BODY OF MISS YORKE WAS BURIED IN CELLAR

Terrible Discovery in the House of Dr. C. K. Robinson at Tamworth--Blood Stains on Mattress Led to Awful Find--An Inquest Opened.

The body of Miss Blanche Yorke, why mysteriously disappeared from Tamworth on the night of July 5th, was found on Tuesday evening about 7.30 o'clock, in the cellar of Dr. Clifford K. Robinson, in that village. Word of the finding of the body was immediately sent to Dr. Cowan, coroner, of Napanee, and to provincial police headquarters at Toronto. Detective Miller came from Toronto to Kingston Tuesday night, and left Wednesday morning for Tamworth to take the case in hand.

Finding of the Body.

On Tuesday Taylor & Co. and W. B. Richardson made a seizure on Dr. Robinson's goods for debt. They, together with the sheriff, went to Robinson's residence to make the seizure. Hugh Elliott, who has possession of the residence, unlocked the house, and on going to the south-east room upstairs, Mr. Taylor missed a new mattress he had sold the doctor. He said: "This looks funny; pull up the blind." On looking at the bed they found blood stains on the rail of the bed. Mr. Elliott said: "This looks suspicious."

They notified the Yorke brothers, who got Dr. Wilson and Dr. Crawford to go with them to Dr. Robinson's residence. The furnace and found pieces of the missing mattress all blood. They then went to another part of the cellar. The door was locked. They broke in and found more of the mattress, covered with blood stains. They then turned over some old boxes, and Edward Yorke, the girl's brother, smelled a bad odor. He said: "Boys, I have found something here."

They got an old fork and turned over some old rags and straw, and under two inches of this, they found Miss Blanche Yorke's remains. They then raised an alarm, and put Constable Wood and two other men with corner, Dr. Cowan, of Napanee, was morning at nine o'clock on the rail on guard for the night. The notified, and opened an inquest this morn.

Miss Yorke's Disappearance.

Miss Yorke had been working at the home of Mrs. Welch, doing dressmaking, some distance from her home. She left there about nine o'clock on the night of July 5th to go home, and was accompanied as far as Dr. Robinson's office by Miss Welch. It was not for two days afterwards that she was missed, as her parents thought that she was still at the Welch house. Then a search was instituted, and county constables and detectives were called in. Daniel McGregor, the fiancé of the missing girl, with her brothers, made a search of the whole neighborhood, thinking Miss Yorke had possibly suicided.

In the midst of the search, and just a week after the disappearance of the girl, Dr. Robinson suddenly left Tamworth and to this day his whereabouts are unknown. It was stated that he had taken the Cape Vincent steamer at Kingston on the 16th of July, and there appears to be no doubt of that.

Finally last week the search efforts lessened, although a guard was kept on Dr. Robinson's house lest he return. He was held under grave suspicion all the time, the view being that he had perhaps performed a criminal operation on the young woman and that she had died as a result. That view seems to have been correct. A Tamworth butcher, also named York, told a strange story the week after the girl's disappearance. He said he had been talking with Dr. Robinson on the night of July 5th, as the latter was on his way home from his office. He saw Miss Yorke some distance away. When he left the doctor to go and get his horse he turned around and saw the young woman making her way to the doctor's house. That was about ten o'clock. Then she vanished, to use his words, "into thin air."

Dr. Robinson is a native of Kingston and is about twenty-four years of age. His father was the late Geo. Robinson, a carriage maker, of this city, and his widowed mother resides on Queen street. The young man graduated at Queen's medical college in April, 1912, as bachelor of medicine. Previous to that he taught school in Frontenac county. He practiced for some time in New Ontario. About six months ago he settled in Tamworth. He was married over a year ago to Miss Spooner, of Glenburnie. His wife and child have been in Kingston for some weeks.

The late Miss Yorke was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Yorke, who live on a farm a mile and a half from Tamworth. She was twenty-seven years of age.

It appears strange that Dr. Robinson, before he left Tamworth, asked the provincial police to make a search of his house. The police reported that they had found nothing. Hence, it is pointed out that with that evidence Dr. Robinson might claim that the body was put in the cellar in his absence.

Prof. W. T. Connell, of Queen's medical college, left on Wednesday morning for Tamworth to perform a post-mortem on the body of the dead girl.

At Lake Ontario Park.

Notwithstanding the coolness of the atmosphere last evening, there was a large attendance at Lake Ontario Park. The pretty Scotch lassies from the land of the heather, the Lawrence Sisters, delighted all by their singing and dancing. The playing on the bag pipes and their rendition of a Gaelic song, carried the audience by storm. Loratts, the blind violinist gave several new solos last night, an Hungarian Fantasia and "Morning, Noon and Night Overture," and in response to repeated recalls he played that popular air of other days, "When You and I Were Young Maggie," and again scored applause. The pictures were fine.
On Thursday evening there will be an entire change of programme, both vaudeville and singing. By request Loratta will play several operatic pieces.

Why Don't They Do It?

Toronto News.
By completing reform of the civil service, by taking the outside service, as well as the inside service, out of politics, parliament will go a long way towards making life tolerable for both ministers and private members. The patronage system has long been a hindrance to public progress, and a source of corruption to administration.
