Woman Fifty Years Old-Coughed More or Less Since Childhood-Found No Relief Until She Got Vinol.

Dayton, Ohio .- "I want everybody to know what Vinol has done for me. I am now fifty years old and ever since I was a young girl I have had a cough most the devil's prescription for developof the time, and sick headaches which left me weak and with no desire for took all kinds of medicines but nothing seemed to do me any good. Finally my druggist asked me to try Vinol, saying that if it did not help me he would refund my money. I felt so much better after taking one bottle I bought more. Now my cough is entirely cured. I have no more sick headaches. I have a good appetite and feel better than I ever did in my life, ard I cannot recommend Vinol too highly."-Mrs. J. C. SCHNEIDER, Day-

Vinol is not a secret nostrum, simply a combination of the medicinal elements | Smarting silently 'neath the sting found in cod livers, together with fonic iron, contains no oil and is delicious But, lo! comes through the chil tasting. We ask every man or woman in this vicinity suffering from chronic coughs, colds or bronchitis, and every weak, run-down person to try Vinol.

HE SLEW SEXTRIES. "Blackbird" Is Credited With Having

Been an Englishman. When the Germans were besieging Paris in 1870-71 the French sentries on the outer fortifications facing Mont Valerien were much perturbed at the exploits of a mysterious individual whom, because of his eccentric dress and appearance, they nick named "The Blackbird." Night after night this extraordinary man would sally forth, armed with a short repeating rifle, and stalk the unhappy sentinels on the ramparts and in the outskirts of the city, as a hunter stalks game. He fired with extraordinary precision and rarely failed to bring down his quarry, whereas shots fired at him seeme to be absolutely without effect. He used to dress all in black, and his face was either blackened or cov ered with a black mask, so that it was exceedingly difficult to make sure of hitting him. At length, however, after he had accounted for over s score of French sentries, he was kfiled by a bullet in the brain fired by a sergeant in charge of one of the city patrols. It was then found that he was wearing a concealed coat of mail very finely wrought, beneath his outer garments, which consisted of a black velvet coat, knickerbockers, and black silk stockings. On his hands were black gloves, and his face was partially covered by a black steel

Who he was or why he made war on his own account in this eccentric fashion was never known. Some said that he was a German count, others that he was an Austrian baron. To Scotland's Poets.

One of the finest memorials in the world commemorates a poet, the author of "The Lady of the Lake" and "Marmion." This is the Scott monument, the chief ornament of Princess street, Edinburgh. The peet is seated under a magnificent canopy, and by his side is his favorite collie. Maida. This remarkable memorial also shows the correct likeness of 16 other Scottish poets and statuettes of 64 of Scott's "characters."

Scotland has another beautiful statue to a poet, but very few people see this in comparison with the crowds who view the Scott monment, for it stands-or, rather, sits-beside St. Mary's Loch in Ettrick Forest. commemorates James Hogg, who was called "The Ettrick Shepherd," and, as in Scott's case, his dog, too, enjoys a twin immortality - the faithful sheep-dog Lutham, which was the poet's constant companion for many

With no special training in medicine, she was obliged to join a little expert band of doctors and nurses as interpreter. Not one of her companions knew French or German, and though a wounded man can make anybody understand when he wants a drink of water, his foreign friends are often left in the dark as to his more elaborate needs. Miss Nellie Hozier has a fund of the high courage that goes with high spirits. She was in the first flight of young women to loop the loop at Hendon. Ready Retort.

Captain Godfrey, who wrote the first book on British boxing-"A 'Treatise on the Useful Science of Defence" - once appeared in the King's Bench as surety for a friend for three thousand pounds, Although Serjeant Willoughby, the opposing counsel, knew well that the captain was good for a larger amount, he insisted on proof that he was worth as much. Slowly the captain recited particulars of his means, and finally Willoughby said there was still "not enough by sixty pounds."

Legend of Drake's Drum.

According to the legend, Drake's drum is to sound again, "when England was in danger," but the suggestion of a correspondent of The Pall Mall Gazette that it should be beaten at some of the recruiting stations will certainly not be adopted. DUM-DUM BULLETS

They Were First Made at the Woolwich of India.

The origin of the name and the cause which led to the invention of dum-dum bullets form a story which seems to be little known, but which is of peculiar interest in view of the fact that the Germans are accusing the allies of using them in contravention of the articles of warfare laid down by The Hague Convention which prohibits the use of soft-nosed or explosive bullets. To quote the actual words of the rule relating to dum-dum bullets, "The Powers agree to abstain from the use of bullets with a hard envelope which does not entirely cover the core, or is pierced

It was the British troops in India that first brought into use the dumdum bullets. In the petty wars on the northwest frontier of India our soldiers were often exposed to night attacks in camp by fanatic swordsmen known as Ghazis, or fighting dervishes, and it was found that the rush of men of this sort at close quarters was not to be stopped by the needleprick of the modern rifls bullet, and that it was absolutely necessary to make the bullet more effective in these special circumstances. > These pointed bullets, it seems, are apt to turn sideways on striking a man or an animal at short range, with the result that although the hole caused by the entry of the bullet is small, round, and clean-cut, the skin is often torn open where they pass out on the other side. Mr. Selous relates how on several occasions he has found one of these long, solidpointed bullets, absolutely unimpaired in shape, lying broadside under the skin of an animal, through whose body it had torn a large lacerated wound. At long range, however, when the velocity of the bullet has slowed down, they do not cause such
