TALES OF INDIA.

The Wisdom of a Great Maharaja Recalled in Memoirs.
Some interesting recollections are given by an "Old Soldier" writing in "The Indianman." The Maharaja of Rewah—who died in 1881—was one of the greatest sportsmen in India; he had slain hundreds of tigers, some of them at very close quarters. He was a mighty hunter, and a very fine specimen of a stout chief, and the terror of all his people. But he was held in complete subjection by his wives, of whom, alas! there were no fewer than eight. On a certain occasion, when paying a ceremonial visit to the British officer of the district, his highness came with a large retinue of armed retainers and many elephants, and occupied an enormous tent in the centre of an encampment, covering many acres of land, where all his wives with their respective servants and guards were likewise accommodated in tents. The next morning it was seen that a very small insignificant tent had been pitched, during the night, about half a mile from the princely encampment, and to this humble refuge the great chief had betaken himself. He explained that he had fled from the Maharani—"For," he said, "I am something of a philosopher—Never quarrel with women."

General Infantry who came to England as one of the King's orderlies was asked on his return to India what he considered to be the most remarkable thing in London. He replied unhesitatingly, "The police." "You will see," he said, "one man step out into the middle of the road and hold up his hand to stop the traffic of carriages in order that a little child, in a perambulator pushed by a nursemaid, may cross the road in safety; and though the motor-cars and carriages contain lords and dukes—and, perhaps, even former viceroys of India—the drivers obey the signal of the policeman, and no one dares to drive past until he gives permission by lowering his hand. It is wonderful this power of the police, but I think I have found the reason. Every policeman in London is the son of a lord."

Has any Englishman acquired such a profound knowledge of the Indian vocabulary as to be able to follow the precise meaning of the songs sung by the women of the corps de ballet at a native court? One of our most eminent traveling M.P.'s was present, not very long ago, at an entertainment given by an Indian prince in the desert of Rajasthan, and was much struck by the vehemence—in voice and posture—of one of the artists who was filling the room with her melodious voice.

Prizefighters' Nicknames.
There was a time when nearly every prominent English prize fighter had a nickname more generally used by admirers than his real name, and some of these were picturesque. William Perry, a famous fighter of early Victorian days, was the "Tipton Slasher." William Thompson, who won the championship in 1835, was known as Bendigo. The Australian mining town was named after him, and although some of the inhabitants managed to have it rechristened Bendigo, the name never caught on. Other nicknames borne by heroes of the ring were "the Gasman," "the Sailor Boy," "the Chelsea Snob," "the Bold Smuggler," "the Great Gun of Windsor" and the "Pride of Westminster."

Embryo Birds.
Mrs. Bourchier (Miss Violet Vanbrugh), the celebrated English actress, tells a story of two actors who were discussing their professional careers. One of them mentioned that since he last saw the other he had left the stage. "You leave the stage?" his friend asked, in surprise. "Well," the other replied, "I had a hint that I was not suited for it." "I see," was the friend's comment. "The little birds told you, eh?" "Well, they might have become birds if they had been allowed to hatch!"

Fishes Ring For Dinner.
The goldfish which thrive in the warm mineral water of the famous tonic baths have learned to ring a bell for their dinner. A metal ball floats in the water with an ingenious pivot attachment, from which strings hang down in the water. When the goldfish, emulating Bunty, pull the strings, a bell sounds and a cup of ants' eggs is turned automatically into the water. The fish greedily enjoy the new game which is watched daily by interested crowds.

Know About His Own.
The late Sir John Astley, affectionately remembered as "The Mate," was many years ago standing for Parliament. A tiresome heckler asked him what he thought of Sir Wilfrid Lawson's Wine and Spirits Bill. "What do I think of Sir Wilfrid Lawson's Wine and Spirits Bill?" "I don't think of it at all. That's his affair, not yours or mine. I can tell you, if you like, that my own last year was a jolly sight too big."

Counts Up.
"My dear," he said in a mildly reproachful tone, "I have no doubt at all that you are a good bargainer, but I feel that you always get really excellent bargains, but you get too many of them."

