HAD A FINE BANQUET

LIFE UNDERWRITERS MET ON FRIDAY NIGHT.

Gathered at British-American Hotel.—A. J. Meiklejohn, President of Life Underwriters' Association of Canada, Spoke.

"The outlook financially, and for insurance men, is not at all disheartening. We can look forward to a good year. It will need a little reorganization as regards the methods of work and the class of people we go to, however. Life insurance is the only asset business men have which has not depreciated in value."

The above is the encouraging message which A. J. Meiklejohn, president of the Life Underwriters' Association of Canada, gave to the members of the Life Underwriters' Association of Kingston and district, at their sixth annual banquet, held on Friday night at the British-American hotel, and which was a great success from every standpoint.

Members of the association, with a number of their friends, gathered around the festive board, and after doing justice to the very tasty spread, listened to eloquent and inspiring addresses. It was, indeed, a happy gathering, showing the good fellowship which should and does exist among the insurance men of this city and district. The menu was all that could be desired; the service was excellent.

A musical programme was rendered during the evening and at the close every one voted it a fine event. The members of the association are to be congratulated for the success which marked their efforts.

J. K. Carroll, the president, presided, and in an able manner carried out the duties of toastmaster. The toast to "The King" was proposed by the president and responded to by the entire company singing the National Anthem.

The president then proposed the toast to "The City of Kingston" to which Mayor Sutherland responded. The mayor referred to the educational advantages of Kingston and took occasion to speak of the great work of the graduates of the Royal Military College, students of Queen's University, and citizens generally, were taking in the great war. Speaking of the city and industrial conditions he pointed out that one of the great drawbacks had been the lack of cheap power. The city was showing aggressiveness in this matter, he believed, and he felt sure that Kingston would soon "come into her own."

Mayor Sutherland also spoke of the work being carried on by the members of the Underwriters' Association and its importance.

The president introduced Mr. Meiklejohn paying tribute to his work, and stating that it spoke well for his ability, when he had been honored with the highest gift in the hands of the association.

Mr. Meiklejohn gave a splendid address in which he dealt with the activities of the association, the work it was carrying on, the outlook for the year, and the advantages and characteristics of membership in the association.

He regarded the men engaged in the business as public servants. They not only entered the work to make money for themselves, but also to serve their fellowmen, and he believed that they were accomplishing something. He was glad to know that the local association was in good shape and that the membership was increasing.

The work was regarded as a profession. It had to do with the educating of the public, as well as themselves as to the advantages of the business. The speaker referred to the proposition now on foot for a nationwide publicity "for the institution of life insurance."

The speaker referred to the meaning and fundamental principles were to be set forth in every quarter. The speaker intended to take the subject up at Prof. Skidton of Queen's University during his stay in this city. It was a question for the universities to take up. Reference was then made to the financial outlook of the business, which was most encouraging for the year 1915.

Canon W. F. Fitzgerald, of St. Paul's church, replied to the toast "Canada," with an eloquent and stirring address, at the same time speaking on the value of life insurance. A great deal could be said about the resources of Canada, but was there not a danger of our boasting too much, and growing vain and materialistic. The speaker wished to impress upon his hearers that the greatest asset young Canadians could have was that of being truthful, honorable, pure, respectful to parents, employers, and all others, and being possessed with the idea that they were part of their country.

We should have the proper idea of empire, virtue, truth, honor and relationship to God. J. W. Corbett ably proposed the toast to "Our Guests," to which Felix S. S. Johnson, United States consul, replied. He referred to the fact that Great Britain and the States were about to celebrate one hundred years of peace, but that the celebration had been marred by the present war, but declared that in the end right would prevail.

The musical part of the programme included songs by Ald. D. Couper, "Jack" Tomkins and Stephen Roughson. Bert Couper presiding at the piano. Ald. Couper's song about the Kaiser and Kitchener brought down the house, while his rendition of "Tipperary" made a great hit. In this song all present joined heartily in the chorus. It was given with a snap and vim which would do any regiment going to the front proud. It was clearly shown that insurance men could sing the soldier's marching song.

After a motion of T. W. Mills, seconded by Howard S. Folger, tendering a vote of thanks to all the speakers, guests, and host, had been passed, the gathering was brought to a happy close at 11:15 o'clock with the singing of "God Save The King." Mr. Meiklejohn resides in Ottawa.
