A TOUCHING SCENE

AT SERVICE IN ST. MARY'S CATHEDRAL FOR PIUS X.

Solemn Pontifical High Mass Was Celebrated By His Grace Archbishop Spratt—Edifice Was Draped in Deepest Mourning and Crowded With Clergy and Laity.

When that relentless foe—Death—claims for its victim the head of a nation, all who come under his way are instinctively moved to some expression of public regard and sympathy. If the one stricken happens to be, not only the spiritual ruler of millions of faithful subjects disseminated all over Christendom, but a father most kind as well, then, indeed, can the genuine grief be understood, for a great shadow encompasses the family.

Plus the Tenth was a pope of the people, holy and humble, and a stranger to show. The great and glorious are not always understood, the saints are. From every side, Catholic and non-Catholic, have come sincere expressions of regret. Respect to the dead, as nothing else, shows the culture of the living.

Kingston would not be last in offering up prayers for the repose of the soul of the beloved pontiff. Thursday morning a solemn pontifical high mass was celebrated by His Grace Archbishop Spratt, assisted by Rev. J. T. Hogan, of Perth, as deacon, Rev. M. McDonald, of Portmouth as subdeacon, Rev. Dean Murray, of Brockville, acted as high priest, and Rev. J. H. McDonald, of Enterprise, as master of ceremonies.

The spacious edifice draped in deepest mourning and packed with clergy and laity, presented a touching scene. The music by the joint choirs of boys and men was vivid and impressive in the extreme, the stirring strains of the "Libera me Domine" sending an intense thrill of emotion through the great multitude bent in prayerful homage and filial devotion.

Delivered Eloquent Sermon.

The paucity was delivered by Rev. Father Duane, Jesuit, of New York, who is preaching the priest's retreat. It was pronounced by all as one of the most eloquent and scholarly pronouncements heard in the cathedral in some time. He chose for his text these words: "God is wonderful in all His saints and in all His works." He then proceeded to apply the text to the subject of his discourse. Dying the acknowledged leader of Christendom, Giuseppe Sartò, was born the son of peasant parents. Great sacrifices had to be made by them to afford him an education. And though his years at school and his early years in priestly hood were not characterized by any particular brilliancy, still they were marked by a studiousness and a keen observation of men and events which later stood him in great stead. These traits of character, coupled with his record as a most efficient administrator, and his untiring zeal and labors among the poor and lowly, obtained for him his elevation to the bishopric of Mantua in 1884. The capable manner in which he utilized the products of his earlier years of study, observation, and experience, to combat here the rampant errors of socialism, materialism, and agnosticism, merited his promotion, in 1893, to the patriarchate of Venice, and in the same year to the cardinalate. Then in 1903 came his election to the see of Peter. Most unwilling though he was at first to have this honor and burden cast upon his shoulders, he finally accepted it in a spirit of obedience and resignation to God's will.

True to his record, as an internal administrator, he began by providing for the more efficient education of the Italian clergy. He closed the smaller seminaries and amalgamated them into larger provincial ones, which he furnished with better instructors and equipment. Next he appointed a commission to codify the canon law of the church, and remove all obsolete enactments from the statute books. In order to cope with modern research in scriptural studies he established a Biblical commission to restore the Vulgate to the text of St. Jerome and to protect the word of God from modern materialistic criticism.

But it was his relation with the French government that Pius showed his resource and strength. After the iniquitous Law of Separation dispersing the religious orders, and confiscating church property, some of the church leaders in France were disposed to follow a short-sighted opportunism and consent to the formation by the government of certain associations of worship, and though fears were expressed for the future of the church, and the world predicted dissensions both within and without her fold, if Pius turned a deaf ear to the government's proposals, the world forgot that Christ had promised to be with his vicar "even to the end of the world." And when Pius, relying on this divine assistance, promptly refused any such concessions, he was treated to the magnificent spectacle of the whole body of French bishops and clergy unconditionally supporting him. That his action was justified is abundantly proved by the most unprecedented Catholic revival in France, the attendance of church-goers being doubled.

And finally, true to his earlier history, as a constant and earnest preacher, he stated that we have perhaps his most important work in his propaganda against modernistic writers, within the fold of the church. Though some of these men were counted among the intellectual lights of the church, and though Pius knew that a break with them would mean untold suffering, he did not for a moment hesitate to point out to them the error and the danger of their position. And further, when through intellectual pride some of them refused to submit, he immediately removed them out of the fold of the church. His cries outside of the church called it the intolerance of the Vatican, and said many harsh things, but the preacher contended later results more than justified his action. For the lives that have been since saved, the ten of those who refused submission showed that there was really no real belief in their hearts in the traditional dogmas of the church. In an eloquent peroration the preacher thanked Almighty God for having given His church such a leader and father, and reminded his hearers of the obligation which rested on them to strive to model their lives after that of their lost chief, making them lives of devotion, labor, sacrifice and active opposition to error.

ARRESTED BY THE POLICE.

Two Men Supposed to Be German Spies Detained.

On the complaint of a number of citizens, Police Constables Samuel Arnie and Leslie Clark placed under arrest late on Wednesday night two strangers in the city, who were regarded as German spies, but after they were detained at the police station a short time they were allowed to go.

The men are recently out from Denmark and on Wednesday afternoon they were at Lake Ontario Park. They went into a bush nearby and their actions were such as to lead people to think that they were spies. One of the men had a grip and changed his clothes.

The men were watched by Kingstonians and were placed under arrest when they were in a shop on Ontario street. They left on the night train for Montreal.

BOWLING CONTESTS.

