered the field with two beautifully engraved portraits of Franklin and Washington, while the head of Ceres, the Goddess of Agriculture, found place on the first stamps of the French republic, engraved by the elder Barre, which made their debut on Jan. 1st, 1849.

Ere Stars Were Set.
By Margaret O. B. Wilkinson.
Before the sky grew warm, my dear,
And ere the stars were set,
Before the blossoming of dawn,
When dawn and daylight met,
My soul went out to search for thee
With vagrant dim desire,
My soul went out to search for song,
And love's great word of fire!

Through soft-blown forests' breaking buds
My soul, awaking, sped,
Above the curly fringed ferns,
Across their mossy bed,
My soul went out to search for thee,
And I was very young—
My lips were all untaught of song,
For speech I had no tongue!

Through wildwood and through wilderness
Ere yet the sun was seen,
To lands of fountains wonderful,
In valleys glad and green,
My soul went out to search for thee
Till sweet above the ground
Dawn blossomed like an apple tree—
I sought—and I had found!

In lands of fountains wonderful
Each surely cling to each,
There was no need of melody,
There was no need of speech!
Theodore Shipman died on Saturday morning at his residence, Elizabethtown, after a prolonged illness. He was forty years of age. A widow survives.
