A. M. Rankin Receives The Frontenac Nomination

DR. WILLIAM SPANKIE

WILL OPPOSE HIM AS INDEPENDENT CANDIDATE.

The Doctor Claimed he Was Given a Crooked Deal at the Convention Saturday—Tribune Over Kingston Township Delegates.

Anthony Rankin was re-elected as candidate for the Ontario legislature by the liberal-conservative association of Frontenac county.

Dr. William Spankie will run as an independent candidate for the county.

There is a war of the bitter type within the ranks of the conservatives of the county of Frontenac.

It was declared at the convention held in the court house on Saturday afternoon, for the purpose of selecting a candidate for the Ontario legislature. The meeting was, without doubt, the liveliest ever held in the history of the county conservative association.

Anthony Rankin, the present member, was selected as the standard-bearer of the party, but as a result of the row which occurred, Dr. William Spankie, of Wolfe Island, will also be a candidate, and he will run on the independent ticket.

ANTHONY RANKIN

Dr. Spankie was nominated as a candidate, but withdrew his name at the last minute as a protest against the decision of the convention when a dispute arose over delegates selected to vote on a candidate from Kingston township.

Dr. Spankie threw a bomb into the midst of the tory camp when he charged that the last nomination had been stolen from him, and that he was not receiving fair play.

"I have stood for this rogues here long enough," said Dr. Spankie, "and I will not stand for it a minute longer. I charge that the last nomination was stolen from me. I want fair play or no fight. I say again, that the last nomination was stolen from me, and I have the documents in my pocket to prove my case."

The declaration of Dr. Spankie was allowed to go unchallenged.

The convention, which came to such a dramatic end, and which was featured with fireworks throughout, was the largest in point of attendance ever held by the tories of the county.

The court room was filled to the doors, while every inch of standing room was also utilized. The old stalwarts of the party stated that they could not recall a convention at which the turnout was so large.

All went as merrily as a marriage hell until the time came for the distribution of ballots for the vote.
Then there was trouble and lots of it; it came in bunches, fast and furious. For three hours pandemonium reigned supreme. It was a "blow up" of the warmest kind.

Dr. Spankie's supporters, and they represented a goodly number of the clan, came away from the meeting disgusted, and it is plain to be seen that the split in the ranks will have a very interesting effect in the fight to be waged by the ballots on June 29th, Wolfe Island, to a man, lined up for Dr. Spankie.

The Meeting Opened.

John A. Kennedy, the president of the association, presided, and when he called for nominations Christopher Langworth of Sunbury, arose and nominated Anthony Rankin, the present member, John Stewart, seconded the nomination.

The mover and seconder of Mr.
Rankin's nomination, spoke briefly, both laying tribute to the work of Mr. Rankin during office.

Afterwards the president called for further nominations. There was a lull in the proceedings for a few minutes, and it looked as if the only name to be placed before the convention would be that of Mr.
Rankin. However, James McGlynn of Wolfe Island, a past president of the association, was soon on his feet, and proposed the name of Dr.
William Spankie, of Wolfe Island, as candidate. The nomination was seconded by William Guthrie, of Perth Road.

Mr. Langworth said that Mr.

Rankin had shown himself to be an able representative of the party, and that he should be returned to the legislature.

Mr. Stewart spoke of Mr. Rankin's good work on the Good Roads Commission. His worth had been considered when he was placed in charge of such important work. The speaker was well acquainted with Mr.
Rankin, and had watched him through his entire career, and would say that he was a man all the way through. He said that he had served the best interests of the people, and was well worthy of being returned.

Mr. Guthrie spoke on behalf of Dr. Spankie, stating that he was well acquainted with the country's needs, especially in regard to the school law, which he declared was in great need of changing. There was no man better posted on the school needs than Dr. Spankie.

There is no man who has done more for the poor people than Dr.
Spankie. He has worked with the rest. Dr. Spankie helped out the system, and did the work right. He is acquainted with the needs of every class."

Mr. McGlynn appealed for support for Dr. Spankie. He had served the country for thirty years in school work, and had also served in school for the township of Wolfe Island, and warden of the county of Frontenac.

The Trouble Starts.

After the speeches of the movers and seconders of the candidates, the work of distributing the ballots for the vote was commenced. The delegates from the different townships lined up before the secretary in turn, and that official handed out the precious pieces of pink paper, ordered for the occasion, Kingston township was the "hottest," however, as when the rank and file from this district came to the front they were given a rude jolt. The president announced that there was a "little difficulty" to be settled regarding the delegates from this part of the county, and they were asked to stand aside.

