ON THE DUTY OF THE PEOPLE TO SUPPORT ROWELL.

The Churches on Trial.—While Whitney remains in power, Britannia does not rule in Ontario.

Kingston, June 25.—(To the Editor)—The issues involved in the election contest are many, chiefly, however, is Shall Britain's rule prevail, or that of an extravagant, selfish, tyrannical, and self-conservative, who by dismissing the magistrates upon assuming the power, denied the KING's majesty, opposition to contrary notwithstanding. Alas the change! On the 14th of October, 1866, as the Allan liner Belgen was steaming into Quebec, the writer, a youth, stood upon the deck enraptured by the royal strains of a company of truly loyal Canadians who had volunteered to return home from Malta to repel the invader from the south. 'Rule Britannia,' and other patriotic airs had a deep meaning in those days; but alas the change! For an Orange lodge party to permit the KING to be insulted by aiding and abetting the dismissal of county justices, is the most intolerable outrage of modern political warfare with the last bulwark of British liberty gone, the waves of despotism and anarchy may now engulf us all! Let all honest and loyal men—of whatever creed or religion—vote for Rowell, or never again sing 'Rule Britannia,' for those who vote to return the Whitney party, do not intend that Britain shall rule, and the good book says that a hot place has been reserved for the liar. England expects every man this day to do his duty, and the undersigned will lead, even in the face of the satanic forces so well studied in election contests. Yours with success, M. H. COMPTON, A Dismissed J. P.

The Churches on Trial.—(To the Editor): I see in your paper that mothers and even fathers are pleading with the church people to vote the bar out and save their boys. They have a chance to show their colors now. They will be tried in the balance on the 29th. I wonder how many will be found wanting. If Mr. Harrison is not elected we will know that it is only 'members' we have in our churches, not 'Christians.' We will know that they are running with the hounds and holding with the hare. They go to prayer meeting and pray for the curse of intemperance to be taken away from the boys and young men and then go to the polls and vote to keep it in their way. Every member of every church should vote against the bar.—BRUCE KIELL.

Answers to Excuse.—Brighton, June 25.—(To the Editor): Many conservatives say: 'If I had any confidence in Rowell I would support his party, but how am I to know whether he is in earnest in his utterances about closing the bar?' They have to hide behind some excuse, and the above excuse is heard on every side. The real point in this issue is: Shall I put my ballot in the box for temperance or shall my ballot be for whiskey?

Whether Mr. Rowell will, in power, fulfill his promise to close the bars in this province, can not excuse me from doing what my conscience dictates. Deeprooted in the minds of the people is the firm conviction that Mr. Rowell will do what he has promised to do and it is this conviction that is causing the whiskey party to keep out known advocates of temperance from the contest. The public are aware of the tactics of the liquor interests and the quiet vote next Monday will show that no interests or party can fool all the people all the time. Now is the time for the temperance party to reap their harvest, and if they prefer party to principle how can they expect the issue ever to be for temperance? You have been definitely and abruptly turned down by the present government and you have nothing more to expect from them. Rowell's platform is straight, clean-cut and positive, and if Mr. Rowell is chosen as leader of the government, and does not fulfill the promises he has made, turn him out just as the reformers turned down the Ross government.—I.O.P.

IN LINE WITH ROWELL.

J. A. Pinard Will Support Abolish the Bar.

Ottawa, June 26.—J. A. Pinard, liberal candidate in East Ottawa, announced yesterday he would follow Leader Rowell on the abolish-the-bar policy. Previously Mr. Pinard reserved his opinion on this policy, and was classed by the Ottawa Free Press as an independent liberal.

Useless Admonition.

Walking from Hope to Hayfield by a path over the moors, writes a correspondent of the Manchester Guardian, 'I found the hills covered with snow. A freezing east wind made things anything but pleasant. At one point I had to admit that I had lost my way, and it was with relief that I found a sign post. The inscription was blotted out with frozen snow. I climbed the post and with great difficulty and personal discomfort thawed the snow off with my already half-frozen hand, and succeeded in deciphering the inscription. It said: 'Keep to the path.'

Blended.—Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, the creator of Sherlock Holmes, who is creating such an interest in the Oscar Slater case, once told us that he wrote his first book at the age of six. It appears to have been a story of the adventure of the most exciting kind. 'There was a man in it and a tiger,' Sir Arthur said. 'I forget which of the two was the hero of the story, but it didn't matter which, because about the time the tiger met the man they became blended into one.'

WHY SHOPS WERE LEFT.

The Explanation Made by Mr. Rowell in Legislature.

