Nothing but praise from every man that has worn a Fashion Craft or 20th Century Overcoat.

Opinion divided in regard to merit of suits but a unanimous verdict in favor of our coats. There is absolutely no comparison between our coats and the tailor made. This is not our verdict—the tailors themselves tell us so. The styles cannot be surpassed.

The short, form fitting coats with special lapels and collars, are just the thing. Materials, grey and blue Chinchillas, will be the most worn. The prices will satisfy any customer desiring the best, $18, $20, $22 and $25.

GERMANY WAS AFRAID

OF BRITISH NAVY AND ALSO OF FRANCE.
Writer Believed Germany Would Have Been at War Long Ago But For This — France Had an Old Score to Settle.

The following are extracts taken from an article written in January, 1912, by a Canadian who was in Germany and studied conditions. The writer is G. E. Bonham, M.A., now taking a post-graduate course at Queen's University. I cannot persuade myself to believe that Germany is friendly to England, I happened to be in Germany at the time the terms of the Morocco treaty came out, and seeing against England Germany must have colonies and the only way left is by right of conquest.

It is true that Germany was born too late. There are no colonies to be had and hence England excels Germany. However, it behoves England to appreciate her colonies more than she does and to consolidate the empire, for in her colonies must England find her future greatness.

WAR BULLETINS.

Martial law has been declared throughout Egypt. British troops in strong force will meet the oncoming Turks. Bulgaria has mobilized her second line of troops.

British and French fleets have sunk three small Turkish warships near the entrance to the Dardanelles. Heavy firing off Dover Monday night shook the windows of English fishing villages along the coast. It was unofficially stated in London afterwards that a British destroyer had sunk two German submarines there.

News from the front Monday night indicated exceptionally fierce fighting in northern France, with the allies holding at all points. There was still no declaration of war between Turkey and the allied powers Monday night, and rumor was strong in Rome that a Turkish apology and offer of indemnity to Russia had been accepted.

Russia and the allies have rejected Turkey's apology for Black Sea bombardment, and war will go on. It is understood that Turkey would not agree to take German officers off Turkish ships.

The British admiralty has closed the entire North Sea, owing to indiscriminate mining by Germany.

Officially announced that the second Canadian contingent will be fifteen thousand men. It appears that the German offensive has been completely checked, and the allies have gained in several positions.

SON OF LATE CANADIAN M.P.

Capt. Rose, Tenth Hussars, Reported Killed at Front. London, Nov. 3.—Capt. He succeeded his father in the title only last year. He was educated at Eton, and served with his regiment in the South African war, 1901-2, being mentioned in despatches.

AS GERMAN GRAVES.

Abandoned Guns and Ammunition Buried in Flight. London, Nov. 3.—A despatch from Petrograd declares that Polish peasants in the neighborhood of Warsaw have found many German quick-fires, and large amounts of ammunition buried in mounds surmounted by masks and German helmets, the crude marks of soldiers' graves. The peasants became suspicious of these hillocks and investigation showed that they contained material and guns abandoned during the retreat of the Austro-German forces.

READING WAR NEWS

ON BOARD THE "SCOTIAN" ON WAY TO ENGLAND.

Writer Tells of Some Interesting Incidents of the Trip — A Wireless Message Which Caused Consternation. Sergeant-Major H. E. Law (warrant officer) and formerly staff-sergeant instructor P.A.M.C., Kingston, made the trip overseas, on his majesty's troopship "Scotian," and was enrolled in the establishment of the hospital. Upon the hospital corps developed the care of those men who required medical attention. A number of minor cases were treated, including one successful operation upon one of the members of the 12th Battalion for a fractured jaw. A special writer, J. A. Warren, has given a very interesting account of the trip over on the "Scotian."

It is stated that wireless bulletins were posted on board ship with the latest war news. The news was highly devoured by the men. A message picked up to the effect that a report had gained credence in America that a greater part of the transports had been sunk, caused much consternation. The percentage of men who suffered from the effects of sea sickness was perceptibly small, taking into consideration that the majority were making a trip on the deep for the first time. A few, however, felt ill the first few days, but soon found their legs again. Save for a heavy swell in mid-ocean, of about two days' duration, and a slight squall in the Irish sea, no rough weather, worthy of mention was encountered. The first sight of land was that of Eddystone Lighthouse, on the Scilly Islands, early on Wednesday, Oct. 14th. Later the Cornish coast was skirted, finally dropping anchor at five o'clock the same evening off Plymouth. The passage over was made in fourteen days.

Well Satisfied. London, Nov. 3.—The best informed circles in London seem quite satisfied with the general position in northern France, though the severe character of the struggle is indicated by a prophecy uttered by a very high British authority this week that: "With luck we shall have the Germans out of Belgium by February."

CROWDS AT THE IDEAL

To See Production of "The Trep O' Hearts." Large crowds turned out to witness the motion picture production which was displayed at the Ideal theatre on Monday evening. The entire performance was occupied by one continuous reel of pictures which was entitled "The Trep O' Hearts." This was divided into three parts and worked out a plot that was sensational from start to finish. Part three concluded when the interest of the audience was raised to high pitch. This motion picture play is to run at the Ideal theatre for two days, Monday and Tuesday, last Saturday the Whig started to publish the story and after reading it in the story form to see it in motion is of decided interest.

IN BENEVOLENCE

United States Contributes Liberally For Care of Unfortunates. Institutions Are Increasing. Washington, Nov. 3.—Benevolent institutions in the United States increased in numbers between 1904 and 1910, according to statistics made public by the Bureau of Census. There also were enormous increases in the number of inmates of these institutions during this period. The geographic distribution of benevolent institutions shows that for the United States as a whole there was one such institution for every 17,000 inhabitants. In the New England division of states there was one for every 10,000 inhabitants; in the Pacific division, one for every 14,000; in the South Atlantic division, one for every 21,000 and in the West-South-Central division one for every 42,000.

Of the total number of 5,408 benevolent institutions reported in the United States in 1910, 2,492, or 46 per cent, were institutions for the blind; 1,435, or 27 per cent, were institutions for the care of children; 1,151, or 21 per cent, were homes for adults and children; 205, or 4 per cent, were societies for the protection and care of children, and 125 or 2 per cent, were institutions for blind and deaf.

Not all these institutions reported inmates at the close of 1910, but in these benevolent institutions during the year 1910, 1,952,900, or 86 per cent, of whom were received in institutions for the care of children; 1,115,114, or 53 per cent, were in institutions for the care of children; 86,390, or 28 per cent, in institutions for the sick, and 15,439, or 5 per cent, in institutions for blind and deaf. A total of 2,960,000 persons of all classes were received in 4,815 of these benevolent institutions during the year 1910, 1,952,900, or 86 per cent, of whom were received in institutions for the care of children; the remaining 3 per cent, being divided among the other three classes of institutions. In this connection the reports call attention to the fact that among the persons received in these institutions there were a number who were only indirectly recipients of benevolences being pay inmates who met the regular charges for treatment. All classes of benevolent institutions in the United States reported in 1910 for 4,281 institutions a total income of $118,280,000, with expenditures of $111,498,000, while 3,871 showed property valued at $643,873,000. This income of $118,280,000 was divided among the different classes of institutions as follows: Hospitals, 80 per cent.; homes for adults or adults and children, 20 per cent.; institutions for the care of children, 16 per cent.; institutions for the blind and deaf, 5 per cent.; societies for the protection and care of children, 2 per cent.; dispensaries, 1 per cent.
