BOYS PLAY SOLDIER RESERVE BATTALION MARRIED IN HALIFAX

GERMANS AND BRITISH HAD A LIVELY TIME

With Result That One Youngster From the British Line Was Hailed Before Magistrate in Juvenile Court.

According to the story which came out at a session of the juvenile court on Tuesday morning all the fighting between the British and the Germans is not being done at the front by any means.

There was a clash in Kingston a few days ago which was not reported in the despatches. No doubt, it would not even have reached the police court had not a window been broken in the charge the British made on the Germans.

It appears that a score or more youngsters were out "playing soldier" on the Raglan Road. One half were registered as British and the other half as Germans just for the occasion so as to bring about a battle. The Kaiser's men took their places on the side of the street, while the British took the other side. There was a shortage of shrapnel for the fray, so the boys decided that stones should be the weapons of warfare.

The order was given to attack and immediately there was something doing. Stones flew in all directions and it was not long before one from the British lines was popped into the front window of a house close by. The window is a large-sized one, and there was a great smashing of glass. This ended the fight. The soldiers scattered in all directions. The owner of the house got busy and as a result he had one of the lads who served on the British line, summoned to court. And this resulted in the session of the juvenile court.

The lad, when charged with the breaking of the window, said he could not say as to whether he had broken it or not. All the boys had been throwing and he could not say who the guilty party was. The magistrate adjourned the case until Friday in order to give the youngster time to make a settlement for the broken glass. He will likely consult his brother officers regarding the paying of the damage. The youngsters will realize just how expensive it is to go to war.

In the Whig to-day there is an advertisement placed by Ald. R. D. Sutherland, a former officer of the 14th Regiment, asking that all ex-officers, non-commissioned officers and men of the regiment, wishing to join a reserve battalion now being organized, to send in their names to him, giving their present age, date of discharge and rank held on leaving the regiment. In this connection any ex-N.C.O.'s or men of other regiments are eligible to join. After the names have been secured it is the intention to call a meeting for organization purposes. Thus Kingston will have another "old guard" to take up arms if it is necessary.

The suggestion for the reserve battalion came from Ald. Sutherland, who for many years was identified with the 14th Regiment and who took a keen interest in the work, and the formation of this reserve battalion, comes as a result of his making the matter up with the military authorities. In the month of August Ald. Sutherland wrote to Lieut.-Col. T. D. R. Hemming, officer commanding the third division, pointing out that a number of the ex-officers, non-commissioned officers and men of the regiment felt as though they would like to show their loyalty to the empire at the present moment. Many would prefer to offer themselves for foreign service, but owing to circumstances were unable to do so, and the suggestion was that they be allowed to form themselves into a reserve battalion of the 14th Regiment.

The intention was to drill without uniforms and without an expectation of pay; all that would be required being the use of the armories and sufficient rifles for drill purposes.

The movement is a most popular one, and from present indications it looks as if many of the ex-officers of the regiment will be found in this reserve battalion, and also a great many of the ex-non-commissioned officers and men.

The battalion will be known as the 14th Regiment, P.W.O.R. reserve battalion. The object is simply a business man's battalion, whereby he can receive training in drill and rifle practice so in the event of the 14th Regiment being called upon for duty there will be another battalion of trained men ready to take their place.

THE HEMMING-GRANT NUPTIALS ON MONDAY.

The Groom is the Son of Col. Hemming, of Kingston, and is going to the Front.

The marriage took place at Halifax, N.S., at one o'clock on Monday afternoon, of Annie (Nan) Corriemoney, daughter of Lieut.-Col. J. A. Grant, A.D. of M.S., and Mrs. Grant, and Capt. R. H. Hemming, R.C.E., a son of Lieut.-Col. Hemming, officer commanding the third division, Kingston, Ont. Miss Grant is one of the most charming girls in her set, and Capt. Hemming is one of the most popular officers on this station, where he has spent the past six years. He has been assigned to duty as adjutant in the Eastern Ontario battalion of the overseas contingent.