The Irish home rule amending bill passed its third reading in the House of Lords without a division.
Frank Storey, Picton, a retired farmer, was killed and a boy was injured in a motor accident.

COMPLAINTS TO POLICE

THAT GARBAGE MEN ARE NEGLIGENT IN DUTIES.
Hot Weather Keeps the Garbage Collector on the Jump—He is Wanted in Many Places at the Same Time—Sustep Poor.
"Where O where is the garbage man?" This is the cry of many a housewife in Kingston these days. During this week the police have received scores of complaints from citizens who state that the garbage man has not called, and asking that he be made to cover his rounds.
The police take all the orders and leave them for the collectors, but this is all the authority they have. Some citizens have an idea that the police have garbage men on hand ready to answer all these complaints; and if their garbage is not attended to in quick order they blame the police. "If my garbage is not collected now after this complaint," said one citizen, calling up the police station on Monday, "I will make a serious complaint."
The citizen was told that the order would be given to the collector, but that apart from this nothing could be done.
From the number of complaints being received daily at the police station about the garbage, it would appear that the system for the city is a very poor one, and in great need of a change.
Now that the hot weather is on there is great demand for the garbage man, and he is called upon to work overtime. Nearly everyone wants a garbage man, and everyone wants him at the one time, and it is a sure thing that the poor garbage collector cannot be in two or three places at once.
However, citizens would be satisfied if they would get some kind of a service so they would not be compelled to leave garbage around the yard in cans during the warm weather for any great length of time.

THE TOWN OF GANANOQUE.
The C. O. F. Is to Decorate Graves Next Sunday.
Gananogue, July 15.—Under the auspices of the local fire brigade the steamer Thousand Islander took out a searchlight excursion party for a ramble among the islands and a stop off at Clayton. The excursion was quite well patronized. The Citizens' band headed a parade of the firemen to the wharf.
Court Thousand Islands, No. 66, C.O.F., will celebrate its annual memorial day on Sunday next, July 19th. The graves of departed brethren in Willow Bank and Roman Catholic burying ground will be decorated during the morning, while the special service will be held at Gananogue cemetery during the afternoon.
The coal schooner William Jamieson pulled into Gananogue river, yesterday afternoon, with a cargo for the Gananogue Electric Light and Power company.
Frederick V. Skinner, of the staff of the local branch of the Bank of Toronto, has been promoted to the branch office started a few years ago at Lybtham.

Mr. and Mrs. William Foley, of Lansdowne, motored to town, yesterday, for a short visit with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Knight, Garden street.

CAPTAIN KILLED FAMILY
As Result of Hallucinations—Then Shot Himself.
Oran, Algeria, July 13.—Under the influence of an overpowering hallucination that Arabs were about to capture them, Captain Gouge, of the Second Regiment, Foreign Legion, shot and killed his wife and three children as they slept, and then committed suicide.
The captain left a letter explaining that he had been suffering for some months from hallucinations of ever-increasing force.
Last night a vision of his wife and children in the hands of the Arabs, being subjected to torture, recurred so vividly that he seized a pistol to kill them and thus save them from horrors worse than death.
As on previous occasions the hallucination passed quickly and he was confronted with his dreadful deed. Overcome with grief he resolved to join his family in death and sent a bullet through his brain.

STRYCHNINE WAS SENT
To Mrs. Carman in Jail, on Murder Charge.
New York, July 15.—Sheriff Pettit, of Nassau county, has begun the investigation of an alleged plot to poison Mrs. Florence Carman, who is held at the Mineola jail for the murder of Mrs. Louise Bailey.
A letter containing a quantity of white powder, supposedly strychnine, was received by Mrs. Carman at the jail, with the advice, scrawled on a single sheet of paper: "Take one dose of this and you will feel all right."
The authorities refused to discuss the letter or its contents until the powder could be analyzed and the work of tracing the letter started.
Mrs. Carman turned the letter and its contents over to her husband, Dr. Carman.

Near Mount Albert, Ont., two girls, Misses Louie and Mary Starr, were killed when a train struck their rig.
