floors and brighten dustladen carpets and rugs. Every housekeeper should use it. For COUPER Prompt Delivery.

KINGSTON BUSINESS COLLEGE

(Limited)

Bend of Queen Street Courses in bookkeeping, short-hand, typewriting, civil service, general improvement, and all commercial subjects.

Rates moderate. Information

H. F. Metcalf, Principal

Give it Fair Play Why not decide NOW to give ZUTOO Tablets, the remedy so generally used for headache, a fair and square If there is any doubt in your mind to the worth of these tablets or of their

Don't sacrifice your comfort on account of prejudice or skepticism. Try the tablets and know. 25c at dealers or by mail prepaid. B. N. Robinson & Co. Reg'd. Coatloook, Quebec.

Contractors, Attention! PHONE 1473

> Get Prices From David Marshall

on Plumbing, Gastting Tinamith Work Prompt attention and reasonable rates guaranteed.

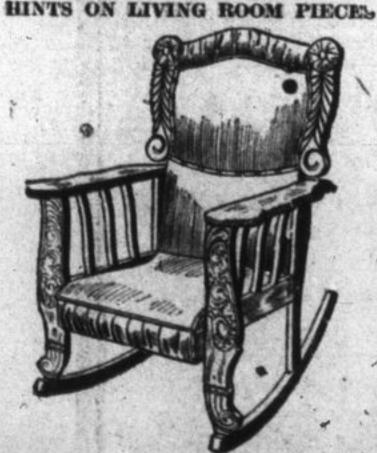

101 Queen Street.

SPECIALITIES. FITS, NERVE, SKIN, 10 to 8.30 BLOOD, KIDNEY, BENITO-URINARY, Chronic and

Complicated Diseases 2084

lons station Personally or by Letter FREE

ROCKERS, EASY CHAIRS, COUCH-ES, DAVENPORTS.

CARD, LIBRARY AND CENTER TABLES, ANY FINISH Leading Undertaker. Phone 577

(To be continued)

ILLUSTRATIONS BY EDGAR BERT SMITH COPYRIONY 1912 BY DODD, MEAD AND COMDANY

She confronted Arrelaford with bitterly reproachful glance, before which his eyes for a moment fell, and he was glad indeed to turn to another orderly who had just entered the

"Have you kept track of him?" he asked in a low voice.

"He's coming down the street to the department now, sir." "Where has he been since he left Mrs. Varney's house?" "He went to his quarters on Carey street. We got in the next room and watched him through a transom." "What was he doing?"

"Working on some papers or docu harmlessness, try them and KNOW the what they were?" "They looked like orders from the war department, sir." "He is coming here with forged orders, I suppose.'

"I don't doubt it, sir." "I surmise that his game is to get control of these wires and then send out dispatches to the front that will take away a battery or a brigade from the messengers, and stopped before some vital point, the vital point indi- the table. His quick scrutlay of the cated by 'Plan 3.' That's where they mean to attack tonight."

"Looks like it, sir," agreed the orderly respectfully. "'Plan 3,' that's where they will hit us," mused the secret service agent, "is there a guard in the build-"Not inside, sir," answered the orderly, "there's a guard in front and sentries around the barracks over in the square." "If I shouted they could hear from this window, couldn't they?" asked Arrelsford. "The guard in front could hear you, sir. But the time is getting short, He must be nearly here; you'd better look out, sir.'

Edith Varney had heard enough of the conversation to understand that Thorne was coming. Of course it would never do for him to see her

"Where am I to go?" she asked. "Outside here on the balcony," said Arrelsford. "There is no closet in the room and it is the only place. I will be with you in a moment."

"But if he should come to the wi-

"We will step in at the other window. Stay, orderly, see if the win-

"I've Accepted Your Invitation, You

fice, the next room to the left, is

They waited while the orderly went out on the balcony and made his in-open, sir," he reported. "That's all I want of you. Report! get the body of the prisoner out of began to smoke. Foray laughed. the Varney house. He knows where It's to go." "Very well, sir." on with your work and don't give the strouble?" slightest sign of my presence to any any account. You under-"Yes, sir," said Foray from the telegraph table in the center of the

He had caught something of th conversation, but he was too good a soldier to ask any questions, besides his business was with the telegraph. not with Mr. Arrelsford. "Now, Miss Varney," said the se cret service agent, "this way, please." He opened the middle window. The have one of your own, I might as sors which he found in a drawer he girl stepped through, and he was well."

about to follow when he caught sight of a messenger entering the room.

said abruptly to the young man. "War department, sir."

