FRESH ALLIED TROOPS MEET GERMAN ATTACKS

Franco-British Flanking Movement Continues Northward.

THE ANTWERP FORTS

ARE ALL HOLDING OUT AGAINST THE GERMANS

Who Have Abandoned Their Efforts to Carry Them by Storm — The Garrison Inflicts Great Damage Upon the Attackers.

Paris, Oct. 6.—The reinforced German line continues its efforts to break through the encircling movements of the allies. It has gained slightly at new points, only to be thrust back violently at others.

It is officially announced this morning that the fighting continues with unabated vigor, but that at no point has the allied line been penetrated. The general flanking movement continues to be extended northward, while fresh troops are being sent into action at points on the line where the greatest German pressure is apparent.

Antwerp Forts Hold Out.

Antwerp, Oct. 6.—Rumors are current that some of the forts have been badly damaged, but the war office declares that the resistance is still maintained by the Belgian and British troops. The official statement issued to-day says:

"The Germans continue their bombardment of the outer ring of forts. They have utterly failed, however, in their attempt to gain a foothold at any point in search of sorties. The garrison has inflicted great damage on the enemy, who has now abandoned all efforts to carry our positions by storm. Every single fort and redoubt is holding out."

"Black Cow" Danger Sign.

Paris, Oct. 6.—Some tricks of German spies in the field are puzzling the French military authorities. One especially is the mystery of a black cow. Just as a cow and beggars frequently have a code of signals in their chalk walls and gate posts, so the German espionage department's spies are using all sorts of roadside signs to indicate to their troops what is ahead.

The sign of a black cow frequently has been found. This is crudely fashioned with black crayons. Nobody paid any attention to them except to remark on the disproportions of the animal.

Now it turns out that the size of the animal and the direction in which its head is pointed were of chief importance.

French intelligence officers have deciphered this system of signalling employed by the spies of Von Kluck's army.

A little cow meant "the road is lightly held"; a middle-sized cow meant "the allies' troops are in the neighborhood"; a larger cow meant "earthworks or entrenchments are nearby."

The direction of the cow's head pointed to where to look for danger. If pointing up in the air it meant the Germans had better reconnoitre the ground before advancing further.

THE 14TH ON PARADE

Marched Through the Streets on Monday Evening.

One of the largest parades of the members of the 14th regiment not already on active duty was held on Monday evening. At eight o'clock the regiment, headed by the two bands, left the armouries and paraded the streets for about forty-five minutes.

The next parade will be held on Tuesday evening next on account of Monday being a legal holiday.

Col. Sergt. Gage and Sergt. Davidson are on duty this week drilling recruits. Sergts. F. B. Pense and J. Holland are next for duty.

The sergeants held their regular monthly meeting immediately after the parade.

Indigestion and Headaches

Arising From Constipation, Cured and Regular Habits Established by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

In the western province, where so many thousands live far from doctors and drug stores, very many rely on Dr. Chase's medicines to cure disease and maintain health and strength. This letter gives some idea of what the perfect control of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills exert over the most common ills of life.

Mrs. H. K. Haver, farmer's wife, Eastbury, Alta., writes: "For about ten years I suffered from constipation, indigestion, headache and languid feeling. Treatment from two or three doctors afforded only temporary relief, so I turned to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and with most satisfactory results. Headaches have disappeared, regular habits established, and general health very much better. Both my husband and I can speak highly of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, as we have both been greatly benefited by them." JUST A TANGLED MASS

GERMAN RIGHT WING A SERIES OF ERRATIC CURVES.

Grand Debauch at Hand — Allies Are Now at Top of Their Form and Tuned Up to the Top Notch of Enthusiasm.

Paris, Oct. 6.—France knows that good news—Turks behind the veiled hints of the official bulletins. It is better news even than that of the fighting at Iloy, where Bavarian regiments have been cut up and routed by a surprise attack, in which the French infantry, who had advanced with amazing rapidity, were hurled down upon the German lines under cover of the heavy Russian machine gun fire.

The net has closed in upon them, and all their struggling has now only made it bigger and into preposterous shape, which cannot be called a line. The German front on the right wing is a series of erratic curves and sharp angles into which the French have driven wedges. To the extreme north the attack of the allies is threatening their main positions in the centre, which will soon become untenable. Lower down on the west their army corps are practically divided by French columns. At Lassigny, according to the news already published, a large force of Germans is entirely surrounded.

The Germans' only hope now lies in the trenches, which they have been digging for the last fortnight. The extreme north, where they are withdrawing from the centre to strengthen their right wing and their long line of communications. It was for this purpose they made such violent attacks upon the British lines as those described in the official report of a staff officer under Sir John French. That tremendous cannonade was to mask the westerly movements of their reserves behind the lines. It was meant to conceal the withdrawal of their main forces from Alsace and Lorraine in answer to appeals for help sent by wireless messages from Gen. Von Kluck and other commanders. These messages were intercepted at a French wireless station.

At the present moment the allies are in their best form, tuned up, as one of them described it, to the top notch of enthusiasm. The fact that the Germans were balked of their entry into Paris has been worth a new army corps to General Joffre. It lifted a heavy weight from the back of the French soldier. It broke the broad spell of the enemy's advance and restored self-confidence.

Now he is sure of victory and he counts his hours as nothing so long as France may be liberated from the barbarians who have laid waste to so many of its villages and destroyed so much of its beauty.

General Joffre can do anything he likes with his soldiers. From them superhuman courage and endurance, count their utter self-sacrifice because, like soldiers of Napoleon, they are now sure of their own power and are fired with the spirit of a glorie.

SAYS VILLAGERS FOUGHT, TOO.

Russian Paper Tells of Rennen Kampff's Hard Campaign.

London, Oct. 6.—The Petrograd correspondent of The Daily Telegraph sends a description, taken from a Kovno newspaper, of the operations from Sept. 8th to 14th, when Gen. Rennenkampff retired from East Prussia in order to counteract the German effort to envelop his left. The account says:

"The Germans made obstinate efforts to gain possession of the village of Birkenfeld, where the Russians had strongly entrenched themselves, and thus make a breach in the centre of the Russian army."

"The scene was indescribably terrible as the Russian guns literally mowed down whole regiments, and all German attacks were repulsed."

"In the next village of Darshien the Germans assumed a form which it is difficult for the imagination to grasp. Here the Russians had not merely to deal with the German troops, but the entire German population of the village. Even the women and children shot from windows, roofs, hedges and cellars. The inhabitants had been armed with rifles and Maxim pistols, and the Russian troops in this place were compelled to defend themselves on two fronts."

GERMANY IS BEATEN

INTENDED TO DEMAND THOUSANDS OF MILLION DOLLARS.

Kaiser No Statesman — Made a Blunder in Abandoning the Policy of Bismarck.

New York, Oct. 6.—Timothy M. Healy, the Irish M. P., who arrived in New York on the Campanian, when interviewed expressed confidence in the ultimate defeat of the Kaiser's army in the campaign in France.

"The Kaiser," the Irish leader said, "has lost all the admiration which the world had bestowed upon him and Germany by the manner in which she attacked Belgium to make a short-cut to Paris. The success of her strategy depended on that move. She has lost. She intended to hold Paris for a ransom of a thousand million dollars, with the alternative of burning the city."

"I regard Germany as a beaten power. Judging the situation from a political and diplomatic viewpoint, it is apparent that the Kaiser is no statesman. He blundered in abandoning the policy of Bismarck. He has shown the folly of an individual who, because of his birthright ability to direct every military and diplomatic move of an empire."
