A GOOD RECORD.

The year 1914 has been a banner year for the Mutual Life of Canada, having written the largest business in its history. This success is due very largely to the excellent settlements to policyholders in the way of profits and the fact that it is a purely mutual company, being relieved of paying any of its earnings to stockholders.

Toronto Saturday Night, in its financial review, says the Mutual Life is probably the best life insurance company in Canada today. The fact that this year's business secured under conditions of such financial depression speaks volumes for the merits of the company. Those contemplating insurance will save money by placing their application with this excellent company.

EACH WEEK SOME

ONE OF THE VERY NEW AND SUCCESSFUL COLORS

New Wrap Coats Very Picturesque—Black and White Checked Cloth With Mirror Velvet Has Again Become Fashionable—Caps Close Fitting.

Paris, Feb. 23.—Each week, one might indeed say each day, some new shades of gray is introduced into the world of fashion. And of all these beautiful neutral tints the clear blue-grays are the most attractive and becoming.

One of the very new and successful colors is dreadsought gray, which is rather dark, but quite clean and clear. Not a suggestion of taupe appears in this delightful color, and the blue tinge which runs through it is the blue of a military coat. Wrap coats made of velours de laine or sordanaise in this particular gray are charming. They can be worn over almost any dress, but are at their best in conjunction with a one-piece dress made of dreadsought gray charmeuse or velveteen.

Some of the new wrap-coats are especially picturesque in outline. They are very full at the hem and many of the models fall in soft folds over the bust and hips. The latest idea is a wrap-coat gathered at the neck and banded in at the waist in Russian blouse fashion. It would look lovely in any soft woollen material, or might be made of diagonal serge with advantage. The costume seen here the other day was made entirely of velours de laine, coat and skirt alike. But of course, such a warm skirt would only be suitable for cold weather, while the coat might be worn in May or even June.

One of the most important novelties of the early spring season is the combination of serge and taffetas or serge and charmeuse. The loveliest afternoon gowns are being made of these materials and with admirable results. The idea was launched by a famous dressmaker, and it will undoubtedly become very popular.

For example, take a visiting gown composed of navy blue charmeuse and navy blue serge of the finest quality. The skirt was exaggeratedly full at the hem and so short that it really took one's breath away! It was rather flat back and front, and at the sides the material fell in full folds. The skirt, which was made of charmeuse, was trimmed with bias bands of serge in graduated widths. There was a wide band at the hem, and two others, narrower, appeared higher up. It was a one-piece frock, and there was a sort of bolero arrangement in serge introduced on the corsage.

At the neck it was cut open in a small square, and there was a high muslin collar which hardly showed in front, but which was held in place by a length of scarlet velvet ribbon. Then there was a coatee in charmeuse, which was gathered into a band at the back of the waist, and finished off at the neck by a sailor collar which fell over the shoulders. This coatee was fastened with large buttons made of red quartz trimmed with jet.

Black and white checked cloth is again fashionable. This material is combined with black mirror velvet and also with the new make of taffetas which has a chiffon surface and which is very firm, although supple.

One check model which pleased me had a deep stem of black mirror velvet and a coatee in which the waist-coat was black velvet and the square collar white hemstitched linen. There was a touch of rich purple at the neck, and it was to be accompanied by a toque which was completely covered with dark purple violets. Ribbon velvet is drawn through the folded brim. This would make a suitable hat for half-mourning, if it were carried out in black satin, trimmed either with white roses or gardenias.

There still remains to be described that close fitting helmet cap which is distinctly of military inspiration. It is carried out in soft suede chosen in a pale shade of gray, and on the center of the brim in front there is a single deep red rose. The large black mounts at the back of the hat are composed partly of heron and partly of vulture plumage.

Great Eaters.

Some time ago Molloy, the "world's champion eater," ate eighty-five pounds of beef at one meal for a bet, and after pocketing the stakes he retired to an eating-house and there consumed three large tins of salmon and four apple tarts. Another great London eater rose to fame by swallowing, at one sitting, three gallons of marrowfat peas. This was good, but not up to the beef-eater's feat. A scientific eater in Ireland succeeded in storing seventy-two eggs in ten minutes, then had room to put away a quart of milk to settle them. Drinking feasts are more common than eating ones; but the American brewer who won $1,250 on a drinking wager may well stand as a champion drinker. Perhaps as an advertisement for his own beer, he disposed of four and a half gallons of ale before leaving the table.

Boy Attempts to Kill A Leader.

Paris, Feb. 23.—The Havas News Agency has received a despatch from Madrid saying that an attempt was made last night to murder Dr. Alfonso Costa, ex-premier and minister of France, and now leader of the democratic party in Portugal.

The assassin on Senator Costa was made by Jose Francisco Silva, a student aged 14 years. As Senator Costa was hearing an express train to go to Lisbon Silva approached him, drew a revolver and fired twice. Both shots missed.

The boy was arrested at once, but he declared that no one had invited him to commit the act.

Dr. John Wakefield, one of the oldest Methodist clergymen, passed away Wednesday morning at Toronto, in his eighty-fourth year.

CARING FOR HORSES.

Greatest Pains Taken to Keep Mounts In Good Condition.

A very important part of the work done at Exhibition Park is that for which the Canadian Army Veterinary Corps is responsible, says The Toronto Star Weekly in a recent article. This is obvious when it is mentioned that there are considerably over twelve hundred horses at Exhibition Park. There are six hundred and forty horses in use by the mounted rifles, and the number employed by the fourth brigade is about the same. These horses have been shipped from practically every part of the province. The maximum price of one of these horses is about $175. Taken as a whole, the horses are of fairly good stamp for the purpose for which they have been bought. But they have been purchased under considerable difficulties. For one thing, the best horses available went with the first contingent. And, for another, the British Government have also been buying horses in Ontario, and to a certain unavoidable extent in competition with Sir Adam Beck and his buyers.