"Carrying dispatches?"

"I'm here on department business," him but a few minutes to write the said Arrelsford. "All you have to do brief message which he addressed and is to keep quiet about it. Weren't turned to the first messenger, "Quaryou stopped in the hall?"

"Yes, sir, but I had a dispatch from the president that had to be deliered to Lieutenant Foray." "Well, it is just as well," said A relaford. "Don't mention having see me to anybody under any pretext an stay here. You might be needed. Or second thoughts, Foray, let any mes senger come in." With that Mr. Arrelsford stepped out onto the balcony through the window, which he closed after him, and he and Edith disappeared from view. "Messenger," said Foray, "step down the hall and tell the private there that by Mr. Arrelsford's orders messengers are allowed to come up as they report, The room which had been the scene "Could you see them? Did you see of these various colloquies became silent save for the continuous clicking of the telegraph keys. Presently two messengers came back and took > their positions as before Hard on their heels entered Captain Thorne. He was in uniform, of course, and a paper was tucked in his belt. He walked rapidly down the room, acknowledged the salutes of room as he advanced had shown him that there was no one present except the messengers and Lieutenant Foray Foray glanced up, nodded, finished taking the dispatch which was on the wires at the time, wrote it out, put it in his envelope, and then rose to his feet and saluted.

"Captain Thorne," he said. "Lieutenant Foray," replied Thorne. taking the order from his belt and handing it to the operator.

"Order from the department?" asked Foray. "I believe so," answered Thorne

Lieutenant Foray opened it and "They want me" to take a cipher dispatch over to the president's house," he said as he finished. "Yes," said Thorne, moving to the vacant place at the table. He pulled the chair back a little, tossed his hat on the other table, and otherwise made himself at home. you get back," he began casually, shoving the paper aside and stretching his hand toward the key. "That's an odd thing, captain," began Lieutenant Foray dubiously. understood that the president was meeting with the cabinet. In fact, Lieutenant Allison went over there to take some code work a moment ago. He must have gone home, I

"Looks like it," said Thorne quietly. "If he is not at home you had

"Yes," said Foray, moving away, I suppose I had better wait for him. You will have to look out for Allison's wire, though, on the other table. He was called over to the department."

"Oh, Allison!" said Thorne carelessly. "Be gone long, do you think?" he continued as he seated himself at the table and began to arrange the "Well, you know how it is. They generally whip around quite a while before they make up their minds what they want to do. I don't suppose they will trouble you much. It's as quiet as a church down the river. Good night." "See here, Mr. Foray, wait a moment. You had better not walk out and leave-no matter," continued Thorne; as the operator stopped and turned back. "It's none of my busidow of the commissary general's of ness, still if you want some good advice, that is a dangerous thing to do." "What is it, captain?" asked Foray, somewhat surprised. "Leave a cigar lying around an office like that. Somebody might walk "The window of the next room is in any minute and take it away.

can't watch your cigars all day." He picked up the cigar, and before back to Corporal Matson. Tell him to. Poray could prevent it, lighted it and "Help yourself, captain, and if there is any trouble you will find a revolver on the table. "Mr. Foray," continued Arrelsford, "I see," said Thorne, "but what "whoever comes here you are to keep makes you think there is going to be

"Oh, well, there might be." "Been having a bad dream?" asked the captain nonchalantly.

"No, but you never can tell. All sorts of things are liable to happen in an office like this, and-"

"That's right," said Thorne, pulling away at his cigar, "you never can tell. But see here. If you never can tell when you are going to have trouble you had botter take that gun along with you. I have one of my own."

termaster General."

"He wasn't in his office a short time ago, sir," said the messenger, "Very well, find him. He has proably gone home and he has to have

"Very good, sir." + The key kept up its clicking. In a short time another message was writ

"Ready here," cried Thorne, looking the secretary of the treasury, marked private. Take it to his home." "He was down at the cabinet mee

"Look Out for Yourself, Captain."

