Let me talk to you about being "Run-Down"

When your system is undermined by worry or overwork—when your vitality is lowered—when you feel "anyhow"—when your nerves are "on edge"—when the least exertion tires you—you are in a "run-down" condition. Your system is like a flower drooping for want of water. And just as water revives a drooping flower—so Wincarnis gives new life to a "run-down" constitution. From even the first wincarnisful you can feel it stimulating and invigorating you, and as you continue, you can feel it surcharging you whole system with new health—new strength—new vigour and new life. The result will delight you.

The Grand Opera House was opened for the season on Friday night, with Ruth St. Denis, oriental dancer, and her company as the first attraction, and lovers of artistic dancing were given a rare treat, as the programme was a pretty of face, Miss St. Denis was a world-wide reputation as a dancer, to many reasons. The attraction indeed merited a big audience. Rounds of hearty applause throughout the evening bespoke the pleasure of the audience. Miss St. Denis, who holds a world-wide reputation as a dancer, was seen at her best in oriental, Greek, and modern dances, and she was assisted by a clever company, composed of Hilda Beyer, Alice Martin and "Ted" Shawn. Tall, slender and charming, Miss St. Denis commands attention the moment she appears on the stage. Her Indian dances were most interesting. Her opening dance, "The Hindu Snake Charmer," was exceedingly good. In this Miss St. Denis depicts the snake charmer and the robes which she charmed. Dances of old Japan charmed the audience, as did also The Peacock, a Legend of India. The assisting company was very good in its dances. The audience was also favored with a number of the latest ball room dances, including the Hesitation waltz.

The opera house has been given every attention during the summer months, and is now looking epic and span for the season's rush.

Boyer-Vincent Stock Company. Which comes to the Grand Opera House next Thursday will present only the very best and latest royalty attractions for which they carry all special scenery and electrical effects so that every production is presented in complete in every detail. This company plays a three nights engagement here opening with the great four act comedy drama "A Jealous Wife," which has never failed to give the very best of satisfaction everywhere.

J. K. Hackett in Othello. James K. Hackett's forthcoming engagement at the Grand on Monday and Tuesday, September 7th and 8th, will attract every lover of fine acting, especially as he will be seen, for the first time in his professional career in the title part of Shakespeare's immortal tragedy "Othello." The occasion will be one which no student of the drama can afford to miss.

One soldier of the 5th field battery did not share in the excitement of the troops leaving the city on Friday afternoon. This lone member of the corps was seen sitting at the corner of Bay and Sydenham streets, when a Whig reporter happened to be passing by. Whether he will proceed to Valcartier at a later date is not known.
