The election of Dr. A. E. Ross was generally conceded, but not by a majority of 1,468 as was accorded to him by the electors. The vote stood 2,900 to 1,432. In every polling subdivision, the victorious candidate secured a majority. Not even in his own subdivision did Ald. Harrison come anyway close to Dr. Ross, who simply made a clean sweep That's all there is to tell of the "battle," if it could be called a battle. With a loud voice, Kingston proclaimed itself for the bar.

The total vote polled was 4,332, it is all the contest. Although the majority was a large one, he was not at all discouraged; on the other hand, it would tend to lead him to still greater endeavor in the future.

Continuing his remarks in the business office. Ald. Harrison stated that the large majority was, no doubt, a most unexpected one. And here the defeated candidate told a good story.

It was one of which "Mike" and "Bill" took part. The two were walking along the railway track. As the train came along "Mike" stepped off the track. Continuing on his way, he picked up a man's arm afterwards a

OWNER WAS SUMMONED TO THE, POLICE COURT.

Canine Will Have to Be Tied up in the Future-Dispute Over the, Ownership of a Dog Heard by Magistrate.

Two dog cases occupied the atten-tion of Magistrate Farrell in the porecitative, followed by a soft, prayer- charging a full cargo of wheat; of a dog, with the result that the ful quartette, then full chorus, and steamer Glenmount, grain-laden from canine was locked up in a cell at the Fort William, passed on her way to police station pending the decision of the court. After hearing the evidence in the case, the magistrate gave Dixon possession of the dog. Mrs. Currell claimed that the dog belonged to her son-in-law. The latter is at Petawawa and could not be present to fight the case on his own behalf. The magistrate stated that he could take steps to secure the dog when he returned to the city. He would have to hand the dog over to Dixon on the evidence

> Dixon went into some ancient history for the benefit of the court, stating that he secured the dog from member of "B" battery in February. 1910. He stated that at this time there was an order issued in the barracks that all dogs must be disposed of. This was how he came to get the dog; he did not want the animal, but

A dog belonging to James Gough attacked George Purcell, on June 18th (circus day), and as a result Gough was summoned before the magistrate. Purcell was also in court. The charge against Gough was that of keeping a vicious dog.
