SPEECH OF THE KING

IN OPENING THE HOME RULE CONFERENCE

Creates More of a Sensation Than the Convening of the Gathering—The Liberals Are Angry.

London, July 22.—King George, in receiving the Ulster conference at Buckingham Palace, made the following speech:

"It is with feelings of satisfaction and hopefulness that I receive you here to-day, and I thank you for the manner in which you have responded to my summons. It is also a matter for congratulation that the speaker of the House of Commons has consented to preside over your meetings. My intervention at this moment may be regarded as a new departure, but the exceptional circumstances under which you are brought together justifies my action.

"For months we have watched with deep misgivings the course of events in Ireland. The trend has been surely and steadily toward an appeal to force, and to-day the cry of civil war is heard on the lips of the most responsible and sober-minded of my people.

"We have in the past endeavored to act as a civilizing example to the world, and to me it is unthinkable as it must be to you, that should be brought to the brink of fratricidal strife upon issues apparently so capable of adjustment as these are. I am now asked to consider if handled in a spirit of generous compromise.

"My apprehension in contemplating such a dire calamity is intensified by my feeling of sympathy with her people, who have always welcomed me with warm-hearted affection.

"Gentlemen, you represent in one form or another the vast majority of my subjects at home. You also have a deep interest in the dominant one overseas, which are scarcely less concerned in the prompt and friendly settlement of this question.

"I regard you then in this matter as trustees for the honor and peace of all.

"Your responsibilities are indeed great. The time is short. You will, I know, employ it to the fullest advantage and be patient, earnest and conciliatory.

"In view of the magnitude of the interests at stake, I pray God in His infinite wisdom may guide you and your deliberations so that they may result in the joy of peace and an honorable settlement."

Causes Sensation.
The king's speech has created a sensation among political leaders which is hardly less than that caused by the convening of the conference. When the text of the speech was communicated to the members of parliament, last night, the first question of all hands was whether it had been made by the advice of the cabinet or was the king's own work.

No answer has as yet been given. The radicals insist that it was impossible for the ministers to have sanctioned the phrase, "And to-day the cry of civil war is on the lips of the most responsible and most sober-minded of my people."

They declare that the words imply that the unionists are "responsible sober-minded people," for all the talk of civil war has come from them.

The ministerial supporters are consequently in a state of angry irritation, which the liberal morning papers voice in an outspoken manner. The Daily Chronicle calls the speech an amazing one, and warns the king "to beware of raising a great issue which may dwarf all others. The liberal party has not removed the veto power of the House of Lords in order to install the veto of the crown."

The labor members of parliament say the indignation over the calling of the conference has been intensified if possible by the king's speech. Ramsay MacDonald, one of the leaders, said in reference to the civil war phrase: "If that is not taking sides in a political controversy I don't know what it is."

Asquith Accepts Responsibility.
London, July 22.—Premier Asquith, to-day, accepted the full responsibility for the speech delivered by the king yesterday, in addressing the opening conference of the leaders, in response to questions put to him in the commons. Mr. Asquith insisted that the king acted strictly constitutionally in the entire proceeding. It had been sent to him in the regular way and the king left it to the discretion of the conference as to its publicity.

Picnic And Presentation.
One of the most enjoyable picnics held this season was that of the Y. P. A., of St. George's cathedral on Tuesday evening at Lake Ontario Park. The ladies of the association provided the supper and afterwards a beautiful parlor clock was presented by Thomas Hughes to Mr. and Mrs. George Cannon as a slight token of the esteem in which this newly-married couple are held by the association. Miss Edith Evans read the address. Many of those present spoke of the absence of Dean Starr, who always attended these outings and who was greatly missed. The ladies who deserve special mention for the successful way in which the picnic and supper was carried out are Miss E. Lyons, Mrs. Walker, Miss L. Ryder, and Miss T. Ryder. Revs. R. C. Magee and Bourne were present.

Want Poles Removed.
Merchants on Princess street, between Bagot and Wellington streets, are anxious to have the poles on Princess street removed, and it is understood that a deputation of the merchants in that block will wait on one who has refused to give permission for the erection of a pole on his property, thereby holding up the work.

A politician may be able to pack a convention all right, but when it comes to packing a trunk he has to turn the job over to his wife.

When you begin to notice a man's name in the financial columns of the newspapers it's time to look for the wife's name in the society column.

The new engagement ring causes many a finger to point with pride.

IN SPORTING CIRCLES.

Fabre Tells Why He Was Drawn to Kingston.

A Montreal paper sporting editor, who does not seem to have all the facts on hand, tries to excuse Fabre's race in Kingston on June 3rd by the presence of the vice-regal party upon the impressionable French-Canadian.

Asked to tell again how he really happened to do such a foolish thing as to defy the officials of the Quebec amateur athletic union by running at Kingston Fabre replied: "I suppose my enthusiasm ran away with me. When I saw that magnificent crowd of thousands of people waiting and shouting for me I threw caution to the wind and went in the race. But even then I did not intend to run for money, but only for the glory of showing that big crowd what I could do."

Bethel Has Protested.
Bethel senior baseball team has protested the game which was played with St. George's on Monday evening. On Wednesday morning, the president of the association received a protest from Melville Veale, captain of the team.

The game is protested on the grounds that spectators and players crowded out on the diamond in the last innings and in so doing it stopped the St. George's players who were on the bases at the time.

Bethel players claim that the sixth run, which won the game for St. George's, should not have counted, as the runner did not touch third base. The umpire did not give a decision on this part of the play.

A meeting of the executive will be held in the Y.M.C.A. building on Saturday evening at seven o'clock, when the matter will be heard.

S. S. A. A. Game.
At the cricket field, this evening, St. Paul's and Cooke's will play the postponed game of the junior S.S.A.A.A. series. A win for Cooke's will give it the championship.

"Red Rose Talcum" at Gibson's. One of the most interesting developments of the last few months among the magazines is the revival by the Red Book Magazine of the work of Opie Read. It is interesting to note how the stories from a writer of his age and experience differ from those of the modern writers. His stories have a flavor similar to that attained only in perfect munt julep. This is especially true of the story, "Crossing the Line," which is one of the features of the August Red Book.

The Price of Wheat.
London Advertiser. For the last two or three years just about this time conservative papers quote the price of wheat at Winnipeg and at Minneapolis with great apparent satisfaction. It is usually three or four cents a bushel higher in the former than in the latter city. And they glibly assure us the figures prove the value of restricted trade. See how the western farmer benefits by the present arrangement, they tell us. Far better than if we had adopted any reciprocity schemes. But there is one thing that they do not mention. At this season of the year southern wheat is coming plentifully to market, while northern wheat is not harvested. Wheat is flowing freely into Minneapolis, but not into Winnipeg. Consequently prices are higher in Winnipeg than they are in Minneapolis. In a few weeks the supply will increase in the Canadian markets, and prices will go down below what they are now, and what they will be then in the United States? If there were no artificial restrictions in trade, the farmer would send his wheat where he could get the best price at the time, no matter on which side of the boundary line the market might be located.
