ATTITUDE OF HOLLAND

DUTCH NEWSPAPERMAN REPLIES TO CLEMENCEAU.

He Claims That the Dutch Are Not Helping the German—Clemenceau Makes Comment.

Paris, Nov. 11.—L'Homme Enchaîné prints a letter from a Dutch newspaperman, for ten years a resident in Paris, who replies to M. Clemenceau's assertions that Holland is pro-German beyond the limits of neutrality.

"I know Holland intimately. Any such statement is erroneous. The Dutch population is distinctly anti-Boche. I have just received a characteristic letter from a professor in Amsterdam University, who, though his mother is German, denounces German atrocities more violently than most anti-German French newspapers."

"You blame us for supplying food to Germany. I say that the Dutch are not supplying it, but we can prevent the Germans who commercialized invaded Holland as they did Paris, from sending non-contraband materials? Does Dutch charity toward the millions of Belgians strike you as pro-German?"

M. Clemenceau comments on this: "I have not attacked the attitude of the Dutch nation, which the correspondent doubtless represented correctly, but I maintain that the Dutch government is markedly less anti-German. Surely public opinion is able to influence the leaders if it is so definitely friendly to France."

BRITISH PENSION PLAN

Too Far to Meet Socialist and Labor Demands.

London, Nov. 11.—The government has made public the details of a new plan for allowances and pensions to the dependents of soldiers and sailors. Without meeting fully the demands made by the socialists and workmen's party, the plan goes a long way to meet the criticisms of the existing scheme, and it is believed increased the cause of more enlistments.

Provision is made in the plan for state assistance to fathers and mothers or mother dependents of unmarried men. The scale of pensions to widows and orphans is considerably increased. The separation allowances will be paid for twenty-six weeks after notification of death.

A widow with four children will now receive a minimum of twenty shillings (about $5) instead of eleven shillings weekly. A widow on re-marriage will receive the minimum gratuity of $195 instead of $65. Total disability will carry a pension of from fourteen shillings per week for a single man to the lowest rank, to twenty-three shillings for a married man with children.

MONTREAL SCENTS PLOT.

Concrete Foundations on Site Command Five Railway Lines.

Montreal, Nov. 11.—Through the arrest of John Hoe, alias John Hughes, Inspector Brousseau of the inland revenue department, believes that a German plot has been uncovered whereby a foreign foe, by means of a battery of guns, might control from a strategic point in Longueuil all five railroad lines entering Montreal. He is charged with selling liquor without a license.

Hoe's place of business, it is alleged, was the rendezvous of many Germans of Montreal. The foundation of this club house is alleged to be of solid concrete construction in the style used for the mounting of heavy guns used by the German army.

Inspector Brousseau seized, when he raided Hoe's premises, a large quantity of ammunition, which turned out to be a regular "bar ammunition."

France May Banish Absinthe Forever

Paris, Nov. 11.—Permanent prohibition of the sale of absinthe and kindred alcoholic beverages in France may be a result of the war. Transportation and sale of absinthe were forbidden when the war began, but traffic in other intoxicants has now supplemented its original order, with another forbidding the sale of any alcoholic drinks similar to absinthe. There is a marked movement in all parts of France tending to perpetuate this prohibition.

THE TERRIBLE DEEDS

DONE BY THE GERMAN SOLDIERS IN BELGIUM.

Wounded Belgian Tells of Some Things He Saw—A Bridge Was Made of Dead.

Toronto, Nov. 11.—Scattered throughout the length and breadth of England—and of Scotland and Ireland, too—are hundreds of private houses which have been turned over to the war office to be utilized as hospitals. Some of these are mansions; some small residences, but whatever their capacity for Red Cross work at this time of writing, most of them have their full quota of patients.

It was at one of these "house hospitals," near the village of Hayes, in Kent, that The World representative gained his first experience of the sterner side of this war. Also, he was told a tale of German atrocities in ravaged Belgium which would seem unbelievable were it not corroborated by the testimony of thousands of other sufferers.