The wedding was a very quiet one, the ceremony being performed at Col. Grant's summer cottage in Marlboro Woods. Rev. E. W. Ross, pastor of Fort Massey Presbyterian church, officiated. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore her going-away costume of grey sueded cloth, trimmed with sable and hat to correspond. Her bouquet was a shower of white chrysanthemums and lilies of the valley. She was attended by her sister, Miss Helen Grant, who wore a blue gown, her bouquet being of chrysanthemums. Mr. Doswell, R.C.E., attended the groom as best man. The ceremony was followed by a reception to which only relatives and a few very intimate friends were invited and later Captain and Mrs. Hemming left for Kingston. The bride wore on her wedding trip Alaskan sable furs, the gift of the groom. The gifts came from friends and well-wishers in many different parts of Canada, and were beautiful and valuable.

15,000 WILL COMPOSE

THE SECOND OVERSEAS CANADIAN CONTINGENT.

Bringing Strength Up to Forty-Seven Thousand Men — Two Brigades of Infantry, Complement of Artillery, and Necessary Units.

Ottawa, Nov. 2.—The following official statement was issued last night:—

There has been received from the British government a despatch to the effect that the Army Council wish the second overseas contingent to be so organized that, in conjunction with one of the four brigades of Canadian infantry already in England, it will form a division complete in itself as far as possible, with, in addition, a due proportion of Army Service Corps units for duty on lines of communications.

The contingent will accordingly consist of two brigades of infantry, eight battalions of artillery, signal, engineer, cyclist, signal and administrative units, Army Service Corps companies and field ambulances, and the following units for lines of communication purposes:—divisional ammunition park, divisional supply column, reserve park, field bakery, field butchery, railway supply detachment, and two depot units of supply.

The numerical strength of the contingent will be over 15,000 men, and the total Canadian expeditionary force, first and second contingents, will exceed 45,000, not counting reinforcements which will be required to maintain it in numbers and efficiency from the time it takes part in active operations. Reinforcements are calculated at a yearly rate of 70 per cent of the total force engaged.

If the war lasts another year Canada will in all probability have at least 130,000 under arms at the front, and mobilized at the various divisional centres in the dominion.

In addition to the second army division, announcement of which was made to-day, a third will doubtless be sent to-day, and there will be the 70 per cent reinforcements and the 30,000 men always kept mobilized and in training in this country.

The second Canadian contingent will arrive in England early in January. This contingent, with the extra brigade of infantry sent with the first contingent over the requirement for one army division, will make a second complete army division. The second contingent will have longer time and a better opportunity for training, before sailing, than the first contingent, and should be in much better condition. The second army division will, therefore, not need so much training at Salisbury Plain, and will probably soon follow the first division to the battle front.

In addition to the two army divisions, and to any further contingents that may be sent over, there will also be sent a steady stream of reinforcements as they are required.

Four Hundred Delegates Will Attend Forty-ninth Annual Gathering at Sydenham Street Church — Big Programme Arranged.

Four hundred delegates are expected at the forty-ninth annual convention of the Ontario Sunday School association, which will open in Sydenham street Methodist church on Wednesday morning. It is of interest to note that the work of this association has increased as to require two conventions, one for western Ontario and the other for eastern Ontario. The convention for western Ontario was held in London last week and was attended by 250 delegates. J. P. Harrison, of Kingston, was a delegate, and he reports a fine convention.

The work of organizing the convention is under the management of Rev. E. W. Halpenny, the general secretary. Committees were busily engaged to-day making all the arrangements for the big convention. Rest rooms will be provided, also writing rooms, check rooms and post office.

The opening general session will take place at 1:30 p.m. on Wednesday, but the general public is welcome to attend all the meetings, the first of which will take place at nine o'clock Wednesday morning.

