HOLDS ROYAL COURT

AT HOLYROOD AS LORD HIGH COMMISSIONER.

To the Assembly of the State Church of Scotland—Lord Glenconner, Elder Brother of Mrs. Asquith.

Lord Glenconner, eldest brother of Mrs. Asquith, has once more been holding court at the royal palace of Holyrood, at Edinburgh, as lord high commissioner to the assembly of the state church of Scotland. His term of office lasts two weeks, and during that brief period he enjoys all sorts of more or less sovereign prerogatives, and represents the monarch as his viceroy in the northern kingdom.

No matter what his rank is the peerage, he is addressed for the nonce as "Your Grace," as though he were a duke, instead of as "Your Excellency," with which the Irish viceroy has to be content, and is also apostrophized as "Sir," just as in the same manner as the king and the princes of the blood.

Lady Glenconner shares her husband's honors, and has not only been for the last two weeks "Your Grace," but has also been attended by ladies in waiting and maids of honor, while at the receptions which have taken place at the palace and at the garden parties which she has been giving, as wife of the lord high commissioner, the women attending them have rendered to her much the same obedience as to royalty.

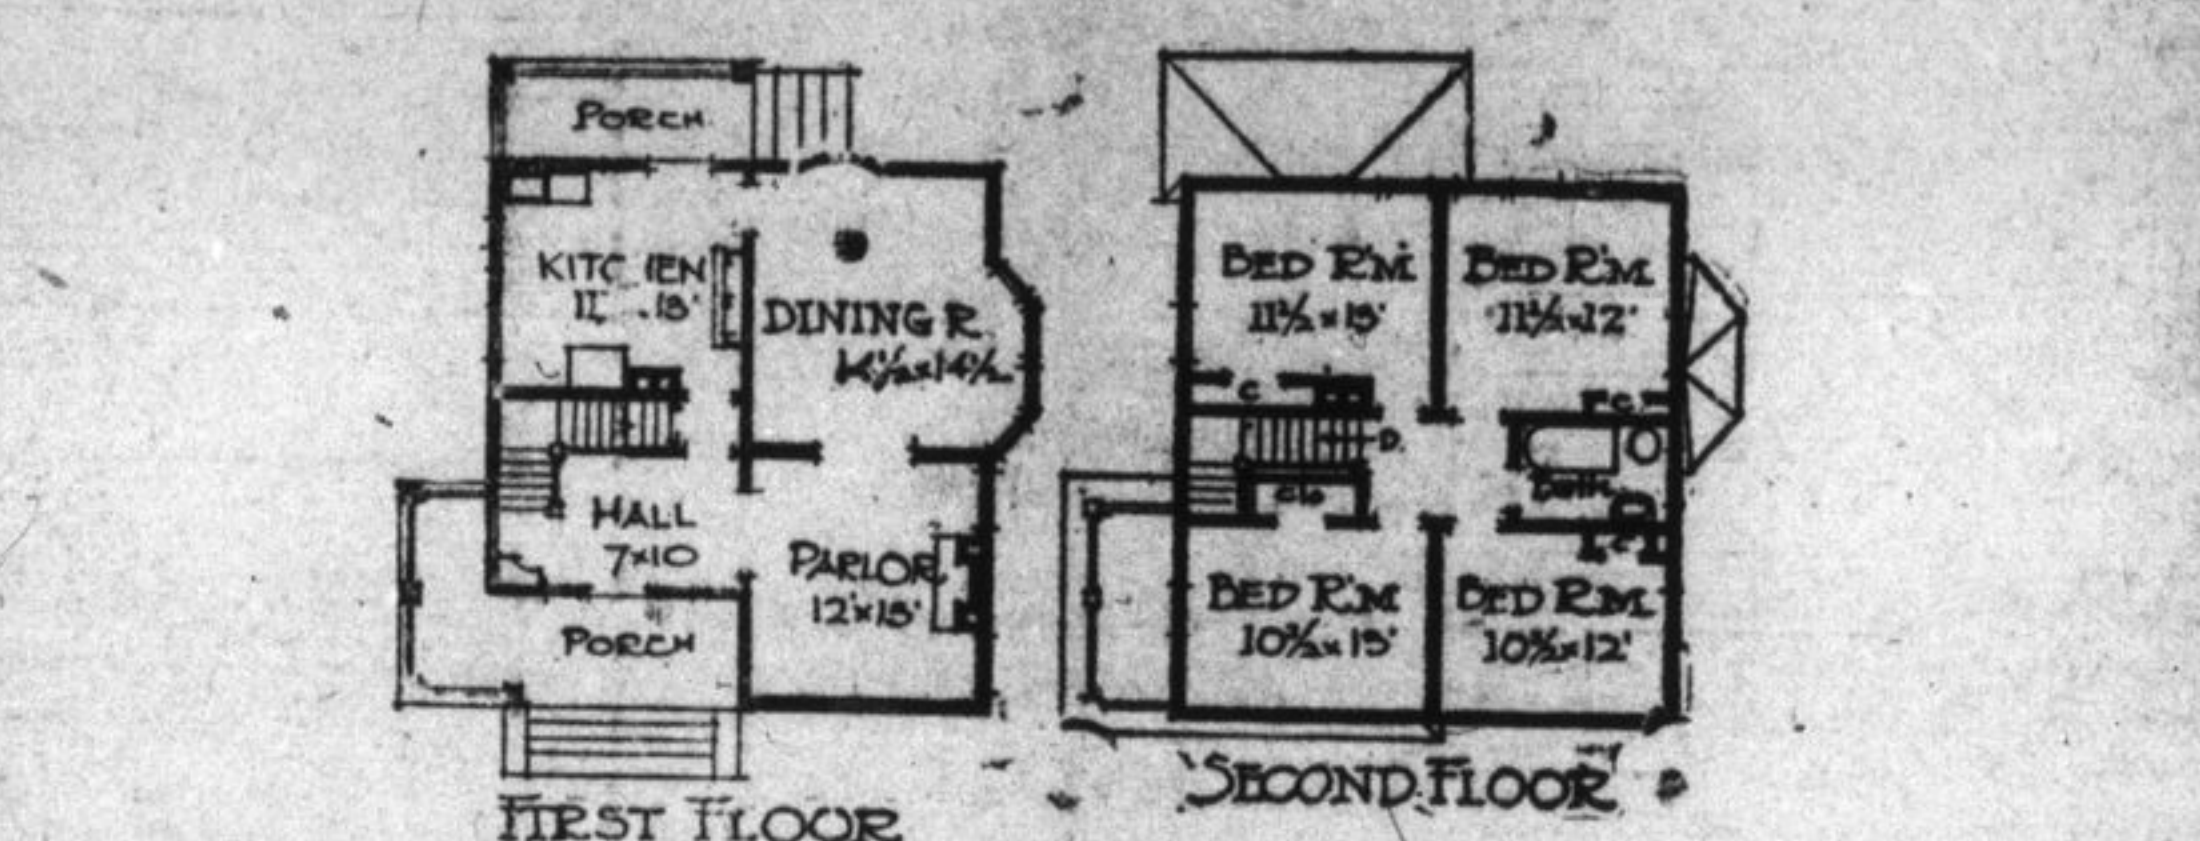

The office of lord high commissioner at Edinburgh was first instituted in the spring of 1600, when James VI. of Scotland, who afterwards ascended the throne of England as James I., was asked by the general assembly of the Scottish church to nominate a representative, out of a list of six submitted to him by the national kirk to preside over the deliberations.

It was at first suggested that the monarch's deputy should be an ecclesiastic, and should bear the title of bishop. But the latter was a designation which sounded even more disagreeable to Presbyterian ears than it does today.

Moreover, it was argued that since the king's high commissioner was to act as arbitrator in the name of the sovereign, in the event of differences between the various factions of the general assembly, it would be preferable that he should not be a divine, but a layman. Accordingly a peer was chosen by King James, and received the title of lord high commissioner which has been used for this particular office ever since.

The assembly, which always takes place in May, has the effect of attracting to the attention of the North, representatives, lay and ecclesiastical, of the church, from all parts of Scotland. There are ministers and elders, university dons and Presbyterians, their wives and their sons and their daughters, and while the religious element abounds, and in much evidence throughout the fortnight of the assembly sessions, yet it cannot be said to predominate.

A Comfortable, Attractive Home

