POSITIVES AND NEGATIVES IN Women's World

Business divides individuals into two broad classes—the "positives" and the "negatives." The first type is the person who can. She usually lands in some executive post some time, somewhere. Winter Breakfast Breads Here Are Some Recipes for Muffins, Rolls, Biscuits and Buns That Are Satisfying

Hot breads for breakfast are almost a necessity in winter. At least, they are highly desirable. The morning appetite in cold weather demands something substantial, and it gladly takes this substantial dish in the form of a muffin, a roll or some other tempting bit of bread.

Here are some receipts: not new, but nevertheless, good. Better, perhaps, because they have been tried and found satisfying and reliable.

Plain Muffins. One egg well beaten, a tablespoonful of butter and a tablespoonful of sugar, with a teaspoonful of salt, all beaten until very light. One cup of milk, three of sifted flour and three tablespoonfuls of baking powder.

Twin Mountain Muffins. One quarter cupful butter, one quarter cupful sugar, one egg well beaten, three quarters cupful milk, two cupfuls flour, two teaspoonful of baking powder. Cream the butter, add gradually the sugar, then the egg. Sift the flour and baking powder thoroughly and add to the mixture alternately with the milk. Bake in hot buttered gem pans 25 minutes.

Sour Cream Biscuits. Four cupfuls of flour. One teaspoonful of soda and one teaspoonful of salt sifted together. One pint of sour cream. Roll out on a floured board, having the dough one inch thick. Cut with biscuit cutter and put the biscuits in a greased pan just touching each other. Bake from twelve to fifteen minutes in a hot oven.

Cornmeal Rolls. One and one fourth cupfuls white flour, three quarters cupful cornmeal, four teaspoonfuls baking powder, one half teaspoonful salt, one tablespoonful sugar, two tablespoonful butter, one egg, three quarters cupful milk. All measurements level. Mix and stir dry ingredients into a bowl, chop butter in with knife, beat egg, add milk and add all dry ingredients to make a soft dough that can be handled; add more milk if necessary; turn onto a flour-board, toss lightly and roll out with round cutter, put a piece of butter size of a pea in centre of each; fold round in centre so opposite edges meet, put onto a buttered baking sheet; rub the top with milk and bake in a quick oven twelve to fifteen minutes.

Coffee Buns. Sift together two quarts of flour, a pinch of salt and a teaspoonful of granulated sugar. Make a hole in the middle of this, pour in one pint of home-made yeast and mix thoroughly; then stir in one half teaspoonful of melted butter. Mix to a stiff batter with lukewarm milk; knead into a smooth dough and let it stand in a warm place overnight. In the morning knead again, roll out lightly and cut with a biscuit cutter. Put in a greased baking pan, allowing about one half inch between. Brush the tops with milk and sprinkle with granulated sugar. Bake in a moderate oven for about 30 minutes.

Southern Corn Bread. Sift two cupfuls of cornmeal twice with an even teaspoonful of soda and as much salt. Beat two eggs very light. Mix one teaspoonful of sugar in three cupfuls of buttermilk and one cupful of melted butter, lastly the prepared flour. Have ready three well-greased deep jelly cake tins (warmed), divide the batter between them and bake in a quick oven.
