in, is: "If We Can't Make It a Draw." 3.—An American Wood, who has London from Berlin, ing account of con- man capital. "Life ally the same as there is no more there is in London. d is the same as be- ne cafes are all open and playing. There many concerts as ue- theatres still have e for suppressed ex- is very little to show a in a state of war. e-refugees." Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Jeffrey, at J. Genge's. Apparently no one pains to be econom- ized that there was the country to last 18 was also optimism of the war.

"The general view was," said Mr. Wood, "that if the Germans do not win, they will make it a draw. They are satisfied that their army never can be beaten, and that the moment the Allies can hope for it a retreat from France, they are confident that they will be able to defend their own country for an indefinite time."

"I asked two officers if they had considered the responsibility of defeat. One said: 'Yes, it may be just possible, but if so, we should not be here. In all Germany there would not be more than 50,000 men left between the ages of 17 and 50.'"

"My own opinion is that war will be stopped by mediation within a month. But when I suggested it to a German officer, he said: 'It's no good talking to us about mediation till we have occupied Paris and St. Petersburg. Then we might listen to you.'"

Mr. Wood found considerable bitterness against England. He was rarely successful in persuading anyone that England was fighting Prussian militarism rather than the German people.

"They think England wants to crush Germany," he said. "They will all fight to the last ditch rather than submit. I saw no signs of dissention among socialists. English people are treated well."

VIEWPOINT OF GERMANY.

The official German press bureau in New York has issued a statement of the armies of the Germans and the allies, which, when allowance is made for its source, is not without interest. The active armies of the powers now engaged in the war, according to the writer of the review, include: ninety-six and one-half corps, of which fifty-six and one-half are in the armies of the allies and the other forty corps in the armies of Germany and Austria-Hungary. The active strength of the allies' armies is twenty-two French, one and one-half Belgian, three British, five Serbian, and twenty-five Russian corps, according to the statement, while the armies of the dual alliance are composed of twenty-four German and sixteen Austro-Hungarian corps.

Two Remarkable Families.

Detroit Free Press. "They surely are remarkable people."

"In what way?"

"Both families have children, and they shared the same summer cottage last year."

"Well, what is remarkable about that?"

"They are going to do it again this year."

Stomach Troubles Due to Acidity SO SAYS EMINENT SPECIALIST So-called stomach troubles, such as indigestion, wind, stomach-ache are in probably a cases out of 10 simply acidity due to fermentation is taking place in the food contents of the stomach, causing the formation of gases and acids. Wind distends the stomach, and causes that full, oppressive feeling, sometimes known as heartburn, while the acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach. The trouble lies entirely in the fermenting food. Such fermentation is unnatural, but may involve most serious consequences if not corrected. To stop or prevent fermentation of the food contents of the stomach and to neutralize the acid, and render it bland and harmless, a tea-spoonful of bisulphate of magnesia, probably the best and most effective, corrective of acid stomach, should be taken in a quarter of a glass of hot or cold water immediately after eating, or whenever wind or acidity is felt. This stops the fermentation, and neutralizes the acidity in a few moments. Fermentation, wind and acidity are dangerous and unnecessary. Stop them by the use of a proper dose of acid, such as bisulphate of magnesia, which can be obtained from any druggist and guaranteed to stop the work properly without injury. Sold by all druggists. —M. F. F.
