

A PART OF ENGLAND'S SECOND ARMY IN FIELD

General French Makes Mention of Its Work.

IT COVERED RETREAT

OF THE BELGIAN ARMY FROM ANTWERP.

Fighting Between Armentieres and Ypres in Last Stages—Germans May Become More Active At Sea—Submarines Ready at Zebrugge.

London, Nov. 30.—A large portion of England's second army of 1,000,000 men is now in France. This was made clear today, following the receipt of Gen. French's report giving details of fighting between Oct. 11th and Nov. 20th, in which he mentioned the presence of the fourth army corps, commanded by Sir Henry Rawlinson. The report of Gen. French is the first mention of this army corps at the front. Gen. Rawlinson's command was in Belgium as early as the middle of October when the retreat of the Belgians from Antwerp was covered. The British commander pays high tribute to Gen. Rawlinson in carrying out this operation which he declares was most difficult.

In concluding his report, Gen. French declared that there were no signs that fighting from Armentier-es to Ypres is entering its final stages. It is accepted here that the position of allied armies is entirely favorable. It is confidently believed, however, that with the slackening of fighting on land in the western theatre, greater activity may be shown at sea by Germany. Work at Zebrugge is being pushed with utmost speed. The German submarines there are now reported as being ready for sea duty, and parts of additional vessels are said to have arrived by rail for construction in dockyards.

Warrant Withdrawal.

Discussing details of the engagement from Ypres to Armentieres, General French explains that he was impressed early in October with the necessity of giving the greatest possible support to the northern flank of the allies, in the effort to outflank the enemy and compel him to evacuate his position.

He says that the situation on the Aisne warranted the withdrawal of British troops from positions they held there, as the enemy had been weakened by continued attacks and the fortifications of the allies much improved.

General French made known his view to General Joffre, who agreed with it. The French general staff arranged for the withdrawal of the British which began on October 3rd and was completed on October 19th, when the First Army Corps under General Sir Douglas Haig retreated at St. Omer.

TURNKEY IS MURDERED AND JAILER IS DYING

Pembroke, Nov. 30.—Robert Coxford, turnkey of the Renfrew county jail here, was murdered, and William Brown, the jailer, lies at death's door, as the result of a successful attempt at jail-breaking by two Indians, White Duck and Anthony Jacko, late yesterday afternoon. The redskins were being held pending trial on a charge of theft from Grand Trunk freight cars at Golden Lake. Both got clean away, and the countryside is being scourged by armed parties in search of them.

The Indians were in the corridor fronting the cells in the jail when Coxford entered with some supplies. The turnkey had occasion to enter a cupboard in the corridor, and as soon as he had his back turned, one of the Indians came up with a club and dealt him a smashing blow on the head, fracturing his skull. Death ensued in a few minutes.

Aroused by the sound of the fall, Jailer Brown rushed to the scene, seizing the first available weapon he could find, an iron poker. Inside the corridor the Indians were waiting, and Brown was soon overpowered and the poker wrested from him. He was beaten into insensibility with a tomahawk, and the Indians, likely believing him dead, made their way through the door entering the corridor, and then escaped by the main entrance to the county buildings.

As soon as the alarm was raised, Sheriff Morris assumed charge, and many citizens volunteered to aid in the chase. Every road from the town was immediately placed under a strong guard, but up till a late hour last night no trace was found of the Indians.

A special G.T.R. train was chartered by citizens and left for Golden Lake, about twenty miles from Pembroke. It is thought the Indians will make for the reserve there to secure supplies, arms, and ammunition, and then endeavor to make their escape to the upper waters of the Bonnechere River, where capture would be exceedingly difficult.

Hour Has Not Arrived For German Fleet

London, Nov. 30.—The Daily Telegraph special correspondent at Rotterdam reports:

"Captain Persius, naval critic of the Berliner Tageblatt, in an article on the German naval position, says: Many German hopes at the beginning of the war were built on somewhat fantastic foundations. The British fleet was under-estimated, and it was considered that there was absolutely no reason why Britain should continue to rule the seas. The results had forced Germany in a great measure to withdraw this view. Even the greatest British losses must not be regarded as decisive events, he suggests.

"An English newspaper statement that Britain is satisfied with what her fleet has done proves in a negative way that such complete satisfaction does not exist. He contradicts the claim that there is evidence that German submarines have been more successful than British submarines, but admits that after four months the German scheme for wearing down the British fleet has not yet succeeded. The psychological moment has not yet arrived for the use of German battleships and large cruisers.

"We must be careful, Captain Persius concludes, 'not to jump ourselves up with false estimates of the position of affairs. We must not forget that in spite of the glorious success of our cruisers in Chilean waters and the success of our submarines, there has not yet occurred any significant weakening of the sea power of Britain as the result of the war.'

From present intentions, so far as the government is concerned, a short session will be held starting in January, and the election will take place probably at the end of February.

Campaign literature is being assiduously prepared at the government bureau, and a tactfully prepared pamphlet, purporting to answer the question, "Why Three Dreadnoughts," has already been extensively circulated. Orders have been given for the preparation of cartoons calculated to appeal to the electorate on behalf of the government. Organization preparations are also going forward at various centres.

RUSSIA THROWS ARMY ACROSS CARPATHIANS

Ferocious Fighting Carried on Under Difficulties in Bitter Cold and Snowstorms.

Lemberg, Galicia, Nov. 30. (via Petrograd and London)—The Russians appear to have accomplished the difficult feat of throwing an army through the Carpathian mountains southwest of Lemberg. Fighting in the Carpathians has been most ferocious, being carried on under extraordinary difficulties, which were increased by the severe cold, the bitter winds and occasional snowstorms. Reports received here say that in their operations against the Austrians the Russians have won important success during the interrupted fighting for the last two days.

Austrian officers who have been captured say that they never considered the possibility that the Carpathians would be crossed at this time of the year with such a degree of success as the Russians are reported to have attained. The assertion is made by Russian officers that the Austrians are not in a position to defend Galicia. The army which crossed the mountains, they say, found a distracted population suffering from hunger and privation.

In Sending Canadian Contingent to the Front.

Ottawa, Nov. 30.—Letters received here from veterans of the South African and other wars, with the first Canadian contingent at Salisbury Plain, indicate that they are becoming weary of the long delay in getting to the front. One of the South African veterans who travelled to Valenciennes at his own expense to enlist with the Strathcona Horse, writes that he did not do this with the idea of spending several months in barracks, and that if the Canadian contingent does not go forward soon, he proposes to apply for a transfer to the regular British cavalry regiment now at the front.

"Attacks upon Bagatelle in the Argonne have been repulsed. Soissons has been subjected to fire from the enemy's artillery.

"On the Meuse heights, a heavy fog prevails. The forest of Apremont was bombarded by the enemy without success, and the situation in the Woivre district is unchanged."

War Tidings.

Gen. French gives it as his opinion that the German losses have been as great as those of the allies.

The Russians announce success on the Austrian side of the Carpathians and against the Turks in the Caucasus, although in both regions the worst of weather has prevailed.

It is stated that General Von Moltke, chief of the German general staff, is not suffering from liver complaint, but is a prisoner in one of the imperial palaces. Von Moltke admits that he miscalculated demands on transports, troops and supplies.
