LEFT FOR VALCARTIER

THE LAST CONTINGENT TO GO FROM KINGSTON.

Mayor Shaw and Col. Rathbun spoke to the men and gave good advice. The parting scenes at the G. T. R. Station.

Amid the cheers of thousands of citizens the Grand Trunk train carrying the 5th Field battery and the 14th Regiment left the Grand Trunk junction station on Friday afternoon at 4:20 o'clock for Valcartier.

The sight of the wives, mother fathers and friends of the men, who left for the front, as they stood on the station platform will long be remembered by those who gathered at the station. Many of the women crying while others were doing their best to keep back the tears that seemed determined to come.

To the music furnished by the band of the 14th Regiment the volunteers paraded along on Ontario streets from "Cote de Pontre" barracks and boarded the train at the foot of Johnston street.

The members of the 14th Regiment paraded at the armories at three o'clock and were met by the band and proceeded to the barracks where they lined up on the barrack square. A number of the men of the rifle regiment, who are on guard duty, joined in the procession and marched to the station. After the riflemen left the armories they proceeded along Montreal street to Princess-down Princess and along Ontario street.

At Cote de Pontre barracks they lined up on the square and were addressed by Mayor Shaw and Lieut. Col. E. W. Rathbun. The mayor when addressing the men, urged on them the necessity of conducting themselves in a good manner. He stated that the kindest wishes of the citizens of Kingston would always be with them and he hoped that they would not do anything for which they need be ashamed.

"My only regret is that I am not going with you" was the statement of Col. Rathbun when addressing the volunteers. He urged on the men the necessity of doing as they were told and always obey their superior officers no matter how hard the task might be.

After the volunteers gave three cheers for Mayor Shaw and Col. Rathbun they formed in a procession, headed by the band, and proceeded to the railroad station where they entrained for Valcartier. The men had only been at the station a few minutes when the train arrived and they were soon on their way to the place of mobilization.

At Gananoque the local men were joined by the 8th Field battery in command of the Major Russell Britton. The 5th Field battery, almost two hundred strong, was loudly cheered as it marched along the street. A number of the men were forced to go in civilian clothes on account of there not being enough uniforms in the stores. When the men arrive at the camp grounds they will be furnished with an entirely new equipment.

the men. For some days Mrs. E. H. Pense, Miss Bessie Smythe, Mrs. Hal loway Waddell, Miss Mabel Brownfield, Miss Agnes Richardson, Mrs. W. H. Craig, Miss Mildred Jones, Mrs. Hansford Hara, and Miss Emma Pense spent many hours arranging for the lunches for the men. They arranged that each man would be furnished with three lunches as he would be on the train for a period of almost twenty hours. A large wagon was secured by the ladies to carry the eatables to the train.

It is expected that the men will arrive at Valcartier on Saturday. They will transfer to the C.N.R. at Montreal.

 W. J. Reid, Gananoque, found quite a curiosity in his garden. In pulling some carrots he came across one which, though covered by the earth, seemed unlike the rest. On closer observation he found it to be a piece of bone, through which had grown two small carrots. They were perfectly formed, and had matured from the seed by coming up through the hollow of the bone.

IN SPORTING CIRCLES

GREAT DEAL OF UNREST IN OTTAWA OVER FOOTBALL.

Eddie Elliott, of Kingston, will not be on the Line-up This Year—International League Will Likely Close on Labor Day.

There is a little unrest in rugby football circles in Ottawa just now over the 1914 Big Four team. A line quartette is lost to the red, white and black in Eddie Gerard, Eddie Elliott, Silver Quilly and Reid Tubman. These players held up the team last year in a marked degree. They were stars in their respective positions. Gerard has turned professional, Quilly is entering McGill, Elliott will not return to the capital, while Tubman has gone to war.

The team will have to reorganize back line, but there appears considerable timber from which to recruit a good running and kicking division. Boucher, Johnstone, McCann and Gillman, took the rear guard at the present writing. Unless inroads are made on youngsters, the line will be made up of several veterans with only a few youngsters. Megloughlin, Emmerson, Vaughan, Ryan, Cassells, Lunnings and Holly are all available.

Bombardier Wells, the English heavyweight, has taken up golf, and is showing almost as much proficiency with driver and putter as with the gloves and spiked shoes. Wells is a sprinter of rare speed, running close to even time in the hundred, but his golf prowess was unexpected. With less than three months' practice he has turned in some excellent cards. He is a splendid driver, getting both distance and direction in his stroke.

The baseball season of 1914, already noted a period of unusual occurrences in the national sport, promises to establish a record for the purchase and exchange of players in the big leagues.

Lassie McGregor, the Pittsburg-jumped mare, the property of Henry Oliver, has to date been the sensation of the grand circuit season. Including the killing at Buffalo of a $5,000 stake, Lassie McGregor has brought her owner just $20,750 since the Cleveland meeting.

Miss Florence Wilkoff, of Calumet and an odd experience in her match with Mrs. C. F. Henneberry, of Glenview, on the Wheaton Links, in the women's western golf championship.

On the fourth green a snake coiled itself around Miss Wilkoff's ball and her caddy killed it with a midget. In doing so he moved the ball, which cost Miss Wilkoff a stroke and she was beaten 2 up.

The old debate as to who is the greatest ball player of the present day and that other enduring argument as to the greatest ball player of all time probably never will be settled. The truth of the matter is that each fan has his own impression of the thing so firmly and securely entrenched in his dome that after you have proved to him conclusively that his favorite player is worthy of more consideration than his, he leaves you with the impression that while your mind is hopelessly diseased you are probably harmless enough to be allowed to run around loose. Personally, as far as a matter of usefulness is concerned, we have always stood out for the infielder against the outfielder. Take Cobb and Collins, for instance, who cover as much ground in their respective positions as any other men. Cobb had 300 chances to retire a batter last year and Collins 804. Speaker had 488 chances to make an error during the season. Weaver had 980 chances and McInnis 1,595 opportunities.
