CHILD TAKEN AWAY VOICE OF THE PULPIT

FROM WOMAN FOUND VERY DRUNK ON STREET. MISSION SERVICES IN BROCK STREET METHODIST.

Children's Aid Society Took Action in Case Which Came Before the Police on Saturday — Young Man Should Not Have Been Arrested.

"Take me out of here, take me out of here," cried a woman in the police court on Monday morning. "I will go crazy sure if you keep me in here much longer."

The woman, accused of being drunk, and had just been told that her six-year-old girl had been taken from her and given over into the hands of the Children's Aid Society, and that it depended altogether on her conduct, in the future, as to whether she got her child back again.

The woman was registered as Mrs. Leyna Woodhouse, and she lives on Ontario street. She was very drunk on Ontario street Saturday afternoon, near her own home, and Constable Thomas Mullinger placed her under arrest. She spent all day Sunday in the cells.

W. H. Wylie, acting for the Children's Aid Society, secured possession of the little girl and placed her in the Orphans' Home. All Saturday night and a part of Sunday morning, the woman cried and acted more like an insane person. When she appeared in the court room she quieted down for a time, but soon burst forth again, and her husband, who was in court, had a hard time to keep her quiet.

When asked as to whether she was drunk, the accused said: "I do not know anything about it."

Constable Mullinger was called, and told the story of the arrest. He said she was very drunk.

The magistrate told her that this was the second time she had been before the court in a very short time, but that he had decided to give her another chance.

There are some funny people in the world. Saturday, a woman charged a young man with the theft of a small sum of money. A warrant was secured and on Monday morning, Constables Bateson and Armstrong nabbed the young man. He pleaded "not guilty," when brought before the magistrate, and when the woman who made the charge was called to the box, she stated that the case was not altogether one of theft. The young man had some money belonging to her, but he had returned it.

"The case is dismissed," said the magistrate, and the young fellow walked out of the court room, and everyone was surprised that he should have been brought up in this way.

For the last five years, Dr. Kalmus has been conducting experiments in metallurgy at the School of Mines, Queen's University for the Department of Mines, Ottawa, and has recently had published two treatises on "cobalt" in which he was specially interested.

Between the engagement and the wedding the man in the case is kept guessing.

DYNAMITE FOUND HIDDEN UNDER RAILWAY CROSSING

Discovery Made by the Police—Was it Placed There to be Used When the Overseas Troops Were Moved Out of Kingston?

Shortly before one o'clock on Monday afternoon six sticks of dynamite were found hidden under some planking at the railway crossing at Cataragui street.

Whether or not it was part of a plot to do damage to the property of the railway companies is not known, but the police are making an investigation.

Shortly after the discovery was made, a fifteen-year-old boy went into Dalton's wholesale hardware, with a stick of dynamite in his possession, and made some inquiries as to what it was and who owned it. The police were notified, and the youngster was taken in charge, and is being held at the police station, pending the investigation which is being made.

This railway crossing is used by both the Grand Trunk Railway and the Canadian Pacific Railway.

The finding of the dynamite caused quite a sensation. It was found by a man driving over the crossing, so it is claimed, and as soon as it was located, a call was sent to the police station. Constable Robert Sargeant hurried to the scene, and returned to the police station with the explosive.

When taken to the police station the lad stated that he had found the stick of dynamite in his possession, on Princess street.

When Constable Armstrong got the tip that a lad had been at Dalton's hardware with a stick of dynamite, he immediately got busy. Going to the wholesale he got a good description of the youngster, and in five minutes time had him under arrest.

The boy was walking on King street, between Princess and Brock street, when the constable found that he talked with the description given him. The constable tapped him on the shoulder and asked him if he had a stick of dynamite on his person.

"Yes, sir, I've got it right here," said the youngster, and he unbuttoned his coat and pulled the stick out of an inside pocket. The youngster was as "cool as a cucumber."

Rev. A. E. Runnels, Brockville, Preached — Heathenism Better Than the Civilization of Militarism.

Missionary sermons were preached in Brock street Methodist church on Sunday by Rev. Arthur E. Runnels, B.D., Brockville. For his text in the evening the speaker chose Romans I: 16: "For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ, for it is the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth."

"A year ago," said the speaker, "China sent out word to the Christian churches to pray for the success of its new republic which had been copied from western civilization. But," said Mr. Runnels, "we must not confuse civilization with Christianity. From all standpoints the former had led the so-called Christian lands into the greatest conflagration that the world had ever witnessed. Militarism and the kultur of Germany in this respect was soundly denounced when kings and emperors thought of nothing higher. It were much better for the heathen to remain in utter darkness than to copy such methods as these. The ruin wrought by war that in turn is brought about by militarism is much worse than heathenism."

A message of the Emperor of Japan to the Kaiser of Germany was read by Mr. Runnels, and it stated that the Japanese ruler would hear of no proposition whatever by Germany regarding the former's intentions towards Kiao-Chau. The Emperor of Japan preferred to copy Anglo-Saxonism because it upheld the weak and down-trodden.

St. Mary's Cathedral.

On Sunday morning, in St. Mary's cathedral, high mass was celebrated by Rev. Father Meagher, Rev. Fr. Hanley read the epistle and gospel for the day, and also reviewed the life of St. Joseph.

Calvary Congregational.

There was a large crowd at the evangelistic meeting in Calvary Congregational Church Sunday evening. Rev. John Lyall, pastor of the church, took for his text: "For what shall it profit a man if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" Mr. Lyall pointed out the necessity of giving the soul to God now. During the offertory Mr. Allen and Mrs. Morris sang "Peace, Perfect Peace," very effectively. Mr. Allen also rendered a solo, "Face With Christ, My Saviour," in very fine voice. Great praise is due Mr. Allen as choir leader.

Owing to a change in the orders the detachment from the 4th Hussars which was going to Ottawa Monday, has been held over for a few days.

The four thousand men of the second Canadian expeditionary force who have reached England, will be quartered at Shoreham camp.

The rebuilding of the King street breakwater will be completed this week. The sum of $2,000 will have been spent upon it.

Many a man hasn't enough sense to become a successful wheelbarrow chauffeur.

It is easy for a man to behave after he breaks into the has-been class.