This is a very pleasing and conveniently designed house in the gambrel roof style, compact, graceful and economical.

The porch opens into a hall containing a pretty staircase and at the right a parlor. The dining room has a bay end and is a large bright room. Kitchen is well arranged and located.

On the second floor are four bedrooms and a central bathroom. Good closets throughout.

Hot air heating, open plumbing. Walls of stucco with shingle roof.

Following is itemized cost of construction.

Excavation	$ 75
Millwork	575
Stonework	150
Stairs	100

Y-You would have to go far, anyway, to find a daintier spot wherein to pitch your tent than this home-like, garden-like and altogether attractive good little city.

RULES FOR BOYS.

Code of the Famous Japanese Soldier Reprinted.

The late general Count Nogi, who committed suicide at the moment when the gun was fired which announced the start of the funeral procession of the late Japanese Emperor, issued a note of disciplinary instructions for the pupils of the grammar grade of the Peers' school, which has just been reprinted. The list of the instructions is as follows:

First—Keep your mouth closed. He who has always his mouth open shows that his mind is blank.

Second—Mind what you are looking at. One whose eye is always wandering tells that his mind is also wandering.

Third—When paying your respects look at the person whom you are saluting.

Fourth—Do not forget your coat-of-arms, family standing, and ancestors. Due respect to your ancestors is important.

Fifth—A boy should act like a boy. Avoid becoming effeminate.

Sixth—Never indulge in luxury. There is nothing that makes a fool of a man like luxury.

Seventh—Ride in a ricksha as little as possible. Even if a ricksha is sent for you, try to walk home.

Eighth—How many of you wash your faces with cold water in the winter? You should not use warm water.

Ninth—When it is cold, think it is hot; and when it is hot, think it is cold.

Tenth—It is a shame to wear torn clothes without mending them. But to wear the torn part patched is nothing to be ashamed of.

Eleventh—Know what is shame; he who does not know what is shame is inferior to dumb animals.

Twelfth—While in good health train yourself so as to endure physical labor. When you are ill, however, obey your physician's instructions.

Thirteenth—Make your clothes and shoes bigger. Never mind the style or shape.

Fourteenth—Become a man useful to your country. Whoever cannot be so is better dead.

If the boy trots too fast, stop and think whether you have set the pace for him or not.

When you and I wish for to-morrow we forget that we are wishing for one day less of life.

It is a good plan to watch yourself just a little bit closer than you do your neighbor.

The cloak of religion is always shutting from the shoulders of he who wears it.
