

THE SUM OF $52,466 RAISED IN KINGSTON

In Aid of the Canadian Patriotic Fund.

EVERYBODY IS HAPPY

OVER THE FINE SHOWING THE CITY MADE.

Big Gathering in the City Hall on Thursday Evening—The Audience Sang the Doxology After the Final Announcement Had Been Made.

Kingston's contribution to the Canadian Patriotic fund amounts to $52,466. The sum aimed at was $50,000. The citizens certainly have cause for rejoicing. The old historic city is proud, and everyone connected with the whirlwind canvass of three days, together with citizens in sympathy with the movement are happy.

The final results of the canvass were presented at a big mass meeting held in the city hall on Thursday night, presided over by Mayor Shaw. The hall was packed to the doors with a "strictly patriotic" crowd, and when the final result of the collection was made known, the old hall, which has been the scene of so many important gatherings, fairly shook with the tremendous applause. It was a great meeting—one never to be forgotten by all present.

When the applause following the final announcement died away, the audience arose and sang the doxology. The different captains of the teams engaged in the campaign reported, and each one was warmly applauded for the work accomplished.

G. A. Warburton, of Toronto, organizer for the fund, was tendered an ovation for the part he undertook, and was made the recipient of a beautiful card table as a gift from the city for his untiring efforts. W. F. Nickle, M. P., made the presentation. During the evening an excellent programme of music was rendered, and at the close there was a very interesting feature, when various articles given to the collectors were placed at auction and good sums realized.

J. M. Elliott was selected to act as auctioneer, and he ably filled the bill. Mr. Warburton assisted him and both carried on their work like "old timers" with the hammer.

Mayor Shaw had with him on the platform the men who carried on the campaign, as well as a number of other prominent citizens. Two large flags decorated the platform.

also a very beautiful floral design very kindly loaned for the occasion by Mrs. F. J. Johnson. It represented the king's crown, with union jacks and the Canadian ensign. White asters, corn flowers and geraniums formed a very pretty decoration, while gaily made up the gold in the crown. The design was prepared with excellent taste, and brought forth many warm comments.

The members of Salisbury's orchestra also occupied a place on the platform, while the Salvation Army band was stationed directly in front of the platform. The band contributed very generously to the programme, leading in the national anthem.

Tribute to Workers.
Mayor Shaw paid a warm tribute to the men who engaged in the canvass, and called upon the captains of the teams to submit their report. Each captain returned thanks to the men on his team for their good work.

F. J. Hoag, in presenting his report produced a gold-filled watch which had been given him as a donation, and which was afterwards sold at the auction.

Dr. W. G. Anglin caused everyone in the audience to smile when he produced a French doll, presented to one of his collectors by a little French girl who had no money to give. Dr. Anglin called upon Frank Ireland, former city treasurer, to explain how (Frances Lorraine) had been secured, and Mr. Ireland complied.

Dr. Anglin also told of securing a donation of an antique chest of drawers from Gordon Young and a beautiful palm from another citizen. These two were also sold.

Prof. Martin extended the thanks of the workers to Mr. Warburton, and Frederick Welch referred to the fact that the call for funds had been responded to by all classes and creeds. Each captain gave a detailed statement of the subscriptions they received, and it was shown that the amounts collected ranged from a 25-cent piece to donations in the thousands. It was indeed a pleasure to the audience to listen to the reports and to note how the money had been given so generously by the people.

Presentation to Organizer.
The presentation made to the organizer, C. A. Warburton, was a very pleasant part of the proceedings. A beautiful card table was among the things offered for sale, and it was captured by Mayor Shaw, but Mr. Nickle let the cat out of the bag when he announced that the table had been bought for Mr. Warburton.

as a gift from the city for his work in Kingston. He said to Mr. Warburton was due a great deal of credit for the success of the campaign, and in making the announcement stated, in a jocular way, that he hoped Mr. Warburton would "play his cards well."

Mr. Warburton returned thanks for the gift, in a most fitting manner, and also took occasion to thank all the captains who had taken part in the campaign, stating that he had never seen better work done in any campaign of this character.

He said that the men engaged in the canvass had enjoyed the work and declared that the only good to be derived in this world was by doing something to help others. The campaign afforded the men of the city a great opportunity to get acquainted. There was much good to be derived from such brotherhood. The canvass in Kingston took in quite a large area, and the workers were certainly deserving of much praise for the way in which they had carried out their work.

Robert Meek, secretary of the campaign fund, proposed a motion which was seconded by Neil Polson, J., and carried by a large vote. The motion called for a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Warburton and to everyone who had in any way helped the campaign and to all who had contributed to the programme at the three public meetings held during the campaign.

