

WOUNDED TOMMIES

LIGHTS AND SHADOWS OF WAR WHEN TRAIN ARRIVES.

The Adaptable British—French Soldiers With Fixed Bayonets Drawn Up at Station as British Wounded Arrive—Humors of the Situation.

London, Aug. 27.—The railway journey from Paris to Boulogne yesterday took exactly thirteen hours, the train taking an amazingly circuitous route, meandering through the west of France.

"On the way we fell into many surprising and significant scenes. One of these was when we suddenly heard a shout of command in English, and saw a body of men in khaki with Red Cross armlets suddenly run along the platform to an incoming train from the north, with stretchers and drinking bottles.

"A party of British wounded had arrived from the scene of action between Mons and Charleroi. We were kept back by French soldiers with fixed bayonets, but through the hedges of steel had the painful experience of seeing a number of British soldiers with bandaged heads and limbs descending from the troop train. They looked spent with fatigue and pain after the journey, but some of them were sufficiently high-spirited as well as lightly wounded enough to laugh at their sufferings and give hearty cheers to comrades who came to relieve them with medical care.

"We Got It In Neck."

"I had a few words with one of them and questioned him about the action, but like all British soldiers he was very reticent in his descriptions, and the most arresting sentence in his narrative was the reiterated assertion that 'We got it in the neck.' I understood from him, however, that the British troops had stood their ground well under the terrific fire, and that the Germans had been given 'what for'.

"This was not very illuminating for the purposes of a military history, but I fancy it describes accurately enough the position of affairs from the point of view of the English Tommy.

"I saw the British soldier on this journey in many unexpected places, and adapting himself to unusual environments with his characteristic pliancy. I saw him at dawn in small camps surrounded with haystacks and farmyard chickens drinking fresh milk offered to him by French peasant women, with who he seems to have established a perfectly adequate 'inkua Francais.' I saw him looking after the shunting of Belgian and Belgian engines and trucks laden with forage as though this had been his job all his life. I saw him scrawling up the words 'hot water' and 'cold water' above taps in a French railway station, carrying babies of Belgian refugees, giving cigarettes to German prisoners and rounding up the French cattle, which in due time will be turned into French beer-steaks.

"I am unable to mention the names of the stations through which we passed, and in which I had ample time to look around, but at one of these I saw for the first time large bodies of Belgian troops. They had come across from Ghent, and were crowded into the troop trains where they lay down to sleep. At first sight there was something comical in these top-batted soldiers, but there was really nothing humorous in the aspect of these weary, haggard men who had borne the first shock of the German invaders. I asked them where they were going, and they answered in French: 'We don't know. We know know. We know nothing about anything. What is the latest news?'

Corps Retrieves Failure.

Paris, Aug. 29.—The 15th French army corps, which had been sent to the rear since its serious trial in its last previous engagement, has been reconstructed into one of two combined armies, and executed a very brilliant counter-attack in the Vesuzia valley. The bearing of these troops has been very fine, showing that they retain no memory or effect from their surprise of August 20.

Seething With Insurrection.

Rome, Aug. 27.—The correspondent of the Meissagiero, at Trieste, Austria, confirms the rumor of insurrectionary movements in all the provinces of Austria. Executions almost daily are being held en masse, and all the fortresses are filled with Austrian prisoners.

The correspondent asserts that one Bohemian regiment that refused to fight against Serbia was surrounded by six German and Hungarian regiments and completely annihilated.

The Statement Denied.

Washington, Aug. 29.—Japan, through Vice-Consul Chinda, its ambassador here, issued a denial of reports that Japanese warships would dash into the Adriatic after the Austrian squadrons, and that Japanese troops would be sent to Europe to take part in the hostilities.

Send Orders Through Holland for Ship Parts.

London, Aug. 29.—London firms dealing in specialties used in the construction of ships, report having received, but refused, orders from German shipbuilding firms for material through agents located in the neutral country of Holland. It is legally criminal for British subjects to deal with the enemy's agents.

Three Millions in Arms.

Paris, Aug. 29.—In a high quarter here I am informed that the Germans have no fewer than 3,000,000 men in arms, of which 2,000,000 are in Belgium, Lorraine and Alsace.

WHAT A REFUGEE SAW.

Thrilling Experience of Village Hat-Maker in Belgium.

Paris, Aug. 27.—From one of the many Belgian refugees who have arrived here from the Northern frontier I have obtained the following account of his experience, which are typical of many others. He was a hatmaker, living at Angelais, on the Sambre, between Namur and Charleroi.