Kingston Teams Will Meet Brockville Bowlers.

On Friday three teams from the Queen's bowling club will play friendly games with Brockville teams at Brockville. The teams going down will likely be skipped by Dr. Watson, J. M. Elliott and H. W. Newman.

There was no scheduled bowling match played on Wednesday evening. The bowling programme is nearly finished with W. R. Sills leading and H. W. Newman second for the championship.

Had Lively Times.

Wednesday evening was the busiest the local garages had had this year. There were fourteen cars taken care of in one garage and four were turned away. It was a record day in the garages and some of the liveries had to take care of cars. There is no apparent reason for the sudden rush in the touring business. As a result of it practically no mechanical repairs could be made. One merchant gave as the reason that the cold weather is setting in to their homes and a big number, last night, were returning by way of Montreal.

Will Purchase Hydroplane.

R. S. Waldron will next season likely have boats to enter into all classes of races. Instead of displacement boats such as he now races with it is Mr. Waldron's intention to purchase a hydroplane to contest several series of races run off each summer at Lake Ontario and River St. Lawrence points. Being flushed with victory by defeating the Americans out of the possession of the Col. A. G. Staples trophy he is now of the opinion that a course is open for him to challenge for the international gold cup.

Held A Picnic.

Probably the last picnic of the season was held at Brophy's Point, on Wednesday afternoon, when the victorious St. Luke's Sunday school basketball team held afternoon's outing to celebrate the fine showing it made this season in the Sunday School League. To this picnic were invited the other teams in the same league, and all had a fine time in various amusements. An exciting basketball match between St. Luke's and Bethel was won by the latter.

Married On Wednesday.

The marriage of Miss Mildred Rees, of this city, to Joseph Lockridge, Centreville, took place at Sydenham Street Methodist church parsonage on Wednesday afternoon. A few friends were present. Mr. and Mrs. Lockridge left for Toronto and Petrolia on the noon train. On their return they will reside at Enterprise.

Remains To Come Here.

The body of Miss Minnie Tobin, aged thirty-five years, a distinguished nurse who died on Wednesday night at Sylvan Beach sanitarium, Oneida, N. Y., is to be brought to Kingston for interment. She is a native of this city and resided here for twenty years. Her parents live in Kingston on Division street.

FURIOUS BOMBARDMENT BEFORE ITS OCCUPANCY

Germans Met With Little Resistance at Namur, Says Belgian Officer.

London, Aug. 27.—The Parris correspondent of the Times, who had been on the battlefield earlier in the fighting, says that he met a few miles outside of Philippeville a Belgian officer and the paymaster-general of Namur, who told him that the town of Namur had been occupied by the Germans. It had been subjected to a furious bombardment and the German fire was so well regulated that the first few shots had silenced Fort Marchevette on the north-east and Fort Haizert on the east. Fort Andoy also suffered badly and was almost out of action.

The story continues: "The Germans entered the town without encountering much resistance. Fort Dave, at the south-east of the town, and Fort Wepion, on the opposite side of the Meuse, and the line of forts to the north still resist."

"In spite of the elaborate preparations wire entanglements through which was passed an electrical current of 1,500 volts, and the liberal use of broken glass, Namur fell into the hands of the Germans on Sunday. The Belgians evacuated the town in an orderly manner. All rolling stock and motor cars were removed, and the station master left on the last locomotive with the railway cash box under his arm. The Belgian troops, numbering about 3,000, passed under the protection of a French cavalry screen, within the French lines."

The correspondent adds: "Thus the Germans have done much to win mastery over the two banks of the Meuse almost as far as Dinant. They, however, left behind them six of the eight forts of Namur which, it is expected, will yet cause them considerable annoyance."

OCCUPY NEW GROUND.

Four Thousand Acres on Other Side of River.

Valcartier Camp, Que., Aug. 27.—So many Canadians have answered the call of the country that the government has found it necessary to purchase more land at Valcartier. Announcement was made that an additional four thousand acres on the opposite side of the Jacques Cartier river from the existing main camp have been secured to provide for the overflow. The new section will be occupied by the artillerymen.

There are now some 19,400 men in camp. When reveille sounded on Wednesday the soldiers jumped from between their warm blankets and found that an inch of ice had formed in their wash basins during the night. Far too many officers have offered their services, and quite a number of them, realizing that it will be impossible to secure commissions in the first contingent, have made application to be associated with the troops as privates.

Dry canteens have been opened in various parts of the camp. Col. Bridges, A.D.S.M., announced that frequent tests had been made of the water supply and all the samples taken had been found to be absolutely sterile.

Anxious For News.

All along the line of the C.P.R. railway, from Kingston to Renfrew, there is great anxiety felt in regard to the war and daily throngs of people assemble at the various stations and seek for information as to the progress of events. The conductors of trains are constantly solicited for copies of papers so that they might read the latest concerning the tragedy in the old world.

A Big War Map Free.

On Saturday next the Whig will publish a full page map of the present theatre of war. It will be the largest and clearest yet put out by any Canadian paper. Be sure and get a copy.

Major Simpson has arranged for four of the batteries of the division to leave for Valcartier on Friday. The 14th field battery of Cobourg and the 34th of Belleville will leave by C. N. R. direct for Valcartier. The 5th of Kingston and the 8th of Gananoque go by G. T. R. as far as Montreal and transfer to the C.N.R. It is expected that the 14th regiment will send about ten more volunteers for overseas service to Valcartier on Friday where they will join the rest of the contingent. This makes over ninety from the regiment.

Nearly 1,900 more soldiers will leave Toronto during the next three days for Valcartier.
