THE ROBLIN GOVERNMENT IS BARELY SUSTAINED

Present Standing—Conservatives 24, Liberals 21

DEFERRED ELECTIONS

AND RECOUNTS MAY PUT THE GOVERNMENT OUT.
Liberals Swept Winnipeg—Provincial Secretary Defeated, and Hon. Mr. Montague Elected by Only Three Majority.

Winnipeg, July 11.—Late returns indicate that by the grace of the French Catholic electors, and in two seats by English Catholics, the Roblin government is sustained by 24 to 21, with two seats in doubt. All Orange centres voted heavily for the liberal opposition. All French districts off the English-speaking vote and went strong for the government.

TELLS OF TIGER HUNT

CAPT. DALE CARR - HARRIS WRITES TO HIS FATHER.

About His Outing With a Party—How He Brought Down One of the Big Animals.

Prof. R. Carr-Harris, Mack street, has received a letter from his son, Capt. Dale, Carr-Harris, R. E., a graduate of the Royal Military College in 1898, telling of a tiger hunt in India. The letter will be of interest to Whig-readers. Capt. Carr-Harris says:
Staff College, Quetta, India, May 31st, 1914.
You asked me for a detailed account of my Christmas Tiger shoot. I was invited by Ian Campbell the officer in charge of the forests all along the border of Nepal, to join one of his shooting party and I arrived in camp at Terailpoor 22nd December.

We were a large party and the camp was a big one with large Sharmabas about 20 feet and 40 feet to sitting and dining rooms etc.

Besides myself there were the following: Ian and Mrs. Campbell; Miss Campbell, Lt.-Col. the Hon. Charles and Mrs. Abauce, Rhuys Williams, K.C., a globe trotter who is shooting in India, Col. and Mrs. Maingold, T. G. Prisons in the M.S., Mr. and Mrs. Edie, of the J. T. G. Major Stallard, I. M. S. G. Rowley of 8th Hussars, J. Campbell of R. A.

We had about forty elephants of whom twelve had howdahs and the remainder had pads. These mostly belonged to the rajahs of Baoraipur and Dharampur, and went on the following fortnight for the vice-roy's shoot about fifty miles away.

I got my tiger three days before we broke up camp. In the morning the trackers got back in camp about 9 a.m., and reported that there was a young buffalo killed by a tiger about six miles away and that the tiger had gone into a thick jungle near a sal forest.

We left camp about ten on elephants. On arrival at the jungle Campbell sent the pad elephants round to the other side to watch there for him. He then posted the guns in the howdah elephants stopping the rear side of the jungle. When we were all in position he went off to take charge of the line of beating elephants. This is a difficult job to run it well and so as to prevent a tiger from breaking thro

How She Compels Others to Obey Her Will.

100,000 Copies of Remarkable Book Recently Published by the Whig are being distributed Post-Free to readers of "The Kingston Whig."

The wonderful power of Personal Influence, magnetism, Fascination, Mind Control, call it what you will, can surely be acquired by anyone in a matter how unattractive or unsuccessful. Mr. Elmer Ellsworth, author of the new book entitled "The Key to the Development of Forces." This book lays bare the facts concerning the practice of the Eastern Yogis, and describes a simple, effective system of continuing the thoughts and acts of others; how you may gain the love and friendship of those who might otherwise remain indifferent; how to cure the most obstinate diseases without drugs or medicines, even the complex subject of projecting thoughts (clairvoyance) appears therein. Declares that Prof. Knowles' book opens the door to success, health, and happiness in mortal or matter what his or her position in life. She believes that Prof. Knowles' "The Key to the Development of Forces" is a book which, if universally adopted, will revolutionize the mental status of the human race.

The book, which is being distributed broadcast free of charge, is full of photographs, reproductions showing how these unseen forces are being used all over the world, and how thousands of thousands are being benefited by powers which they little dreamed they possessed. The free distribution of 100,000 copies is being conducted by a large London institution, and a copy will be sent post-free to anyone interested. No money need be sent but those who wish to do so may enclose 2 cents (stamps of your own country) for cover, postage, etc. All requests for the free book should be addressed to: National Institute of Sciences, Free Distribution Dept., 347D, No. 258, Westminster Bridge Road, London, S.E. England. Simply say you would like a copy of "The Key to the Development of the Inner Forces," and mention "The Kingston Whig."

