COL. HEMMING PRAISED CLOSING EXERCISES

THE 14TH REGIMENT FOR ITS AT BATESCOURT, A POPULAR GOOD SHOWING.

Inspection at Armouries Friday Evening—The Regiment Will Leave for Petawawa on Sunday Morning.

Addressing the 14th regiment, after his inspection of the 7th corps on Friday night, Colonel T. D. R. Hemming, officer commanding the third division, stated that he was exceedingly pleased with the advancement it had made during the last three or four years, and he signified his satisfaction of his inspection for 1914 by declaring that the 14th was second to no regiment he has inspected this year.

Col. Hemming was assisted in the inspection of the companies by Col. G. H. Ogilvie, A. A. C. The bearer section was inspected, somewhat minutely, by Lieut.-Col. H. R. Duff, A.D.M.S. and the inspections were followed by the muster by Major Lambert, paymaster of the division.

On account of the rain in the afternoon, the cricket field being wet, the regiment was confined to the armouries for the inspection, with the result that no battalion work was done and the companies were somewhat handicapped. Particular attention was given by Col. Hemming and Ogilvie to the N. C. O.'s, and the former commented upon the state of efficiency of which they had given evidence. He laid a great deal of stress upon the importance of good N. C. O.'s in the general efficiency of a unit.

Lieut. George Bowden, acting quartermaster of the 14th, and the advance party composed of thirty-five men left on Saturday morning at 11.25 o'clock via Canadian Pacific railroad for Petawawa to prepare for the arrival of the regiment on Sunday evening. The regiment will parade at the armouries Sunday morning at 9.30 and proceed to the Grand Trunk station where it will entrain at 10.30 o'clock. At the outer station the riflemen will be joined by the 15th regiment of Belleville. The two corps will proceed to Brockville where they will pick up the 41st regiment of that town. At Brockville the three regiments will entrain for Petawawa over the Canadian Pacific railroad.

MOST OF THE YOUNG MEN

Are Expected to Mark Their Ballots For Harrison.

Kingston, June 20.—(To the Editor): Some hot politicians say, "Give us prohibition, stop the manufacture, and we will support Rowell. There will be more whiskey used if you abolish the bars," etc.

Prohibition and stop the manufacture is the remedy, but it is not within our reach. We have a few more rungs to lay hold on ere we reach the top.

Abolish the bar and you save the young man, and the old toper will soon get ashamed of carrying a flask around. There is a law prohibiting anyone carrying firearms.

These arguments put forth by some men supposed to have brains stagger me. Of course I know their object. Some argument has to be used when so much is at stake, but the rank and file will not swallow their mixture.

Civilization is on a mighty wave in the right direction, and Mr. Rowell made that movement, and a more conscientious man is hard to find. A gentleman said: "I went into his meeting a red-hot toper, but after hearing Rowell, I feel convinced that he is fervent in his appeal, and I will cast my first reform vote, which I hope will help save somebody's boy."

The Whitney method is too slow for this enlightened generation. I firmly believe that ninety per cent. of the newly registered will support Harrison.—KINGSTON BUI.

It was an eventful day for Rose the day her little sister was born. She was delighted and took no pains to conceal her great joy. At the same time she felt a great increase of age and dignity, and announced to her mother, at the first opportunity that she no longer wished to be called "Rose," but her own name—Francis. "We called you Rose, dear, when you were a baby," said her mother, with an indulgent smile, "because you were so fair and sweet that you reminded us of a rose. Can you not think of some flower that your little sister resembles?" Rose curled herself up at the foot of her mother's bed and meditated deeply for a few moments, then she went over and took a peep at baby sleeping peacefully in her crib. "I think we might call her currant," said the little tot.—National Monthly. Living for self alone is not even half living.
