WOMEN WHO ARE ALWAYS TIRED

May Find Help in This Letter.

Swan Creek, Mich.—"I cannot speak too highly of your medicine. When through neglect or overwork I get run down and my appetite is poor and I have that weak, languid, always tired feeling, I get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it builds me up, gives me strength, and restores me to perfect health again. It is truly a great blessing to women, and I cannot speak too highly of it. I take pleasure in recommending it to others."—Mrs. ANNIE CAMERON, R.F.D., No. 1, Swan Creek, Michigan.

Another Sufferer Relieved.

Hebron, Me.—"Before taking your remedies I was all run down, discouraged and had female weakness. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and used the Sanative Wash, and find today that I am an entirely new woman, ready and willing to do my household work now, where before, taking your medicine it was a dread. I try to impress upon the minds of all ailing women I meet the benefits they can derive from your medicines."—Mrs. CHARLES FOWLE, R. F. D., No. 1, Hebron, Maine.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

MISS PANKHURST TELLS

WHY THE SUFFRAGETTES ARE FOR WAR.

Triumph of Germany Would Be a Disaster to Women the World Over—Her Position in Fatherland Lower Than in Any Other Country. "I agree with the prime minister's briske into merriment. If a few months ago anyone had prophesied that Miss Christabel Pankhurst would go on to a public platform to support a government which had consistently refused to enfranchise women he would have been regarded as an imbecile. The London Opera House was crowded in every part when Miss Pankhurst spoke on the German peril and the need of offering it a vigorous resistance.

Miss Pankhurst presumably spoke for the W.S.P.U., as a whole. When they became suffragettes they did not cease to love their country. "I have tremendous belief in British civilization. I have no use for the vague internationalism which is detached from love of one's own country. You will never coerce patriotism out of suffragettes. We do not identify our country with politicians with people who have despitely used us, but with everything that is great. When that country is at war we are at peace with the government. Women are ready to forget their wrongs and grievances, and to stand shoulder to shoulder with men I agree with the prime minister—and I hope that he will never again disagree with me—that we cannot stand idly by and see brutality triumph over freedom."

THE HOMELAND'S CALL.

By Ronald McCaskill in Maclean's Magazine for October. Hearken, ye whelps of the Lion! Stir ye, awake from your dreams; Hark to the world-flung challenge, List to the eagle's scream; Thrown in the teeth of the nations Terrible, menacing; grim; Hear ye the words of defiance, Hurl'd to the Empire's rim? "Stand from the path of my southern mate, Stand aside lest ye be too late And I tear the limb from limb."

Hearken, ye whelps of the lion, Hear ye his arrogant cry? "Where is there one to dare me, One who'll do battle and die? Fear I the bear that yellow man? Cowed by the small yellow man? Heed I the squeaks of an upstart I ground in the dust of Sedan? Who talks to me of the Lion's way? A lion's cubs may be eagle's prey! And merrily is none of my plan."

Hearken, ye whelps of the lion, What says thy mother's roar? "Who is this Teuton boaster To prate so loud of war? Long have I stood his insults, Long have I leashed my might, But never brook'd dishonored peace. The time has come to fight! Rise, then ye whelps of the Lion's breed, Thy mother's call in the Empire's need And battle for the right!

"Send me the men from the Southern Cross, eager to do their part; Send me my sons from the frozen north, Men of the mighty heart, Give me the men from the sun-baked west, Breed to the rifle's crack; Send me alike both rich and poor; No feat that men I'll lack; Making one cause with my sons at home, Warring on land or on salt sea foam, To fight for the Union Jack."

His Wishbone Wish.

It was a Sunday dinner, and there was chicken for dinner that Sunday. The little son of the house was indelicately fond of that fowl and he had partaken of it with freedom. And presently he said: "Please may I have some more chicken?" "No, dearie," answered his mamma. "I think you have had enough." "But I want some more!" "You can't have any more. But listen—don't cry. Here's a wishbone! Isn't that fine? You and mamma will pull it. You pull one end and mamma will pull on the other. The one that gets the biggest piece will get whatever he wishes for. Now, pull! O-h! You got it. Well, whatever you wished for you will get. What did you wish for?" "I wished for some more chicken."—Exchange.

