Found a Friend in Dr. Chase

His Medicines Proven Effective, and Always Kept at Hand in This Home. Mrs. Chas. Lovell, Agassiz, B.C., writes: "I feel it my duty to tell you what a great friend Dr. Chase's medicines have been to myself and family. I cannot praise his medicines too highly, and Dr. Chase's name is a household word in our home. Well, quite a number of years ago I sent you for a sample box of Dr. Chase's Ointment for protruding piles, and, having used the sample and found relief, I sent to a neighboring town for four boxes, and I am completely cured."

I have also used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for constipation, and, after using them, I am completely cured of this dreadful disease. I am the mother of ten children, of whom nine are living, and when seven of my children were all very bad with whooping cough, caught in the middle of a severe winter, I used Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, and they were all cured before the winter was over, and now we are never without Dr. Chase's medicines in our home, and I recommend them to all.

French Positions Couldn't Stand High Explosives. Paris, Sept. 23.—M. Ardoin-Dumazen, in the Liberte answers the questions as formulated several times as to the reason why so many of the French fortresses fell to the first attack. He says that since the last defensive positions between Belgium and Paris were abandoned there can now be no objection to confessing what military men already knew. The forts, built on the plans of the French engineer, Riviere, were good enough until dynamite-tellurite and other high explosives were produced. Then they became useless.

The fort of Malmaison, near Anzicville, in the Verd district, the present fighting, was well tested by the French army and in a few hours it was blown to bits. The principal forts of Verdun, Toul, Belfort, and last of all, Metz, were then as quickly as possible covered with reinforced concrete and steel cupolas. The only protection of any value against modern explosives.

The lesser fortifications, which could not be so protected, should, the writer thinks, have been forthwith abandoned but those responsible were afraid of public opinion. So Lille before the invasion had to be declared an open city and the forts dismantled; so with Rheims, Laon, and La Ferté—they could not be defended and it would have been better to abandon them before the war, for the sights are now being used by German gunners.

PLAN WINTER CAMPAIGN. Impatience and Excitement at Berlin Intense.

Copenhagen, Sept. 23.—A special from Berlin states that the military authorities highly praise the bravery of the allied armies. The general conception is that the war will not soon be ended, and already a winter campaign is being prepared for the impatience and excitement in Berlin are intense. The press is doing every thing to reassure the people, stating that the prospects are excellent, and that Germany will be able to resist millions now at the front, to send a further two millions of trained, able-bodied men.

Serajevo Bosnia's Capital. Austria-Hungary, where the assassination that precipitated the present war took place, is situated on a small tributary of the Bosna, forty-seven miles from the Serbian frontier and forty-two miles from Montenegro's border.

Its population in 1910 was 51,919, chiefly Serbo-Croatians, with small colonies of Gypsies and Jews. The city, frequently called "the Damascus of the North," spreads over a narrow valley closed on the east by a semi-circular hill, though still half oriental, it was largely rebuilt after 1878 in western fashion. The castle and barracks, occupied by an Austrian garrison, stands on a cliff overlooking the city. The sale of embroideries, rugs, embossed dresms, gold and silver blagoree work and other native wares, and the manufacture of pottery, beer, silk and tobacco comprise the industries.

The neighborhood is rich in pre-historic remains. During the wars between Turkey and Austria its ownership was frequently contested. It was burned in 1480, 1644, 1656, 1687 and 1789. In 1878 it was seized by the Austrians.

Death of Inverary Lady. Inverary, Sept. 21.—A sad death occurred in the village on Saturday morning, when Mrs. Frank Loney passed to her eternal reward. Although an invalid for some time, she was always so cheerful and brave in suffering with such patience and fortitude that her death came as a shock to the community. The funeral service was conducted in the Methodist church by Rev. A. Shorten, assisted by Rev. W. W. Lake, after which the remains were taken to Sand Hill vault. Besides a sorrowing husband, two sisters and one brother are left to mourn.

A large crowd is expected at the children's fair to-morrow, when Mrs. John Arthur spent the week-end at Battersea. Miss Alta Johnston has returned home after a lengthy visit in Ottawa. Miss Margaret Steith, of Kingston is visiting friends here.

Twenty-one persons lost their lives by drowning as a result of the sinking of the British steamer Belgian king, near Cape Kurell, in Asia, on Monday, from striking a mine.
