THREE MONTHS IN JAIL YOUNG MAN ADMITTED HE BROKE WINDOWS IN HOWE ISLAND HOUSE.

SENTENCE GIVEN WILLIAM DEVILIN BY JUDGE LAVELL

Was Found Guilty of Receiving Stolen Goods—Police Constables Swore He Tried to Buy His Liberty.

William Devlin, arrested a few days ago by Constable Jenkins and Nicholson was on Friday afternoon found guilty by Judge Lavell, sitting in chambers, at a special session at four o'clock, of unlawfully receiving goods, knowing them to be stolen, and was sentenced to three months in jail, at hard labor. The goods consisted of five bottles of whiskey, two sides of bacon and a dozen packages of Cracker-Jack. There were five witnesses for the prosecution and two for the defence, and the hearing occupied four hours. J. L. Whiting, crown attorney, appeared for the prosecution and Mr. Day for the accused who entered a plea of "not guilty."

Constables Jenkins and Nicholson repeated the evidence they gave at the police court about arresting Devlin with the goods and also gave evidence of a sensational character when they stated that Devlin had offered them the goods he had in his possession and $10 if they would give him his liberty. Devlin denied this statement and swore that the constables asked him what he would give them for his freedom. Sergt. Snooden and S. C. Wright, freight agents for the Grand Trunk, were also witnesses. The stolen goods were also identified as belonging to the Grand Trunk, having been consigned to local liquor shops. Devlin was employed as a porter at the freight sheds.

In his statement under oath, Devlin declared that he had been given the goods by one John Walmley, also employed at the freight sheds and who pleaded guilty to the theft of one bottle of whiskey before Magistrate Farrell, and was given two months in jail.

Devlin stated that on the night of his arrest, July 1st, he met Walmley, and that the latter asked him to go with him to a rubbish heap near the freight sheds, where the goods were hidden. Walmley wanted to ship the goods out of the city, and he did so.

Walmley was called by Mr. Whiting and questioned, and denied Devlin's entire story. Devlin was arrested late on the night of July 1st and Walmley swore positively that he was not with Devlin after 5 p.m. on that day.

Mr. Day called a half dozen or more witnesses, who told of the good character the accused had borne before his arrest, and he also produced letters from several of Devlin's employers, and each one gave the prisoner a free recommendation.

Judge Lavell said that he was strongly of the belief that the prisoner was guilty. He was in possession of the goods, and must have known they were stolen.

TIMELY OBSERVATIONS

BY A GENTLEMAN OF THE OLD FRENCH SCHOOL.

Prof. Paul Denys. Comments Upon Affairs in Montreal, and the New Regopolis College in Kingston.

Kingston, July 10. (To the Editor)—He generally is a wise man who does not know it all, but elects to con the lesson of passing events. Reading, observing, reflecting will do much to keep one informed widely and truly. Whilst in Montreal, these last two weeks, the chief topic of conversation, wherever you went, was Hon. Sam's action regarding the Corpus Christi procession. To say that the stern soldier's name was given to applause would be to give truth a most serious wrench. The hon. the minister may fear no foe, be from heel to helmet a militaire; he may believe he was born to set things right; glory in time may wait on him, but if all we heard about his "iniquitous trick" be true, he is fast heading the other way with banner badly torn though still flying. The great danger would be the performance of the prayer of "Moose" on one string, but the daring colonel who would have Catholic throats gulp his Orange medicine without wincing is nery to excess.

His assertion, too, as to the carrying of arms is incorrectly made. At time of session, all privileges enjoyed by the French—their language laws, religion, customs, were to be respected, and the bearing and presenting of arms before the sacred host was one of these. Lives of public men, at best, are thorny enough, but when dominated by prejudice rather than by principle, a dire fate is sure to overtake them.

Another thing which, during my recent visit, I could not fail to notice was the marked growth of the metropolis in spite of strikes and stringencies of all kinds. Certain parts of the city which but yesterday served as grazing ground for cattle now gleam with sumptuous dwellings, convents, colleges, churches whose shining spires seem to be piercing the blue above. But, go where you will, it is ever with pride we step off the train at Kingston so admirably situated. So home-like, garden-like and altogether attractive, with every advantage, intellectual, material, educational within your reach.

The interest we were shown the spot where is now rising the new Regopolis college, a name synonymous with glory in the past and pregnant with future hope. Standing on a well-pronounced eminence it commands a delightful view of the surrounding district which it must eventually build and guardly benefit. Where knowledge is, grandly by religion, there progress must come. In its Sunday address to the vast gathering, the Most Reverend Archbishop paid a very high tribute to a former occupant of this ancient see. Coming generations contemplating a cathedral unspurred in grandeur and free from debt, noting the new parishes, churches, institutions of learning, are as springing up as if by magic, shall be compelled to say, great as may have been his predecessors, he sacred causes of education and religion that the saintly prelate who to-day presides with such success and yet with such humility over this pioneer and most important archdiocese of Kingston.

PAUL DENYS.

A Hotel Question.

Kingston, July 10.—(To the Editor): Can you tell us why in Toronto the Woodbine hotel, with three hundred rooms, is being built for $275,000 while the proposed hotel in Kingston, with one hundred rooms, is to cost $225,000? Does this not merit an explanation?—INQUIRER.

Visiting Boats Here.

Messrs. Frederick, George and Henry Lewis and Miss Whittaker, of Norfolk, and Miss VanNort, of New York, arrived in the city on Saturday morning on their cruiser Ahnaweta.

The cruiser Spray, of Lachine, with Messrs. A. L. and D. V. McLean and H. I. Nelson, of Montreal, on board, came down to the city from Macdonald's cove.

Messrs. H. Smith, Roger Clarkson and the owner Norman Gooderham, came to the city on Friday on the yacht Patricia. Mr. Gooderham will likely take the yacht to Toronto on Monday.

SWIMMING PLACES

Are Needed by the Children of Kingston.

At the present time, Kingston is without a suitable place where young men who are able to swim can have a duck in the lake. Up until a year ago, one could go down to the old Cataragui bridge at certain hours of the day and go in, but since the work of dredging was commenced citizens have had to get out of that place.

At Lake Ontario Park, there is a fairly good swimming place but unfortunately there is no wharf to dive off. A person who is able to swim does not want to walk out on a hard rock bottom before getting to water up to their neck.

The bathing houses which are in use by the city out at the Grove Inn are very convenient for people living on the south side of Princess street, but people living in the vicinity of Frontenac school do not want to walk that far.

There is a feeling on the part of many citizens that the City Council should see that better places for swimming are arranged for the children before the year is gone.