The officers of the Canadian Army Veterinary Corps who are at Exhibition Park are Capt. Campbell, the principal veterinary officer for the second division; Lieut. W. W. Forsyth, and Lieut. A. H. Hunter. There are nine men under them, each of whom has been previously used to horses. These have been given instruction by the officers in the use of drugs, etc.

Twelve hundred horses naturally require a good deal of medical and surgical care. So far, the luck has been very good with them. There have not been more than four deaths among them, each of which has been attributable to pneumonia. Every horse is vaccinated with the Strangles vaccine. There is an up-to-date pharmacy with every possible appliance that can be required by sick equine nature. The electric sterilizer is in use and every possible care that veterinary science can suggest is observable throughout the work of the pharmacy. There are two hospital stables. One of these is for cases of accident. The other is for contagious cases. In the former there are at present eight accident cases. These cases are sometimes attributable to careless or inexperienced handling, but more often they are the result of the horse itself being green. In the hospital stable for contagious cases there are present some twenty-eight or so sick horses. Influenza is the cause of most of the horses' presence in the isolation hospital. As everyone who knows anything of horseflesh is aware, that form of influenza which is known as "running influenza" is especially contagious. The hospital stables are all well whitewashed and thorough disinfected. And after each case leaves its stall, the stall is re-whitewashed and again thoroughly disinfected. Records are kept of the respiration, temperature, and pulse of every horse that comes into hospital. The Canadian Army Veterinary Corps has always one officer and some men constantly on duty both day and night.

The utmost care is taken to ensure that all the men employed in the isolation hospital pay the most careful attention to cleanliness in every way. The equine patients are furnished with individual drinking-cups. The isolation hospital is heated by two stoves, and the temperature of it is kept at between fifty and sixty degrees. The animals vary considerably as patients, some being much easier to treat than others. But on the whole they make much better patients than do human beings. It is interesting to watch the docile and placid manner in which they submit to the strapping on of mustard plasters and other curative methods.

Prince's Narrow Escape.

Princess Arthur of Connaught is being congratulated on her husband's daring escape from the Germans, whose prisoner he was for an hour or more.

The prince and his chauffeur drove their machine into the German lines in a fog. They were seized and thrown into a hut. Here they discovered German uniforms and disguised themselves. They managed to pass the sentry placed to guard them and enter their own automobile again. On nearing the German lines they were challenged, and to escape ran at a speed of ninety miles an hour. Many bullets struck the flying car.

Past the Germans outposts they sped, but the French seized them, and thinking them Germans, were on the point of shooting them as spies, when they were identified.

Revenue Next Year.

Weekly Star.

Mr. White makes the following estimates of revenue:

1. Revenue to be derived on the old basis of taxation and importation, $120,000,000.
2. Revenue to be derived from banks and other corporations, and from stamp taxes, $8,000,000 to $10,000,000.
3. Revenue to be derived from new tariff, $20,000,000 to $25,000,000.
4. Revenue to be derived from the British government for the conduct of the war, and to be later repaid by a bond issue, $100,000,000.

There will, therefore, be a deficiency of from forty-five to fifty million at least, to be provided by borrowing in some form or other, either by the sale of securities, the negotiation of treasury bills or the issue of dominion notes.

Doctors take a serious view of the condition of Stewart Tupper, now at Oxford, Eng., under the care of Sir William Osler.

Emil Neulich, Toronto, was convicted of conspiracy in the high treason case. An appeal was allowed.

THOSE INNOCENT DUCKS.

They Did Not Know About Father Healy's Green Peas.

Father James Healy, the Sydney Smith of the Irish metropolis, figures in many anecdotes told by Judge Bodkin in his "Recollections." Father Healy was poor, and used to say, "God-humoredly, that he did not know how he would live at all if he were not for the 'outdoor relief' he received. A fine clutch of young ducks reached him, and seeing them sporting in the water, he exclaimed, with a whimsical compassion, "Poor innocents, how they enjoy themselves, never thinking that my green peas are growing on the other side of the garden wall!"

For one of the stories about the father, Mr. Bodkin does not vouch. One Christmas night, at a small gathering at the Vice-regal Lodge, the beautiful Countess Spencer (Spencer's "Fairie Queen," as she was called in Ireland) stood defiantly under a cluster of silver berries and sent a playful challenge to Father Healy. "Now, Padre, now is your chance under the mistletoe." Like a flash came the smiling reply, "Oh, no, my lady; we only do that sub rosa!"

On one occasion, Mr. Bodkin tells, Lord Justice Holmes was amusingly countered by a junior barrister who was defending a prisoner before him. Though the prisoner was a rather elderly man, counsel made frequent appeals to the jury to take into account the fact that he was an orphan. The judge grew impatient.

"I really don't see," he exclaimed, "how the fact that your client is an orphan bears on the case. He is old enough to take care of himself, and it is quite natural, at his age, he should have lost his parents. For instance, I myself am an orphan." "Yes, my lord," interposed the counsel, "and should your lordship ever have the misfortune to come before a jury of your fellow-countrymen, I trust that circumstances will be taken into consideration in your lordship's favor."

Let us Have More Business

"We have the crops, the coin, and the customers—let us get busy."

Such was the substance of the message of the President of the Chicago Garment Manufacturers to his fellow members.

Good business, the President pointed out, was waiting for those who were after it.

And the way he pointed out was through vigorous and continuous advertising.

In this connection he laid emphasis on the fact that it was not the "big splash" followed by silence that counted but the day-in, day-out advertising appeal.

No medium offers such splendid business getting opportunities to-day as does the daily newspaper.