The Auction Sale.
Mayor Shaw called upon J. M. Elliott to act as auctioneer for the sale of goods and at the same time assured him that he would not get into trouble for conducting the sale without a license. Evidently his worship "fixed the chief of the ice before the meeting. Mr. Elliott accepted the job with this understanding. At any rate Frank Ireland, who secured the doll on his rounds, was given the honor of putting it up for sale and it happened that the auctioneer, Mr. Elliott, purchased it for the sum of $20. Mr. Elliott announced that the doll would be returned to the little girl who gave it.

An interesting story centred around the sale of a small quantity of yarn given by a little girl as her donation. The yarn was left at the Board of Trade rooms and was sold to W. F. Nickle for $10.00. Mr. Nickle said that he would hand the yarn over to his wife to be made into a Balacava cap to be presented to one of the Kingston men going to the front. A palm given by a Kingston lady was purchased by Mrs. G. O. Bayden for $7.50. A gold-filled watch was sold to Charles Anglin, a gift donated by Mrs. W. D. Woodman, Wolfe Island to Dr. H. A. Joyce; small table to J. S. R. McCann. Several other articles were also put up and sold. The fund will be made richer as a result of this sale.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

May Robson's Production of "Martha-by-the-Day."

May Robson comes along year after year with a wholesome comedy and in the role of the happy-go-lucky woman, contented with her lot and trying to lighten the troubles of others. "Martha-by-the-Day" is one more role into which May Robson fits to perfection. The comedy is wholesome, evoking laughter throughout, and yet punctuated with pieces of pathos that Miss Robson quickly turns to comedy again. Anything that May Robson plays is worth going to hear for one will see an everyday character presented in a charming manner.

Assisting Miss Robson is a company of merit, including Lois Frances Clark, Anita Clarence, Violet Hayward, Roy Ardmore, Julie Heene, Cones Gwynne, Ramsey Wallace, Jane Heron, Mary Mersch and Edwin Brandt. The settings were admirable, but the kitchen in the first act was a delightful home scene.

Arctic Hunt Motion Pictures.

Lovers of nature study and animals will have an inning at the Grand Opera House to-night and Saturday matinee and night when the illustrated report of the Carnegie Museum Alaska-Siberia Expedition will be given by means of the motion pictures taken by Capt. Klein Schmidt throughout the Arctic. Arctic monsters of land and sea, mighty glaciers moving majestically down the mountain sides, icebergs in formation and adrift, and the wild life of the frigid north are shown in all phases.

May A. Bell Marks.
May A. Bell Marks, the talented artist, with a strong supporting company, will be at the opera house all of next week, presenting on Monday evening "The Girl From Texas." There are but few dramatic stars who cover as wide a range of emotional feeling as Miss Marks. Her impersonations impart a touch of realism of the characters portrayed that is easily recognized as the truth. Miss Marks instantly places her in direct accord with her audience.

DELTA FAIR.

Cures constipation, biliousness and all liver ills. Do not give up. Hood's Pils. Sold at White Rose drug.

lections by the Salvation Army band, Salisbury's orchestra, solos by Arthur Craig, Harold Angrove, J. D. Bankier, and a violin duet by Miss Norma Tolgmann and Miss Goldie Bartels. The duet was composed of Scotch melodies, ending with the now famous chorus, "It's a Long Way to Tipperary." As an encore "The British Grenadiers" was rendered. Both were given with fine effect. Oscar F. Teagman played the accompaniment on the piano. R. R. F. Harvey acted as accompanist for the vocal solos.

Notes of The Campaign.

Mayor Shaw read some of the latest war bulletins to the audience. W. F. Nickle received a telegram during the evening from Valentier which gave the audience the benefit of it. It was to the effect that the boys had not yet struck camp and that all were well.

C. A. Warburton stated that he would leave Kingston for Ottawa, to carry on a campaign there. He declared that the noise of the campaign would be heard all the way to Kingston.

J. H. Birkett had his big score board with the results on the platform. The results were also announced by Mayor Shaw. The audience appeared to be more like one big family.