"It was Thursday afternoon," he said, "when we learned that Uhlans had been seen four miles away and we warned the French Hussars stationed at the river bridge near which I lived. Forty of them went off and returned an hour later without a scratch, having killed three German horsemen. The remainder had fled. On Friday morning the enemy approached carefully. Four hundred French infantry held the bridge under cover of the artillery fire. The Prussians forced their way into the village and began to throw into the houses grenades which set them on fire. When the street was in flames my wife and I fled on foot to the village aise. On the way I suddenly came across a party of French and German soldiers looking at each other. Shivering we crouched down for half an hour, fearing lest a stray shot would reach us.

"At last we reached Chatelet, near Charleroi, where everyone was in flight. We stayed there for the night, and in the morning we had just got into the last train for Mons when a shell broke through the station roof.

LURED TO DEATH.

Paris, Aug. 29.—A refugee from Merbes-Le-Chateau, a town thirteen miles from Mons, said on his arrival here that 350 Belgian riflemen posted in his town kept several thousand Germans at bay for three days until a German spy, disguised in a Belgian uniform, showed them a path which enabled the Germans to take the riflemen in their rear. All were killed except twelve villagers.

BERLIN DESPATCHES ARE LIES.

Conan Doyle to Reply on Behalf of War Office.

London, Aug. 29.—Characterizing the German official statements which are being circulated broadcast and are declared to be sent from Germany by wireless, as "mendacious and absolutely at variance with the facts," the War Office today announced that it will reply to them. At the same time it was announced that A. Conan Doyle, noted author has agreed to the War Office's request to reply to the German utterance.

WAR BULLETINS.

Two German cruisers destroyed; sunk by British fleet off Heligoland. Another cruiser captured. British loss is small.

The burning of the Belgium city of Louvain by Germans is characterized as a descent to the dark ages.

Belgians say the German troops were fired on by their own sentries who mistook them for townspeople of Louvain. The German commander then ordered forty thousand residents out at the point of bayonets and with bombs and cannon they were fired at a hundred points.

Burgomasters and prominent citizens of Louvain were executed before the city burned.

Latest bulletin from London and Paris war bureaus say, "all is satisfactory."

Russian troops have made another fifteen miles towards Berlin on Friday. Great excitement in London over naval victory at Heligoland, which is not officially confirmed, yet reports say the British loss was very small.

Five additional British cruisers have joined the North Atlantic squadron to convoy troops to France.

Forty thousand Indian troops are already on the way to France via the Suez canal and the Mediterranean.

The German rush towards Paris has again been checked.

Two further contingents will be mobilized by Canada.

Russian troops continue to press on towards Berlin.

At Bologne British survivors say thirty English only survived out of two thousand caught by German artillery fire.

The Italian mobilization will be ordered next week.

Russian successes are acknowledged by the Kaiser. Two million Russians have now crossed the Vistula river.

AWAY TO THE WAR.

A Splendid Send-Off For the Gananogue Men.

Gananogue, Aug. 29.—Never in the history of Gananogue, perhaps, has a heartier response ever been made to a public holiday proclamation than to that of Mayor Gibson requesting all good citizens to observe yesterday afternoon as a half-holiday. Very early in the afternoon the crowd began to collect at the river front near the new armory until, by the middle of the afternoon, the street was congested with carriages and automobiles and the walks and door yards thronged with men, women and children packed in one solid mass. During this time the greater part of the battery men were engaged in obliterating the last vestiges of an encampment occupied by them for the last ten days. Shortly after four o'clock, headed by the Citizens' band and the local Veterans Association in the position of honor, No. 3 battery in command of Major Russell H. Britton, Capt. Stewart, and Lieuts. Allan Gillies, and Howard Taylor, together with a rank and file of 167 N. C. O.'s and men, lined up for parade through the town to enter the rendezvous camp at Valcartier. The factories of the town were all closed, the mercantile establishments were all closed and it is estimated that almost the entire population of the town was lined along the line of march to greet and say good-bye to those leaving to fight their battles on foreign fields. German militarism could not surpass the enthusiasm displayed on this momentous never-to-be-forgotten occasion. Women with bouquets and husbands in the ranks struggling with emotions hard to repress, sweethearts looking perhaps for the last time on their loved ones, made the occasion possibly one of the most heart-breaking ever known in this section. The atmosphere was intense, the vast concourse cheering as it followed to the wharf where the boys entrained.

Then came the crucial test of the last good-bye, a scene too sacred to unveil, but as such thrilling interest that its effect will not soon wear off. Then followed rounds of cheering the train pulled out bearing the brave band of men who have offered their lives to the service of their country.

Through the kindly thoughtfulness of Mrs. George Taylor, (wife of Senator Taylor) each of the local contingent bore with him a pocket testament, her personal gift. These were presented by her, in person, on Thursday afternoon, and will doubtless be prized by each possessor.

Y., is spending a short time in town guest of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Sherry, King street.

Grip Thief in "Nightsies."