A very interesting part of the programme will be the singing. J. Ritchie Bell, superintendent of the Montreal Sailors' Institute, will have charge of the music. The convention will conclude on Friday evening. President Hamilton, of Toronto, will reside at the gathering.

The speakers for the convention will include John L. Alexander and Mrs. H. M. Leyda, of Chicago, both members of the International Sunday School association, and Rev. P. K. Dayfoot, of Toronto, general secretary of the Baptist church. Mayor Shaw will be present at the opening service and extend greetings.

THE HEMMING-GRANT NUPTIALS ON MONDAY.

The Groom is the Son of Col. Hemming, of Kingston, and is going to the Front.

The marriage took place at Halifax, N.S., at one o'clock on Monday afternoon, of Annie (Nan) Corriemoney, daughter of Lieut.-Col. J. A. Grant, A.D. of M.S., and Mrs. Grant, and Capt. R. H. Hemming, R.C.E., a son of Lieut.-Col. Hemming, officer commanding the third division, Kingston, Ont. Miss Grant is one of the most charming girls in her set, and Capt. Hemming is one of the most popular officers on this station, where he has spent the past six years. He has been assigned to duty as adjutant in the Eastern Ontario battalion of the overseas contingent.

The wedding was a very quiet one, the ceremony being performed at Col. Grant's summer cottage in Marlboro Woods. Rev. E. W. Ross, pastor of Fort Massey Presbyterian church, officiated. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore her going-away costume of grey sueded cloth, trimmed with sable and hat to correspond. Her bouquet was a shower of white chrysanthemums and lilies of the valley. She was attended by her sister, Miss Helen Grant, who wore a blue gown, her bouquet being of chrysanthemums. Mr. Doswell, R.C.E., attended the groom as best man. The ceremony was followed by a reception to which only relatives and a few very intimate friends were invited and later Captain and Mrs. Hemming left for Kingston. The bride wore on her wedding trip Alaskan sable furs, the gift of the groom. The gifts came from friends and well-wishers in many different parts of Canada, and were beautiful and valuable.

THE SECOND OVERSEAS CANADIAN CONTINGENT.

Bringing Strength Up to Forty-Seven Thousand Men — Two Brigades of Infantry, Complement of Artillery, and Necessary Units.

Ottawa, Nov. 2.—The following official statement was issued last night:—

There has been received from the British government a despatch to the effect that the Army Council wish the second overseas contingent to be so organized that, in conjunction with one of the four brigades of Canadian infantry already in England, it will form a division complete in itself as far as possible, with, in addition, a due proportion of Army Service Corps units for duty on lines of communications.

The contingent will accordingly consist of two brigades of infantry, eight battalions of artillery, signal, engineer, cyclist, signal and administrative units, Army Service Corps companies and field ambulances, and the following units for lines of communication purposes:—divisional ammunition park, divisional supply column, reserve park, field bakery, field butchery, railway supply detachment, and two depot units of supply.

The numerical strength of the contingent will be over 15,000 men, and the total Canadian expeditionary force, first and second contingents, will exceed 45,000, not counting reinforcements which will be required to maintain it in numbers and efficiency from the time it takes part in active operations. Reinforcements are calculated at a yearly rate of 70 per cent of the total force engaged.

If the war lasts another year Canada will in all probability have at least 130,000 under arms at the front, and mobilized at the various divisional centres in the dominion.

In addition to the second army division, announcement of which was made to-day, a third will doubtless be sent to-day, and there will be the 70 per cent reinforcements and the 30,000 men always kept mobilized and in training in this country.

The second Canadian contingent will arrive in England early in January. This contingent, with the extra brigade of infantry sent with the first contingent over the requirement for one army division, will make a second complete army division. The second contingent will have longer time and a better opportunity for training, before sailing, than the first contingent, and should be in much better condition. The second army division will, therefore, not need so much training at Salisbury Plain, and will probably soon follow the first division to the battle front.

In addition to the two army divisions, and to any further contingents that may be sent over, there will also be sent a steady stream of reinforcements as they are required.
