YOU CAN'T BRUSH OR WASH OUT DANDRUFF

The Simplest and Quickest Way is To Dissolve It.

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely.

Do this to-night, and by morning most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

If you want to preserve your hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for nothing destroys the hair more quickly.

WOMAN WEAK AND NERVOUS

Finds Health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Creston, Iowa. "I suffered with female troubles from the time I came into womanhood until I had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I would have pains if I overworked or lifted anything heavy, and I would be so weak and nervous and in so much misery that I would be prostrated. A friend told me what your medicine had done for her and I tried it. It made me strong and healthy and our home is now happy with a baby boy. I am very glad that I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and do all I can to recommend it." Mrs. A. B. BOSCAWEN, 504 E. Howard Street, Creston, Iowa.

Tons of Roots and Herbs are used annually in the manufacture of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is known from ocean to ocean as the standard remedy for female ills.

ENORMOUS GAIN

Made by Russians by Flanking Raid.

THE DEMORALIZATION

OF THE GERMAN ARMY IS THE GREATEST ASSET.

Number of German Prisoners Is Increasing—Russian Commander-in-Chief Diagnosed the Limits Of the Germans Correctly.

Petrograd, March 1.—The failure of the Germans' late movement was as certain as anything ever could be in war from the outset. After carefully considering all the known factors of this extraordinary attempt to turn both flanks of a 700-mile Russian military front, the Germans were disposed to regard the main object of the German attempt as an invitation to the Russians to advance upon the direct road to Berlin from Warsaw.

That magnificent bit of marksmanship, when H. M. S. Birmingham shot away the periscope of a German submarine, was aptly described by one of the crew, who remarked, "Well bowled. Just took the ball nicely." During the early days of the war the security of the trenches was a frequent topic in the trenches. "I hear there'll be a lot of chaps without blankets to-night," said one Tommy. "No sooner had he spoken than a perfect hurricane of lead swept over them. 'If we get much of this there'll be blankets without men, I'm thinking,'" came the grim reply.

Two riflemen were discussing the enormous amount of lead used daily, and one suggested the possibility of a shortage. "No fear," said his chum. "Lead's economy is such that you can make a little go a long way." It was an Irishman who, on hearing that the German soldiers have an aversion to "cold steel," promptly retorted, "Sure, then, we'll just make it hot for them."

Wroth Silver.

Of the twenty-seven dukes of the peerage, his grace the Duke of Buccleuch, who recently died, was undoubtedly one of the wealthiest. He possessed nearly half a million acres of land, the annual rental of his estates amounting to £238,401, of which amount £43,530 was derived from the English estates.

Among the latter, the Buccleuch family possess one in Warwickshire, in connection with which a quaint custom is observed every year. This custom, which is of Saxon origin, and from one to two thousand years old, is known as the ceremonial of collecting wroth silver.

Straightened It Out.

Archbishop Magee was once present at a full dress debate on the eastward position, when doubts were expressed as to the exact meaning of the words "before the table." After a speech or two Dr. Magee seized a piece of paper and wrote: "As to the phrase, 'The piper played before Moses,' doubts have arisen. Some believe its meaning to be that the piper played before Moses—that is, at a period anterior to his birth. Others hold that the piper played Moses in the sense of preceding the great lawgiver when he danced, while others teach that the piper player (coram Moses) before or in the presence of Moses when the son of Amram died. All these are wrong. The phrase is to be understood as implying that the piper played at the north end of Moses, looking south." The document was handed up to Archbishop Taft, who looked grave.

No Safe.

Chief Justice Doherty used to relate an experience which befell him during a visit to a country house in Ireland. His friend, the host, sent a car to the railway station to bring him to the place. He had not gone far when the horse became very restive and finally upset the car into a ditch. The judge asked the driver how long the animal had been in harness.

"Half an hour, sir." "I mean, how long since he was first put in harness?" "Sure, I've told you—half an hour, sir," answered the driver. "But the master said if he carried you safe he'd buy him."

THEY ENJOY A FIGHT.

Tommy Atkins and Jack Tar Take Hardship Lightheartedly.

Nothing more clearly shows the excellent spirit of our brave soldiers than the lighthearted manner in which hardship, and even death itself, is faced. The man who marches to action with a rollicking song on his lips, who finds nicknames for the very guns hurling destruction at him, and who makes a jest even of his own sufferings, is a hard man to beat.

First and last, Tommy Atkins is a sportsman, and when engaged in the grim game of war he cannot forget entirely the pastimes of peace, as witness the following incident: One of our batteries was firing at a building occupied by the enemy, and our lads in the trenches watched the proceedings eagerly. At the third discharge the target crumpled up like a house of cards, and a protruding specter flung up his arms excitedly and yelled "Goal! Hardy himself couldn't have stopped that one." Again, when at Mons the long days of retreat became days of advance for our troops, a jubilant British private described the situation tersely as "Half time. Change over." Another football enthusiast, limping painfully away from the firing-line, answered a sympathetic inquiry with a smile, and the explanation, "Got fouled in the penalty area."

The "adit" usually takes place on an elevated position known as Knightlow Hill, just off the great London-Holyhead turnpike road, a few miles from Dunchurch, the trust of the Gunpowder Plot conspirators. An official of the estate offices of the Duke of Buccleuch usually has charge of the proceedings, and a document termed "The Charter of Assurances" informs the crowd that about thirty parishes are concerned in the tax, the respective contributions varying from 1d. to 2s. 3-1-2d.

"We shall not announce cures unless they are real cures. Imagination plays too great a part in a patient's feelings. Imagination must always be reckoned with in medicine—sometimes as a friend, sometimes as a foe. I know a doctor who treated an old woman for typhoid, and on each visit he took her temperature by holding a thermometer under her tongue. One day, when she had nearly recovered, the doctor did not bother to take her temperature, and he had hardly got 100 yards from the house when her son called him back. "Mother is worse," said the man. "Come back at once." "The doctor returned. On his entry into the sickroom the old woman looked up at him with angry and reproachful eyes. "Doctor," she said, "Why didn't you give me the bigger under me tongue to-day? That always done me more good than all the rest of your trash."
