KINGSTON'S GOOD-BYE TO THE EIGHTY VOLUNTEERS FROM THE 14TH.

Who Are Going On Active Service—Presentations At the Armouries—Col. Hemming's Address.

With the playing of the regimental band, cheering, and the spontaneous wish of the large crowd gathered for valiant service for the empire and a safe return, the over-seas representatives of the 14th regiment left the city for Valcartier on Saturday afternoon.

The contingent, under the command of Capt. George T. Richardson, was eighty strong, the other officers attached to it being Capt. L. F. Guttman, who this year assumed command of "A" company of the 14th, and Lieut. Calvin Day, who was at Harvard university when the war broke out. Capt. Richardson, has for two years been in charge of "C" company of the local rifle corps. Fifteen N. C. O's and men of his company accompanied him to the front. "George," who a few years ago "shone" in hockey and rugby circles, has in his command "Scotty" Davidson, of Portsmouth, who first coming into the limelight with the local Frontenacs, has since won and held his spurs in professional ranks. "Jim" Sutherland, manager of the Frontenacs, saw the boys off.

Kingston was decidedly proud of the eighty riflemen of the 14th, who, after an address by Col. Hemming and presentation at the armouries, marched to the station, where, after a short time spent in leave-taking, with parents, relatives and friends, the train pulled out. The boys presented a noble appearance, marching in fours, with about one hundred of the 14th officers and men on duty at Barrfield following, and adding greatly to the spirit of the send-off. With music the train drew out, the men for the most part light-hearted, but they will likely face more fate music—that of rifle and Maxim and the cannonade. At Valcartier the boys will go into hard training for some time and be assigned to their regiment. Although the majority of the volunteers for the firing line have never been on active service before, there were many campaigners of experience in the ranks, just enough to put back-bone to the company.

As, all over the district, many were the pathetic leave-takings, each mother, father, sister, brother, or sweetheart feeling that it was possibly the last farewell.

Colonel T. D. R. Hemming, the popular commanding officer of the division, spoke in fitting terms to the contingent, when drawn up at the armouries with a large crowd present. He reminded them that having volunteered for service for the empire they were going on the most serious of duties that men had ever been detailed to perform. He hoped and trusted they would be examples in conduct and the discharge of their solemn duties, a credit to the old regiment they were representing, to the third division, to the Canadian continent, and to the old city of Kingston, which is justly proud of her soldiers of the past. Col. Hemming counselled the men to put up with any hardship which they must experience, and never to criticize. Their unit was one cog in an enormous wheel, which must revolve.

The colonel advised the men on parade before him to fight and conduct themselves along the lines that Lord Kitchener advised in his message to the men at the front: "Aid temptation, fear God, and honor the king." He concluded, "Remember your duty and do it faithfully and well."

Following this Major H. J. Dawson, commanding the 14th, presented each of the three officers with revolvers, and five-dollar gold pieces and a hand-knife, suitable for all purposes on the field, was given to each N. C. O. and man. These were farewell gifts from the regiment.

Mayor Shaw and some of the city aldermen were present at the armouries and marched with the parade to the station.

Excursion Season Nearing End.

Only two more weeks remain of the excursion season, and the people will, no doubt, take advantage of the few remaining trips. Last Saturday the steamer Thousand Islander had a large crowd to and from the city on her river trip. This popular steamer has been well patronized all summer. Her route to the Thousand Islands is the finest that could be taken. Proceeding first to Wolfe Island to Gananoque, she crosses the river through the Admiralty Group to Clayton, and then proceeds to Thousand Island Park and Alexandria Bay, returning by Canadian channel.

Riflemen At Ranges.

The Kingston Rifle association members put in some good practice at 200, 500 and 600 yards on Saturday afternoon, when the following scores were made: J. H. Barrett, 98; D. T. McManus, 96; F. J. Coldham, 95; W. A. Milton, 95; Rev. J. Elliott, 91; C. H. Elliott, 91; Major Leatherland, 90; H. S. Morgan, 89; S. C. Cuthbertson, 89; W. J. Millard, 88; H. Dawler, 81; W. G. Baker, 86; C. Cuthbertson, 85; W. J. Rutland, 82.

Members are reminded that the annual prize shoot will take place about the first week in October and that there will be the usual practice shoots each Saturday from now onwards.

The German steamer Schneefels, that was seized by the British in the Mediterranean recently, carried a large consignment of tea for the Salada Tea Co., which was fortunately insured. The war risk paid was in the neighborhood of six cents per pound of tea. It is now anticipated that the Schneefels will be tied up at Gibraltar until the close of the war.

Fred. Comley, Tweed, has left to join his regiment—the Devons—in England. His wife and child will remain in Tweed.

IN THE CHURCHES.

Rev. W. T. Prittle Occupied the Pulpit in Cooke's.

In the absence of Rev. J. W. McIntosh who is on his holidays, Rev. W. T. Prittle, Copper Cliff who is also on his holidays here, supplied in Cooke's Presbyterian church on Sunday. He chose as his title for the sermon, "The Value of Self-respect, Both Individual and National." He explained in a clear, concise manner the basis of self-respect, how it originated in divine faith. This he explained, also referred to a nation's self-respect. Great Britain had become a powerful nation by helping other countries to help themselves. To show that she was on the right side in the present trouble, so many people after carefully weighing the origin, had centered on her side. He referred to an address given by Col. T. D. R. Hemming to the men in the armouries before they left for Valcartier on Friday night. The colonel said that though many of the soldiers would be called upon to do what would seem to be unimportant tasks, the success of Great Britain depended on successful completion of all these tasks. The preacher asked the congregation to pray for peace and show the Kaiser and his staff that it was not possible for greed to slaughter so many innocent men. There was a very large congregation.

A FAMILY OF WARRIORS.

The Jamiesons, of Kingston, Have Always Responded.

Joseph Jamieson, a young Kingston member of "A" Battery, R.C.H.A., who is going over the sea for active service with that corps, comes of a military family. His grandfather, the late Joseph Jamieson, was at Cornwall in 1866, during the Fenian troubles, and his father, William Jamieson, who resides at 417 Johnson street, did duty in Fort Henry with the 14th Regiment in 1855. The young artilleryman served with the Canadian contingent in the Boer war. His brother, Carl, of Dayton, Ohio, has the war fever, and writes that he may come over and offer his services on the second Canadian contingent should one be sent to the front.

Not A Rifle Shot.

When an auto tire burst near Angrove's garage on Sunday afternoon about 1.30 o'clock, people thought one of the 14th sentries at the military stores building at the corner of Bagot and Brock streets, had shot a German. The sound was exactly like a rifle shot. One of the sentries on the walk, when he heard the explosion, pointed his rifle in the air, and when his comrades came running out to ask what the trouble was, he informed them he had taken a shot at an airship.
