CHEER OF CHRISTMAS

IN THE PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS ON FRIDAY.

The inmates had a very happy time. They were feasted and entertained.

The Hotel Dieu management always makes the patients feel cheerful at Christmas time. The wards and corridors were all decorated with most pleasing effect.

In the chapel, Sister Leahy and other sisters most beautifully embellished the altars and constructed a manger. The manger is surrounded by palms upon which is embossed the Latin phrase, "Gloria In Excelsis Deo, Venite Adoremus."

At midnight on Thursday high mass was celebrated. On Christmas day, the annual treat was tendered to the patients.

At the Penitentiary.

Christmas Day was observed in the usual way at the big prison in Portsmouth. Only routine work was carried out, the day being observed as a holiday for the convicts.

At the General Hospital.

The general hospital was very prettily decorated in honor of Christmas Day, and everything possible was done to make the day a bright and happy one for the patients.

Home For the Aged.

The inmates at the Home for the Aged, had a bright and happy Christmas.

"Everyone is feeling fine and having a joyous Christmas," said the superintendent, when the Whig called, and the inmates verified his statement.

At House of Providence.

At the House of Providence where some ninety-six men and seventy-eight women are sheltered from the cares of the world, the Sisters of Charity and Mother Superior spared no amount of pains to make everyone of them feel at home.

JUST ONE CONDITION.

The Job Had to Be Made in Canada.

Here's another little story of the "scrap-of-paper" variety. And it contains a profound principle.

No many days ago the presses of a large printing firm in Toronto were ready to start running on a big order of booklets.

It was a good helpful job, indicating that the firm, whose name was on the front page—for the printer's sake we'll call it Hobbs and Johnson—expected to adhere to the motto, "Business as Usual." An increase on the last order, some cheerful announcement of what was doing and what was just as important, the very best kind of paper to be used in the printing.

"Nothing cheap about that firm, Bill," said the pressman to the foreman.

"Stock's real nifty, Tom. Hope you got a good make-ready on the press?"

"Oh, sure. She's all right. Let her buzz in the booth. Foreman went."

"Hello—this is Hobbs and Johnson."

"Yes, sir—about that booklet run? It's on the press now."

"What kind of paper are you using?"

"Why, very best of —" mentioning a name familiar to users of high-grade paper.

SHED HIS HEART'S BLOOD.

Student Received $25 and Bought Girl's Present.

New York, Dec. 26.—Eight ounces of blood helped to buy a friend of a Columbia student a Christmas present this year.

Pressed for funds out determined his "best gift" should have a holiday gift, this student jumped at the chance offered by St. Luke's hospital to furnish this amount of blood for one of their patients in return for a cheque for $25.

No sooner had he divulged to a few of his friends at the university that a little blood would open up the coffers of St. Luke's hospital, than a host of students quickly besieged the hospital for a chance to offer up their life's fluid in return for the dollars which would buy Christmas presents.

The first news of this new scheme of employment for Columbia students came in an interview to-day with Paul C. Holter, the new secretary of the employment bureau of the university who declined to give the student's name.

The money stringency which has been felt throughout the country has had a telling effect on the employment committee at Columbia, and the number of jobs open to the students have fallen off nearly one-third.

DANCE ONLY WITH KHAKI.

London Women Are Boycotting Men Not in Uniform.

London, Dec. 26.—Cupid may yet be responsible for bringing more men to the colors than the British recruiting officers believe possible.

This time Cupid works through the boycott and tango. In the last few days with many dances back from the front on furlough, after-dinner dances have been resumed with a vengeance.

In fact, it was really the demands of these officers to have dances that some leading hotels resented them again after an entire absence of such amusement since the first week of the war, and here comes Cupid and the boycott, for scores of women refuse to dance with anyone not in khaki or with one who cannot show good cause for being otherwise dressed.

As a consequence, many civilian dances are doomed to some evening during Yuletide. Military men have been given to some dances, such, for instance, as the "Jach Johnson Glide."

Avoid the Dealer Who Tries to Sell You "Something Just as Good"

WHEN you ask for PATRONIZE dealers who give you what you ask for. Articles advertised in this paper are always meritorious.

HEREAFTER say: I want such and such an article, and insist on getting it. Do not say: "Have you such and such an article?"

WHEN you ask for a certain article, make sure you get it. Remember only meritorious articles are imitated, which is a double reason why you should insist on the original.

BE careful to insist you get what you ask for; a good plan would be to avoid substituting dealers.