Mr. Rowell is meeting with some disabused criticism because his policy does not demand the abolition of the shop licenses, in a speech which he delivered in the legislature on April 14th, 1914, when moving the resolution on the abolition of the bar, he said, among other things:

Now it is said by some of our friends on the government side of the house, why do you not include shops in your policy? The answer is we do include shops in our policy, but we treat them in a different manner from the bars and the clubs. Many honorable members on the government side of the house refuse to support us in entirely abolishing the bar because they say we are going too far we were going ahead of public opinion—and then in the same breath they attack us for not going further and including the shops. One argument of my honorable friends is an effective answer to the other. But I wish to discuss this phase of policy quite irrespectively of any such criticism. Our policy goes as far as the organized temperance forces of this province presented their request to us, the same request that they presented to the government. During the session of 1912 as already stated I was waited upon by a deputation of representative men of the Church of England, the Roman Catholic, Methodist, Presbyterian and Baptist churches—men chosen by the organized temperance forces of this province to present their requests to the government and to my colleagues and myself. Let me read to you again the resolution and request submitted to us: 'The abolition of the bar and the treating system and the drinking in clubs and the imposition of such further restrictions upon the liquor traffic as will most effectively curtail its operations and remedy its evils. Mr. Rowell has gone as far as the Christian temperance feeling of the province desired him to go, and as far as public opinion is ripe for the abolition of the shop licenses, they will go.'

A CLEAN CUT ISSUE.

Fighting for Homes and Women and Children.

N. W. Rowell at Woodstock. 'The issue is clearly before the people. If we are returned to power, we will work out every club and bar license in Ontario. If we are defeated those licenses will continue, and it is for you, the electors, to say which it shall be. If you prefer party alliances to voting on a clear-cut issue, you must carry on your consciences to your dying day the responsibility of allowing the bar with all their attendant evils to continue. You have the power to wipe out the evil, and if you decline to exercise that power, you are responsible for the continuance of that which, I am sure, most of you believe to be wrong. Mr. Rowell said, he had been told recently by a man who always had been a conservative, that he was going to vote liberal at the election on June 29th for the reason that he was determined that his son, when he grew up, should not be able to say, 'if I should have gone wrong, it is your fault, father, you preferred your party to my welfare and allowed the bars, which have brought me to ruin, to stay. I would rather go down to defeat fighting for the homes and the women and children of this province, than to support the support of the organized liquor interests.'

LIQUOR AGAINST LABOR.

Resentment Over the Opposition Given to Studholme.

Labor men in Hamilton are aroused in the present campaign as never before. The placing in nomination of a conservative candidate in opposition to Allan Studholme, labor member in East Hamilton, is resented to such a degree by labor men generally that it is likely to result in a determined opposition to conservative liquor candidates in many constituencies on Monday next. The feeling in Hamilton is clearly shown in the following resolution passed at a meeting there of the independent labor party on Saturday evening: 'Whereas, the liquor interests have invariably opposed labor representation in parliamentary, legislative and municipal elections in this city and elsewhere; and whereas, it is universally conceded that the influence of the liquor traffic, wherever exerted, has been against good government and progressive legislation; the Hamilton independent labor party recognizes in the hostility of the Allied Liquor Trades Association toward the re-election of Allan Studholme, a high compliment to his integrity and fair dealing, and recommends the electors of the city of Hamilton to appraise this hostility at its true value.'

Club License To Go.

After all the talk about the Ontario Club license, what are the facts? Mr. Rowell, if he wins on June 29th, will wipe that license, along with every other club license, out of existence. Under local option there is no provision for doing away with club licenses. Dr. Ross is one of the men who voted against bringing club licenses under the working of local option. Mr. Rowell will abolish the Ontario Club license.—Sir James will not. It will not take a temperance man long to choose between these courses.

Gananoque, June 26.—At the river front, last evening, the Citizens band, under the leadership of Bandmaster Eysgrady, another of the series of weekly outdoor concerts was given and much enjoyed by a large gathering.

W. J. Wilson has returned from the rear of the riding, from a trip through that section with the liberal candidate, Dr. J. P. Sinclair. Here work is being done in that section and will manifest itself strongly on election day. So far the outlook was never brighter than it is along liberal lines in South Leeds as the present time. At the session of the Sunday school workers of the townships of West and Gananoque a motion was passed endorsing N. W. Rowell's efforts to abolish the drink evil.

The Misses Edith McCammon, of this town; Marian MacNeil and Gertrude Cliffe, Front of Leeds and Lanctown townships, all graduates of Gananoque high school, who have been in attendance at Ottawa normal school for the past year, have returned to spend their summer vacation at their respective homes.

FIRST AIR FUNERAL HELD.

Escort of Twenty Aeroplanes For Dead Austrian.