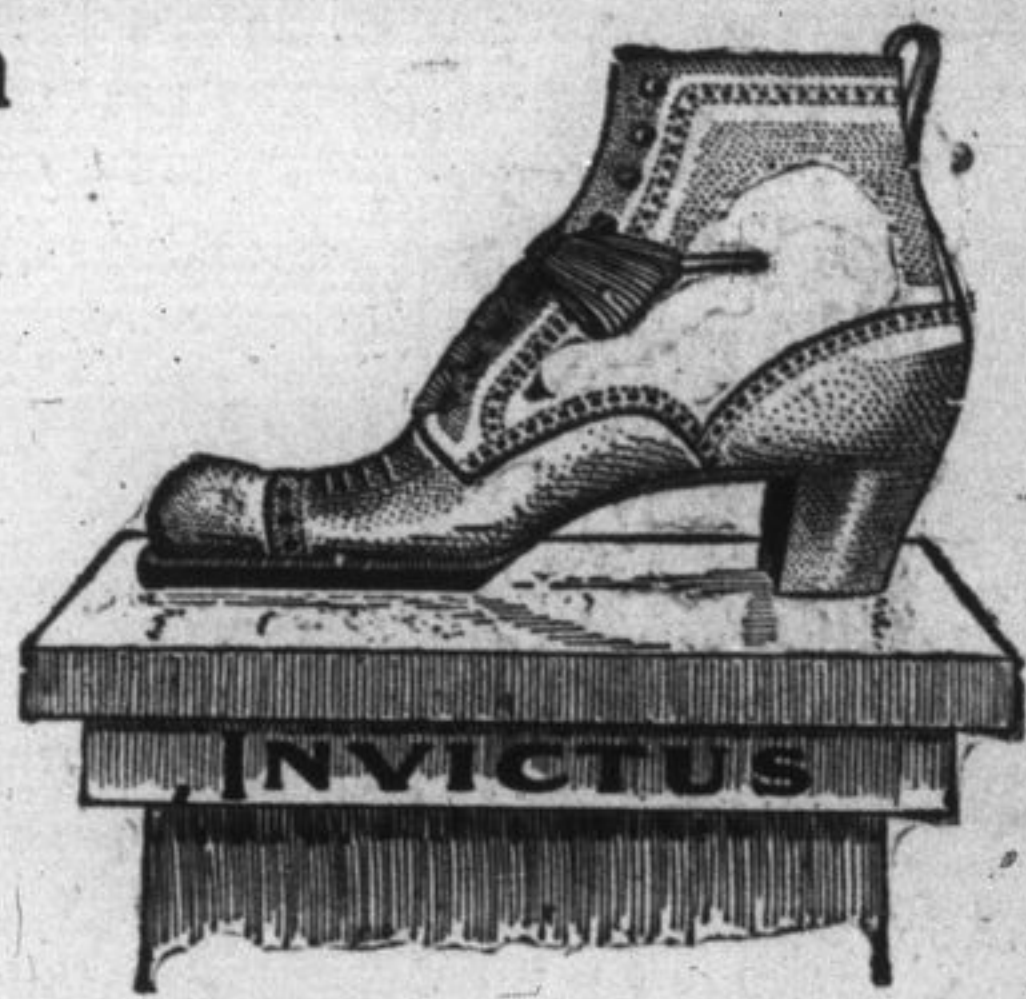

Each captain had an interesting story to tell about the canvass. There were many who touched the heart. Stanley Trotter, the junior captain, made a neat little speech. With but few workers he did remarkably well. The boys on his team were wide awake and great hustlers.

When Ensign Smith arose to present his report the Salvation Army band played "Rule Britannia" and then followed with other selections. The ensign had his turn afterwards. There are several other instances of giving to the patriotic fund that show the spirit which the money is being given. One person sent $5 by a friend and said that she did not want her name published. Of course, the collector said that they wanted her name so that a receipt could be mailed to her. She answered that she was willing to trust the collector, as any person who would work hard on a cause of this kind must be honest and that the receipt need not be sent.

A resident on Queen street, who has always refused to give to any charity collection, was approached, and he first shook hands with the collector and without a word handed him $10 and turned around and walked away.

The chest of drawers offered for sale was purchased by John McKay for the sum of $40. The chest was much admired by everyone. J. M. Elliott is now known as an auctioneer by his brother merchants. He has received a number of offers to take up the work permanently. The treasurer of the fund says that it is not possible for him to have another list of the subscribers ready before publication can occur. Considerable time has to be spent in arranging the lists. The list published Thursday was the first of several to be issued.

The Foundation of Comfort

Every enduring superstructure in this world must have a good foundation. This is of primary importance. As a good foundation upon which to build your health and happiness, nothing can be more substantial than properly cared-for feet. If you have two good feet under you, take care of them. Put them into the right shoes—and you may expect the permanent basis of real and lasting foot-comfort. Every "INVICTUS" last is a faithful mould of the human foot, and upon it, from the very best of materials, is made "THE BEST GOOD SHOE."