The explanation came later, in the shape of a protest from certain members of Kingston township against the action of Patrick Fowler, chairman of the township. It was charged that he had himself appointed delegates to the convention, in the face of a petition signed by twenty-five of the voters, asking that a meeting be called for the appointment of delegates.

It was reported that when the chairman refused this request, a meeting was called, advertised in the press, and held a week ago, at which delegates were chosen. The chairman's delegates, so it was alleged, had been appointed three weeks ago.

Then followed explanations on both sides. Mr. Fowler came forward and defended his course of procedure at the same time declaring that he had done nothing he should not have done.
The opposition declared that he should be censured, that he had over-stepped his powers, and the question was one which had to be settled at the meeting.

This stirred up a hornet's nest, and for a time all chances for peace being restored were lost. Pandemonium reigned. Members on both sides of the argument went into the fray tooth and nail. The meeting was warmer and warmer all the time. The president tried his best to keep order, but his efforts were fruitless.

County Constable Purdy, in uniform, stood at the side of the president as a budy guard, as it were. Even his stentorian voice failed to bring the members to order. It was as if Bedlam had been let loose. The meeting ran wild for a time. Little or no headway was made.

Mr. Freeman, a veteran of the party, thought he had a solution of the trouble when he suggested that the convention adjourn for a week, and that in the meantime each township call a meeting of the members, select their delegates, and that another convention be called.

This suggestion did not make a "hit" by any means, although there were some who were willing to abide by such a decision.

Others cried, "No, we want this thing settled here and now."

Still More Trouble.

"It will be hard to get such a good crowd at another meeting," cried another.

The president was appealed to for a decision, but he did not appear to desire to shoulder the responsibility.
Much time was being wasted and many who had to hurry home to do the chores on the farm appealed for an early settlement. But the proposition was not one which could be settled on-hand.

Matthew Truesdale, another veteran, had the courage to face the storm with a suggestion. It was that a committee composed of "outside men," be appointed to take up the dispute, and to decide between the delegates appointed by the chairman and those selected at the meeting.

Some favored this suggestion, but there were others strongly opposed, and the meeting continued to drift.
First one and then another would speak, and at times half a dozen or more had the floor at the one time.

And through it all the genial president smiled, and did his very best to make the members be good. But it was no easy task. It had reached the stage when war paint had been donned in earnest. There was two sides, each with an axe to grind, and grind they did. It was awful the way these two parties within a party went at it. It was certainly no love feast.

"Peace Committee" Formed.

Some persons again suggested that a "peace committee" be appointed and the meeting finally decided on a vote being taken to allow a committee of three to tackle the weighty question.

Mr. R. Givens, F. J. Hoag and R. N. P. Macdonald, three of the "leading lights" in the Kingston conservative association, were chosen to do the deed, and after being provided with a copy of the constitution of the association and other documentary evidence, they hid themselves off to a side room, there to deliberate. While they were away the storm continued. All the old argu-

CRIME'S CLEARING HOUSE

New Detection System a Success in England

Two features are emphasized in the latest blue book which contains the annual report of the inspectors of constabulary. One is that it has become more and more difficult to supply recruits to the police force of the United Kingdom and the other is the success of the clearing-house for crime that has been established in Yorkshire. But there are also several other interesting, if not important topics.

The yearly cost of a policeman ranges from $400 in Cornwall to $625 in Southport, and the average is somewhere about $500. It costs between 2 cents and sixteen cents per annum to provide police protection for each $5 of real estate. Including additional constables, the police army of England and Wales numbers 57,731 officers and men, and there are many thousands of reserves, which brings the force up to the standard of about one policeman to every 600 persons.

The question of recruiting this force, the inspectors say, is becoming a very serious one. "Notwithstanding a general increase in the rates of pay and other advantages," men of the right sort in the north of England are not coming forward to engage; they prefer, with wages at their present level, to remain in industry. But the bulk of the shortage is due to the fact that the class of men who would make good police officers are emigrating in the southeastern districts, the report says, "emigration has stripped bare some of the best recruiting grounds," and "chief constables complain that they cannot find an adequate supply of men suitable in physique and education, as well as in antecedents and character."

It cannot be said that the reports show any betterment in the moral character of its community. The North, considering the character of its population, would appear to be in better case than the south, though petty larcenies, especially those committed by juveniles, appear to be rather on the decrease.

Drunkennes is decreasing. The Southern inspecting officer writes: "Though crime against the person is decreasing, crime against property, the crime of civilization, is increasing, and this is especially the case with crimes of fraud, against which the preventive vigilance of the police offers little or no protection."

