Savagery in Warfare New York Evening Post.

The world will wait with interest for an official justification from Berlin of the German air raid upon non-combatants in undefended English towns. In truth, it cannot be justified. . . It is a bit of pure savagery in warfare. We assert this, not because the Germans did it, but because it was done at all. Whoever does it ought to fall under heaviest condemnation of civilized men. We do not say that the British would not have done the same murderous strife, may not impel them? But there are laws by which tions and coast guard detachments, it would have been terrible, but it would have been lawful. Even so, the large expediency of the might have been questioned. what we have, in the detailed accounts of the bomb-dropping, with fortified English towns, is a mere exhibition of ferocity.

THE NEW YEAR.

Scaforth Highlanders Bring It In With Quaint Ceremony

The Seaforth Eighlanders, now as the front, have one of the most pecu liar New Year's Eve customs of the whole British army. The ceremony is picturesque and imposing.

On the night of Hogmanay, at about half-past ten, the regiment assembles in the barrack square. A few minutes later the oldest soldier in the battalion, dressed up as a druid, makes his appearance, to the accompaniment of a flourish of trumpets. and ascending the improvised throne, he calls on the ancient veterans to show their uniforms and achievements of bygone times. To the music of the pipes and brass band, veteran after veteran, arrayed in the uni-forms worn by the regiment at different periods, marches past, and sa-lutes the druid. The druid then toasts "The Seaforth Highlanders." After a display of Highland dancing, the alarm is sounded, and the second oldest soldier, arrayed as Hospital and will go to Montreal for special training for a month before leaving for the front.

Howard Churchill and O'Gorman Lee were in Kingston the fore part of druid.

Father Time, approaches. The veterans now retreat, leaving their honors to be guarded by their successors, and Father Time expels the druid.

At the last stroke of midnight a loud knock is heard at the gate, and out rings the sentry's challenge "Halt! Who goes there?"
"The New Year!" comes back the "Advance, New Year, and give the counter-sign!" is the next command. "Cabar feidth gu brath!" (the "Pass, New Year; all's well!" The gate is then opened, and th youngest boy of the battalion enters dressed as the high chief of ancient Ross, to represent the New Year The colonel shakes hands with the boy, while the band strikes up "A Guid New Year to Ane and A'. After the colonel's greeting to the battalion the National Anthem is played, and the men fall out,