In this little hospital, when The World called "company with another Canadian officer, were 10 wounded Belgians. The billiard-room and drawing-room had been converted into wards, and here in comfortable beds lay these few of the defenders of Antwerp. Eight of the ten had been hit by shrapnel, one by a fragment of a shell and one only by rifle fire.

One man had been struck in the jaw, the bullet passing into his head, and another man, all of them had spent four or five days until defense was no longer possible, and then, with the Germans a few hundred yards away, stricken as they were, they had managed to crawl into the trench, the trench through which were on the march to the sea.

It was from Corporal G. H. Filipe of the 110th Belgian Infantry that some details were gathered of the heroism of the last Belgian stronghold.

Bitter Criticism. Nursing a wound in his forehead and crippled with rheumatism in the result of days and nights in the water-soaked trenches, he told his account of the fighting he had seen since the war commenced. He spoke fair English, but at times when the recollection of all he had suffered (about $5) instead of eleven shillings weekly.

"I came up to service the day the Germans invaded our country," said the corporal. "My wife and child I have not seen since. Perhaps like hundreds of other women and children, they have met their death at the hands of the butchers."

Here he caught a look of surprise on the face of your correspondent and raising himself up with difficulty he said: "Ah, monsieur, you do not believe the German soldiers are guilty of atrocities. Let me tell you, they have shot men, boys, too, with their noses cut off and their ears cut off. Not Belgian soldiers, but peaceful citizens. Why was this done? I do not know, unless because the barbarians thought they were dealing with people who had furnished their Belgian fellow countrymen with information. I have seen worse. I have seen the body of a little baby, a three-year-old boy, who had been thrown into his mother's arms and then pitched into his mother's arms. I know of worse things, but they cannot be written about. Do you know that they took an 11-year-old boy-scout and cut off his right hand?"

They Are Barbarians. By this time several of the other patients were sitting up listening to their corporals' story. "That's true," said two in unison, and others nodded their heads in agreement. "Yes, better that a Belgian shoots himself than fall into their hands."

The corporal went on to describe the bombardment of the forts on the southwest of Antwerp. The first intimation that the defenders of Antwerp had of the approach of the invaders was the explosion of a shell which wrecked part of the fortifications. It had been fired from a 16-inch howitzer at a distance of not less than 13 miles. Not a German was in sight and yet within an hour followed the salvo of the big shells the fort was untenable.

The defenders went to the trenches and the machine guns, the onslaught of the German infantry. Three times the Prussians sought to bridge a shallow stream which lay between them and their objective; and three times the Belgians with field guns and machine guns and rifled shot threw them back. The loss was enormous.

Made Bridge of Dead. "They were lying in heaps," said Corporal Filipe, "in the trenches all over the plain and in the river. And then, under cover of heavy guns, they came on again, and this time they crossed the stream. They crossed it on the bodies of their own dead, which they carried and plunged to the shallow water. Yes, that is true. Ask my comrades."

The Belgian N.C.O. narrated some of the hardships endured by the fugitives in the retreat from Antwerp. How wounded men had dropped down on the road and died without a chance of having their hurts attended to. How women and men had fallen exhausted and had not been since heard of. How soldiers, without sleep for a period of three days in the trenches, had marched along half asleep supported by comrades.

"My country," said the corporal, "who in civil life is an electrician, was wiped out. The 'cultured' Germans have made of prospering Belgium a blackened desolate desert. Of my own regiment only a handful remain. But the day will come when we will repay Monsieur le Prussian for his work. All we ask now is revenge. It will come."

Certainly if every Belgian is anti-

THE EASIEST WAY TO END DANDRUFF

Stop Falling Hair and Itching Scalp.

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

If you want to keep your hair looking rich, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for nothing destroys the hair so quickly. It not only starves the hair and makes it fall out, but it makes it stringy, straggly, dull, dry, brittle and lifeless, and everybody notices it. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.