Very much better measures are now being taken to facilitate co-operation between the different police forces for the investigation of crime.
The west riding of Yorkshire has led the way with a new system, based on a simply understood classification of crime. A "clearing house" has been established at Wakefield which receives reports of crime from a large surrounding district, sorts them, fits them, classifies them, puts their leading features in relief, and distributes its work to all police stations in the neighborhood. Like manner, a record is kept of criminals, their appearance, habits and idiosyncrasies, and a great deal of important information is provided which makes it possible to draw up a list of men who are likely to have committed a certain crime. One is told that the working of this system has had wonderfully satisfactory results and that its application is being rapidly extended.

England

Dr. J. W. Edwards then made a little speech, and his remarks brought forth the only ripple of laughter which characterized the entire proceedings.

"Gentlemen," he said "I wish to remind you of the fact that to-day is the twenty-third anniversary of the death of Sir John A. Macdonald, the greatest statesman, Canada ever produced, and the convention held here to-day has shown that the conservatives of Frontenac are possessed of a great deal of vitality." (Loud Laughter.)

Continuing Dr. Edwards stated that it was not his desire to interfere with the procedure of selecting the delegates. The association had gone along for years in an irregular way of procedure. The different townships had a right to protest the same as Kingston township. He felt that an adjournment could be made for a couple of weeks and that delegates be appointed at a general meeting of Kingston township.

At this stage the "peace conference" returned, and the chairman, W. R. Givens, announced that the committee had taken up the matter and was prepared to present the case as it was desired. His advice was that it would be for the best in interests of the party to secure a candidate at the earliest possible date. The decision of the committee had been based entirely according to the constitution.

Mr. Rankin said he was prepared to abide by the decision of the report of this special committee, and the convention then decided to accept the report, on motion of Dr. Geddes and H. Keeler.

The written report was therefore read by Mr. Givens, and in brief, it stated that the chairman of Kingston township had been failing in his duties. He had refused to call a meeting for the selection of delegates when requested to do so. In view of this the voters had taken the only step left open, that of calling a meeting through the press and had selected delegates.
The committee contended that these delegates named at this meeting must be recognized by the convention.

As the convention had decided to accept the report of the committee the vote on the candidate was then called for.

Mr. Fowler, the chairman in the dimlight then addressed the meeting, stating that he was the man who had been turned down.

"I have been a conservative all my life," he said, "and I am turned out in this way without a square hearing and without hearing the evidence." He declared he had been treated unfairly.

Dr. Spankie wanted to know what the convention had to say about the townships which had selected delegates in just the same way as the chairman of Kingston township.
Why had not the others complied with the regulations? He declared that it was unfair to have one law for one township and another law for others.

The only reply Dr. Spankie received to his query was that the other townships had not put in a protest.

An attempt was made to cut Dr.
Spankie short in his speech, but the doctor nobly stood his ground until he declared he only had a little to say and that no person would prevent him from saying it.

"I want to say that I withdraw my name from this convention," he said in conclusion. "I have stood in charge here long enough, and I will not stand for it a minute longer. I charge that the last nomination was stolen from me, and I have proof of this in my pocket.
I want fair play or no fight."

The president said that the vote must go on but as Dr. Spankie announced that he had retired from the field, he then declared Mr.
Rankin as the candidate. He called for the "yeas" and "nays" and although Mr. Rankin had the large number were among the "nays."

Mr. Rankin spoke thanking his supporters for reporting him as candidate, and the convention, which will go down in county history as the liveliest ever, was brought to a close.

After the meeting was over a White representative who was present at the meeting approached Dr.
Spankie, and the latter said:
"You can announce that I will be in this contest as an independent candidate."

Possessed of Vitality.

Dr. J. W. Edwards then made a

Ottawa, June 8.—Napoleon Chamof opposing the famous bilingual regupowder, and proceeded to fill their an old stump with it. He struck a the powder in his pocket exploded. He was instantly killed.

"Jim" Thompson went to his rescue, with the result that the other boy strength. This letter gives some idea of what perfect control Dr.

Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills exert over the most common ills of life.

Mrs. H. K. Hewer, farmer's wife, Eastburg, Alta., writes:—"For about ten years I suffered from constipation, indigestion, headache and languid feelings. Treatment from two or three doctors afforded only temporary relief, so I turned to Dr.
Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and with most satisfactory results. Headaches have disappeared, regular habits established and general health very much better. Both my husband and I can speak highly of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, as we have both been greatly benefited by them." One pill a dose, 25c a box, 5 for $1.00, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.