HEAVIER TAX ON LIQUORS.

Annual Revenue of Fifty Million Dollars Will Result. Washington, Oct. 8.—Liquors would bear the heaviest burden of the $100,000,000 war revenue tax, as it is being revised by the caucus of senate democrats, which began work on the financial committee's draft of the bill. First action of the caucus was to vote an increase in the proposed extra tax on beer from 50c. to 75c. a barrel, to make the total tax $1.75 a barrel. A special revenue tax on rectifiers of distilled spirits of 50c. gallon was also adopted. Together the proposed taxes on liquors would yield an annual revenue of more than $50,000,000.

Queer Optimist.

Washington Star. "Bliggins says he is an optimist." "Yes. He's one of these men who will call attention to your trouble simply for the sake of showing what a good hand he is at cheering folks up."

A HARD TASK.

To Blow Out a Candle By Using a Funnel.

To blow out a candle, using a funnel to blow through, seems a ridiculously easy thing to do. But ask your friends of yours to try it, and see what happens. Ten to one you will try to blow through the cup so as to force his breath through the narrow neck of the funnel. As this is not an easy thing to do he will flatten mouth and nose in his endeavors, while trying to force his face into the small cup. Then he will reverse the funnel and blow into the neck, and when he does not succeed in extinguishing the light he will blow harder and harder and finally he will admit that he is beaten.

In blowing through the neck of the funnel he has directed the flame directly at the light, so that the flame is exactly opposite to the place where the neck of the funnel joins the cup. You, on taking the funnel from him, incline the funnel so that its proper edge is on a level with the light. You blow gently. The light is extinguished at the first puff without any of the desperate effort which your friend put forth.

If you ponder a moment you will realize why you succeeded and why your friend failed. His breath on striking the cup or funnel spread in all directions, and the tiny current of air was dispersed upward and downward, so that, as he neatly levelled the centre of the funnel at the flame, no current of air ever reached it. You, on the contrary, held the upper edge of the funnel on a level with the flame. The current of air started by your breath, on reaching the edge of the wall, steamed onward in the direction given it by the restraining wall and on reaching the flame snuffed it out.—Boston American.

THINGS THEATRICAL.

Notes About Plays, Players and Playhouses. Adele Blood, who headed her own stock company at Shea's, Toronto, last summer, has postponed her vaudeville engagements. Miss Blood will open in a new play, "Mildred's Rondo," next month.

Lina Abardean is rehearsing with Eddie Foley, some new dances preparatory to entering vaudeville. Blanche Ring who appeared in Toronto in "When Claudia Smiles," is in vaudeville.

Blanche Walsh will return to vaudeville in a new playlet written for her by M. E. Robertson. The title is "Who Laughs Last."

Herbertkeley and Effie Shannon have postponed their vaudeville engagements. Both will re-enter the legitimate. Dorothy Mantell, formerly of "The Passing Show," is doing a singing act in vaudeville.

"The Little Modiste" has been condensed for a vaudeville act, and is said to be meeting with success.

A Splendid Sporting Number.

Although the opening article in October number of Rod and Gun in Canada magazine, is descriptive of a notable Canadian canoe race, covered over two hundred miles in sixty hours, the table of contents shows a predominance of big game hunting stories. "How 1913 Turned Out Luck For One Bull Moose" is the story of a moose hunt in Quebec wilds; "An Unusual Hunting Trip" describes an American sportsman's outing after moose in New Brunswick forests; while "Moose Hunting in the Riding Mountains of Manitoba" tells of a winter hunt in that province. "Trapped" is an amusing story of how a western sportsman outwitted the R. N. W. M. P. representative. Other stories and the regular departments make up an interesting big game issue for Canadian sportsmen.

Hypocritical Daddy.

A young minister preached one Sunday in a rural congregation and spent the next day visiting the people. At one place the man of the house was expressing his appreciation of the sermon in complimentary terms while assisting the minister to put up his team. His little son had followed him, and after eyeing the minister a minute or two exclaimed: "Why, papa, you said he was a one-horse preacher, and he's got two horses!"—Exchange.