Altoona, Pa., Aug. 29.—When J. E. Gibboney raised the skylight of V. A. Asward's brewery last night and dropped into the building, he landed in the arms of two constables, who had been waiting for the person who had been periodically stealing a case of beer from the stockroom. Gibboney was in his night clothes, having come from his home, nearby.

Good Advance in Cheese.

Pictou, Aug. 28.—At the Pictou cheese board to-day 1,095 colored cheese were boarded and after considerable competition among the buyers, were all sold to Dr. Pugh at 14 9-16c. All the factories show a considerable falling off in the quantity made. The price realized shows an advance of over one cent per pound on last week's price.

ATTACKED IN A FOG

CARNAGE WAS APPALLING IN SIEGE OF NAMUR.

German Siege Guns Worked Terrible—Havoc—Infantry Too Late—Fought in a Fog.

London, Aug. 29.—The Times correspondent at Ostend has obtained the following details of the siege of Namur from two Belgian soldiers: They informed me that the Germans attacked the town during a dense fog. For two days the bombardment never ceased. The open town was reduced to ruin, and the carnage among the inhabitants was appalling. The forts of Condelee and Marcheville were silenced by the heavy German siege guns of eleven-inch calibre.

The 148th French Regiment of the line coming from Givet proudly marched into the town to the strains of "The Marseillaise," this during a murderous hail of projectiles. Also they had arrived too late, for Namur had become an inferno, and at mid-day the order was given to retreat. As an instance of the scientific manner in which the Germans conduct their operations, the first shells fired into Namur were directed against the wireless installation at the top of the hill overlooking the ancient citadel.

Call Issued for Londoners.

London, Aug. 29.—Lord Esher, president of the London Territorial Association, has called for 30,000 Londoners to replace the territorials who volunteered to go to the front.

Palmer Goes With British.

Washington, Aug. 29.—Secretary of State Bryan notified the American ambassador in Berlin, the press associations of America had agreed upon Frederick Palmer as their representative with the British army at the front. Ambassador Page was instructed to notify the British foreign office to this effect.

Say Namur Holds Out.

Paris, Aug. 29.—The Havas news agency declares to-day that two motorcyclists attached to the Belgian army, who arrived in Paris this morning from Namur, declare that the forts at Namur are still holding out and they are not even ready to surrender.

Kaiser Orders Relief For Prussia.

London, Aug. 29.—The Rome correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph company says: "A despatch from Berlin states that Emperor William has telegraphed his council of ministers, charging the council with the immediate organization of all possible relief for the population of his beloved province of Prussia."

Russians to March on Berlin.

London, Aug. 29.—The czar's troops are invading East Prussia in great numbers. One report says that there are 8,000,000 men in the field, divided into four great armies, and that Russians plan to attack Berlin within three weeks. The main Russian advance, it is expected, will be towards Posen from the south.

It is said that a number of the forts in East Prussia will not be attacked, but that they will be isolated.

Paris, Aug. 29.—Colonel Omobchin Russian military attaché here is quoted by the Journal as having remarked, in an interview, that he could say without indiscretion that the German armies were about to invade Western Prussia. After crossing the Vistula, he said, the Russians would march straight to Berlin.

Little Oddities Of War.

A London paper published a request from a lonely "Tommy" for the address of someone with whom he might correspond while at the front. The next day the paper received 552 letters from the would-be correspondents, the list including clergymen, old ladies and young girls. One was selected and the address forwarded to "lonely Tommy."

The Countess of Egmont has lost her German waiter at Exmouth. He was arrested and taken to Exeter barracks.

In the British Museum reading room the greatest present demand is for books on the Napoleonic wars. Seeing his arm lying on the ground a wounded trooper brought from the front, said he picked it up and ran for several yards before falling unconscious. The trooper said he felt no pain when his arm was shot off, and did not know anything had happened until he saw the arm on the ground. He said he did not want to leave it "as meat for the Prussian dogs."

DON'T WORRY!

Some Good Advice to the Bulletin Readers.

Don't let the war get on your nerves. While Kitchener, and "Bobs," and French.

Each at his station Britain serves, And Englishmen defend the French, The Germans cannot win.

Don't wring your hands because we lose. A town or two in old Lorraine, Don't think, because we get bad news, The sun will never rise again, That Britain is all in.

The history of all the wars That ever were fought is much the same. In this respect, the final scores Determine who has won the game And who will get the "gate."

So, go about your business, men, Earn every dollar that you can, And from each hundred spare just ten.

To help fill up the dinner can Of those less fortunate.

Don't worry, better men than you And I will steer the ship of state; Don't work yourself into a stew, Because the ships of Britain wait The German feet's advance.

Do all you can to help along A righteous cause, but wear a smile, Be cheerful, make your life a song, Don't worry, and just wait awhile For Britain and for France.
