The Unhitched Horse

Here is a quotation from an advertising magazine that is well worth remembering: The average man looks on advertising as a mystertons something quite apart from ordinary business, says an observant exchange. You bet he does, and that's right where he makes his first big mistake. Advertising is not something apart from the business, save as the horse is separate from the cartwhen unhitched the cart is at a standstill." When they come to choosing the right horse merchants and manufacturers find that newspaper advertising is the most active steed in the stable and costs less for upkeep.

LIVE IN GLASS HOUSES.

Berlin, June 23 .- Paul Scheerbart well-known writer, prophesies that architecture of the future will be of glass, and that the world will be inhabited by a happy race living under the good influence of light.

"The bouses will be of glass," says, "with all-wood eliminated. The furniture will be of wrought iron and the framework of the buildings will be of iron and rustproof, while the walls will be of double glass to ensure warmth, and of many colors order to baffie inquisitive persons. "The buildings will be heated by electricity, and the walls decorated in Tiffany majolica effects. The porch of every home will have three sides of glass, and there will be glass garden houses, where one may live in the sunshine by day and the star light by night."