ing a little while ago, sir," said the second messenger. "No difference, take it to his house and wait until he comes." The instant the departing messenger left him alone in the room Thorne leaped to his feet and ran with catlike swiftness to the door, opened it, and quickly but carefully examined the corridor to make sure that no one was there on duty. Then he closed the door and turned to the nearest window, which he opened also, and looked out on the balcony, which he saw was empty. He closed the window and came back to the table, unbuckling his belt and coat as he came. These he threw on the table. The coat fell back, and he glanced in the breast pocket to see that a certain document was in sight and at hand, where he could get it quickly. Then he took his revolver, which he had previously slipped from his belt to his hip pocket, and laid it down beside the instrument. After a final glance around him to see that he was still alone and unobserved, he seized the key, on which he sounded a certain call. An expert could telegraph equally well with telegrapher would have recognized it, either hand. He did not lay down his a dash, four dots in rapid succession, then two dots together, and then two kept it in his right hand while the more (-). He waited a fingers of his left hand touched the few moments, and when no answer button. He had scarcely made a dot sent it a third time. After this effort he made a longer pause, and just as he had about reached the end of his patience-he was in a fever of anxiety, for upon what happened in the next moment the failure or the success of the whole plan absolutely turned—the silent key clicked out an answer, repeating the same signal which he himself had made. The next moment he made a leap upon the key, but before he could send a single letter steps-were heard outside in the corridor. Thorne released the key leaned back in his chair, seized a match from the little holder on the table and struck it, and when another messenger entered he seemed to be lazily lighting his cigar. He cursed in his heart at the inopportune arrival. other uninterrupted moment and would have sent the order, but usual he gave no outward evidence of his extreme annoyance. The messenger came rapidly down toward the table and handed Captain Thorne

"From the secretary of war. Captain Thorne," he said saluting, "and he wants it to go out right away." "Here, here," said Thorne, as the nessenger turned away, "what's all this?" He ran his fingers through the envelope, tore it open, and spread out the dispatch. "Is that the secretary's invigorates the scalp, and beautifies signature?" he asked.

The messenger came back. "Yes, sir: I saw him sign it myself. I'm his personal messenger." "Oh!" said Thorne, spreading the dispatch out on the table and O.K.-ing it, "you saw him sign it yourself, die

"Yes, sir." "Very well. We have to be pretty careful tonight," he explained, "there is something on. You are sure of this, anywhere, sir," said the messenger. "Very well," said Thorne, "you may

> CHAPTER XIII. The Tables Are Turned.

As soon as the door was closed beind the messenger Thorne laid his cigar down on the table. Then he picked up the dispatch from the secretary of war which the messenger had just brought in and folded it very "Well," said the operator, "if you dexterously. Then with a pair of sciscut off the lower part of the secre-He took the revolver up and tucked tary's dispatch containing his signait in his belt. "Look out for yourself. ture. He put this between his teeth Leaving the window, he retraced his captain. Goodby. I will be back as and tore the rest into pieces. He soon as the president gives me that started to throw the pieces into the "Where did you come from?" he dispatch. That dispatch I have just waste basket but after a moment's finished is for the commissary gener. reflection he stuffed them into his al's office, but it can wait until the trousers pocket. Then he picked up his coat from the back of the chair DR. DeVAN'S FRENCH PILLS A fell "Yes, sir."

"All right," said Thorne, and the said the operator turned the operator turned the same paper as that which had just co., St. Catharines, Ontario.

"All right," said Thorne, and the said took from the inside breast pock- gulating Pill for Women. So a box or three for et another document written on the saddress on receipt of price. The Scorett Date co., St. Catharines, Ontario. called Thorne to the table. It took come from the secretary of war. PHOSPHONOL FOR MEN. Restores ing the real signature. He carefully wiped this pasted dispatch with his hardkerchief, making an exceedingly heat job of it.

As he did so he smiled slightly. Fortune, which had dealt him so many rebuffs had evened up matters a little by giving him this opportunity. He had now in his possession a dispatch bearing the genuine signature of the secretary of war. Even if he were interrupted the chances were he would still be able to send it. So soon as he had doctored the dispatch he sat down at the instrument and once more essayed to send the message. Now during all this rapid bit of manipulation Thorne had been under close observation, for Arrelsford and Edith Varney had come from the commissary general's office, where they had concealed themselves while Thorne examined the porch, and had stepped back to the nearest window and were intently watching. Fortunately his back partially concealed his actions and the watchers could not tell exactly what he had done, although it was quite evident that he was in some way altering some kind of a dispatch.

Just as Thorne began to send the message Arrelsford accidentally struck the window with his elbow, making a slight sound. The instant he did so, he and the girl vanished from sight. Once again Thorne released the key, and his hand moved quietly but rapidly from the instrument to the revolver. The instant it vas in his hand he sprang to his feet, whirled about, leaped to the gas bracket and turned off the light. The room was left in darkness, save for the faint illumination of the moonlight through the windows.