Vienna, June 26.—An escort of twenty aeroplanes, flying mourning flags, and manned by aviators from several nations, formed a flying guard at the burial of the first Austrian officer and man killed in the tragic air catastrophe a few miles from Vienna on Saturday. The presence of their aerial fleet created a vivid impression on the course of people, including several archdukes, members of the Austrian cabinet, and foreign military attaches, was present at the graveside to testify the general sorrow felt for the aviators who had died doing their duty during the manoeuvres. While the funeral service was in progress the small aircraft circled round and round the cemetery, and their flow off in company.

Stand for Principle.

Mr. Plewman has resigned his position as editor of the Orange Sentinel because he cannot support its position in regard to the abolition of the bar. While the paper was neutral he did not feel called upon to resign, but when it advocated the election of government candidates, 'thereby opposing the success of a great moral issue, I decided to get my freedom, and do all in my power during the short time that is left before voting day to turn the tide in favor of temperance.'

Mr. Plewman also holds the government responsible for the present state of bilingual schools. The regulations of 1912, he said, were changed, not by Mr. Rowell, but by the government, 'to please Henry Bourassa and a handful of French fanatics. Mr. Plewman is a man of high character and strong convictions, and his action is of the utmost importance. When he places principle before position, it is surely time for electors to place principle before position.'

GOLDEN WEDDING.

Mr. and Mrs. Stearns Knowlton Celebrate Fiftieth Anniversary.

Athens Reporter. Monday last was the fiftieth anniversary of the marriage of our esteemed citizens, Mr. and Mrs. Stearns Knowlton, Church street. They had not thought of specially marking the event, but their children had planned that it should be otherwise. In response to a telegram, H. K. Knowlton, motored to Brockville as the day was breaking on Monday and met his two brothers, L. S. of Langthorpe, and C. H. of Windsor. Their arrival at the home of their parents was a complete and delightful surprise—the first great pleasure of a day, the remembrance of which will serve to brighten the days of Mr. and Mrs. Knowlton during the remainder of the peaceful pathway of life down which they are passing.

Miss Addie being at home and Mr. coming from Chantry, the event brought all their family together, excepting Roy, who is at Athabasca Landing. A wedding dinner had been prepared at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Knowlton and, needless to say, it was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

Married—At Portland, Ont., on June 22nd, 1914, Stearns Knowlton to Miss Saphronia Byington, by the Rev. L. A. Betts.

Following their marriage they settled on a farm at Chantry and there resided until a few years ago when they retired to a home in Athens. Here their sons, at different periods, have qualified for lives of usefulness and here on their return they are always welcomed by friends who have learned to appreciate their sterling integrity.

GOVERNMENT ON TRIAL.

Those of Thirty Years Ago Have Had Their Day.

It is not thirty years ago that it was not vital in regard to the matter of abolition of the bar or any of the minor issues in the present campaign. What has been done by the Whitney government is what should be discussed as having a vital relation to the present. The government has not only failed to give progressive temperance legislation, but has been neglectful of the interests of agriculture and slow to do anything to improve the social conditions of the workingman. It has failed to give permissive legislation in regard to tax reform. It has failed to create the problem of the settlement and development of Northern Ontario and it has been prodigal in its expenditure. Progress and economy in the public expenditure would result from a change of government.

Courage of Our Convictions.

'The fear of man bringeth a snare.' It isn't easy, is it, to be always the thing you feel and know you ought to be out where men are looking at you and talking about you. We did hear the other day of a man who thought he ought to vote a certain way when he was talking to his wife on his own back porch, but who changed his front entirely when some of 'the boys' talked it over with him on the street corner. To have the courage of one's convictions is a fine thing and, even with all the changes that have come to the world, to have such still makes big demands upon men. There isn't a man of us but has been tempted, sometimes when someone's finger was pointed at us, to get around behind the duty which we saw to be ours. That pointed finger was a snare that we found it hard to escape from. But what a fine sense of freedom we had when we dared it and came out and did what we believed to be our duty in the face of all the world. To have the courage of our convictions is not always easy, but it is a splendid and worth while achievement all the same and worth paying some thing for.

Asked to Help Suppress Traffic.

A pastoral letter issued by the bishops of the Roman Catholic church in Canada following the meeting of their first great council in the city of Quebec, in November, 1909, included the following: 'Almost everywhere the civil authorities have given their hearty co-operation, and have devoted themselves in a truly Christian spirit to the checking of this trade. It has been, above all, realized that the evils should be attacked at their source, namely, that the traffic in intoxicating liquors should be suppressed. They went on to deal with the most effective way for suppressing the evils of the traffic and called upon members of their church to assist in the work. Are Significantly Dumb. Some at least of those who have been in the way of agitating the air with their denunciations of the open bar are now significantly dumb. Or they are seeking to change the subject. They are more concerned about the encroachments of the French language or the possibility of another outbreak of the Balkan war. Consistency, they name is party politics.