The liberals will get Kildonan, where Hon. Mr. Montague has only three majority. Eight seats will be reconquered.

In Winnipeg for four hours conservatives and liberals alike thought the government was defeated. The liberals hardly gained any the first hour and a half of the returns.

But it is added on all sides that the government is given a jolt it can hardly survive. "Separate schools now or never" was the Catholic cry, and they rallied to the government's support. The opposition is very strong and the three deferred elections and some recounts may yet put the government out of office.

The result is undeniably a sore blow to the expectation of the government. Outside of the loss of a number of what were considered safe seats, many other charges were held only by a small majority. At the last election Premier Roblin's own majority was over 400. He has only 124 now. The liberal sweep in central and south Winnipeg is one of the most surprising things of the campaign, and can only be attributed to a hostile Orange and church sentiment.

the line. Sometimes the elephants are not staunch and keep trumpeting and try to turn back. There is often a good deal of noise from the elephants when they are up to the line. When a tiger is on foot one always knows it by the way the elephants keep trumpeting the ground with the ends of their trunks.

On this occasion our tiger gave no noise will the line as they were up to the stops. He then broke and went off on a gallop round the end of the stops. The last gun at the end caught sight of him, fired and missed and he was gone. The jungle is often ten feet above the tracks of the elephants so you can imagine how difficult it is to see.

We then had a halt for ten and it was decided to leave some one to sit up in a tree overlooking the dead buffalo on the chance that the tiger would come back. Those of us who had never yet shot a tiger drew lots and it fell to me.

It was now about 5 p.m., so I was given some sandwiches and rode off on my elephant to a tree. We tied up a machan and as the night was bitterly cold I put on a sweater and a great coat and climbing into the mahjan sent the elephant away. I told the man out to wait about two miles away until an hour after dark and if he had no shot he was to return to camp for the night and come out and fetch me in the morning. I had been sitting staring down at the buffalo until it was so dark that I could no longer distinguish anything about it. The shadow there was blacker than elsewhere. The carcass was lying out in a small spring in the Sal forest, which is here very dense and rises over a hundred feet in height.

I was looking steadily at the shadow and could see nothing when I suddenly heard a tremendous roar at the carcass followed almost immediately by a slow and deliberate crunch and then another heave. The buffalo was of course tied to a stake so that it could not be dragged away. I did not dare to move or lift my rifle for a minute or two for fear of making a noise. I thought it would be best.

I raised my rifle very slowly to my shoulder pointing at the shadow and still trying to make out where and what the animal was although I was pretty certain by this time that such crunching could only be by a tiger.

Some noise must have caught the tiger's attention. At any rate I suddenly caught the light in his two eyes. I could see nothing else but this against the dark background though he must have been looking up straight in my direction where I sat in the tree. He then came a little through the head which I afterwards found went through the neck and came out through the base of the throat. I was very pleased with this shot. It could not have been better as it got him in the heart.

There was no movement after I had fired and not knowing what effect my first shot had produced I fired once more into the darkest part of the shadow and this shot just touched the shoulder.

The shriek hearing the shots soon arrived on the elephant and had a lantern tied on to a long stick. This he lowered to the ground when examining the place and there he found the tiger quite dead. Some coolies had come out from the village. We made the elephant kneel down and after some trouble, as he did not like it, got the tiger tied on his back.

I then rode in behind the tiger. The three of us (two shikaris and self) all on the same elephant with the dead tiger.

We got into camp about 10 p.m. when every one was very pleased to see us arrive. The Campbells sent the skin for me to Gerrade and sons who mount animals for the Kensington museum.

Mackie also got a tiger and so did Edie. The latter was a big one nine feet four inches from nose to tail measured along curves of the back as he lay. I was using a powerful double-barrelled rifle from Mantion of Calcutta. It was a 500 D.B. magazine express using black powder (chamber 577 and bullet 500).

I also had fixed on the barrel, above the sight, a small electric flash light and it was its light which showed up the tigers eyes so well. The whole was a heavy weight but this lessened the recoil. There was also a two inch rubber pad on the butt to lessen the shock when firing. I have gone rather into details for the information of the younger children. It was a fine shoot and I enjoyed it thoroughly. I think of possibly shooting in the same place again next Christmas when the crowd here closes.