Immediately he turned off the light he ran to the doors leading into the hall. They were provided with heavy, old-fashioned bolts which he shot swiftly, locking them on the inside. Then with the utmost caution he edged around the wall until he came to the first window. He waited with his left hand on the catch of the win dow, and with his right advanced his revolver. After a moment's pause he threw it open quickly and stepped out on the balcony. It was empty as

He must have made a mistake, he thought, since no one was there, and he blamed the whole incident to his. over-agitated nerves. Indeed, what he had gone through in the preceding two hours would have shaken any man's nerves, might have broken most men's. He was annoyed at having wasted precious time, and turned to the table again, stopping on his way to relight the light.

Once more he seized the key. He revolver on the table this time, but came he signaled the call a second or a dash when there was a sudden "I am ordered to stay here until time, and after another longer wait he flash of light and the sound of an explosion, that of a heavy revolver, glass. Captain Thorne's fingers fell from the key and a jet of blood spurted out upon the table and the papers. He rose to his feet with incredible swiftness, his revolver in his right hand, only to be confronted by Arrelsford at the front window. The latter held in his hand, pointed fairly andsquarely at Thorne, the heavy service revolver with which he had just shot him in the left wrist. Thorne made a swift motion with his right hand. but Arrelsford was too quick for him. "Drop that gun!" he shouted. "Drop (To be Continued.

Hair Soft, Wavy and Abundant.

If your hair is anything short perfect; tif it is losing color, too dry brittle, thin, or if the scalp burns and itches, immediately begin use of Parisian Sage. The first plication removes dandruff, cools and the hair until it is gloriously radiant. Parisian Sage supplies; hair needs and does not injure the hair or It contains the exact v elements needed to make the hair soft, wayy, glossy, and to make it grow thick and beautiful. It is delicately perfumed-not sticky or greasy. Sold in fifty cent bottles only by J. B. McLeod and at all drug and toilet

Parisian Sage acts instantly-one application stops the head from itching and freshens up the hair. Use "I could swear to that signature it daily for a week and you will be and delighted. Parisian of the quickest-acting pair-tonics known. Everyone needs

For Sale Motor bont, 24 ft. long, 16 horse power, full auto control, 12 miles up hour; in best condition. Bont house can be supplied.

H. S. CRUMLEY 116 BROCK ST PHONE 1442

ld at Mahood's Drug Store,"

At what hour do You rise Do you say to yourself in the morning "I've got to get up!" Or do you just "get up"spring out of bed like a giant day's work and worries joyfully? "Hercules" Bed Spring will make you sleep better because the "Hercules" is a better Spring-more buoyant, more restful Don't drag out your nights on a bed that sags. Sleep on a spring that is scientifically constructed so that it cannot sag. The "Hercu-les" with its "Five Times" weave rests every muscle refreshed and tackle your body evenly, We also make the Famous "Gold Medal"

and nerve because it distributes the weight of your

Felt Mattress best for use in combination with the "Hercules" Bed Spring.

the clothes from slipping off. At all Responsible Dealers or Write Direct to-

BED SPRINGS

Please note the Patented Basket Edge which keeps the Mattress from Spreading and

The Gold Medal Furniture Mfg. Co., Ltd. also at Montreal and Winnipeg TORONTO

R. J. REID

JAMES REID

mingled with the crash of shattered James. McParland, Agent, 339-341 King Street East.

$29.50

A bicycle completely equipped, coaster brake, gas lamp, bell, Dunlop style tires; everything guaranteed for the season.

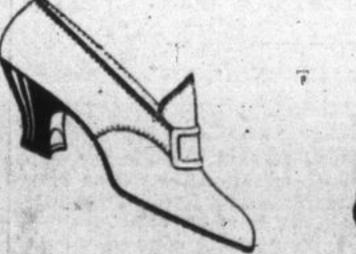

Just to give the boys and girls something good at prices never heard of before in Kingston.

We won't sell cheap bicycles, but we do sell good bicycles cheap. SEE OUR WINDOW and Sporting Goods Co.

White Shoes

All kinds of stylish street and outing shoes, reasonable in price and just the thing for coolness and comfort.

White Canvas Pumps, Colonials and Oxfords,

$1.50 to $3.00. White Buck Pumps, Colonials and Oxfords, $4. White Canvas and Buck Boots, $4.00, $4.50. Tennis, Yachting and Outing Shoes of all kinds, from 75c up.

HTHERI ALIR

THE HOME OF GOOD