AMERICAN FLAG TORN HALL CO. CAPTAINS

MINISTER CONFIRMS REPORT OF INSULT TO "OLD GLORY."

Secretary of State Makes No Demand For a Salute—Insult Occurs When McManus Is Slain and Home Looted.

Washington, March 27.—How the American flag which was flying over the home of John B. McManus, a citizen of the United States, in a Mexican City was "torn and dragged half way down the pole" by Zapata soldiers when they murdered McManus and looted his house two weeks ago, is told in dispatches from the Brazilian Minister made public by Secretary Bryan.

The incident was reported at the time the death of McManus was being investigated, but there had been no confirmation of it until to-day. Secretary Bryan said request for reparation had been made, but that so far no reply had come. In answer to inquiries he said there had been no demand for a salute to the flag as in the Tampico affair.

An expression of regret for the killing of McManus already has been received from General Palafox, the Zapata commander, with a promise of indemnity for the family and punishment for the slayers if apprehended.

A VIGOROUS STATEMENT.

Alcohol More Deadly Than Gunpowder, Says Lloyd George.

Lloyd George, as Chancellor of the British Exchequer, would take risks for Britain against all the German submarines in all the British seas, rather than against the drink habit of the British people and the legalized liquor traffic of the British nation. This choice would be wise, statesmanlike. Indeed, it is now becoming a common saying among the economists and social reformers that for the Allies the war itself, immeasurable though its losses must be, would have in them a gain to make if it brought about complete and permanent abolition of the liquor and drug habits in Britain, in France and in Russia. At this moment the problems of the war, so far as Britain is concerned, are being aggravated in their difficulty by the drink habits of the people. No wonder the Chancellor of the Exchequer declares the Government will exercise its wide powers fearlessly. The sooner the better for Britain's sake, and the world's.

The very deepest tragedy of the war is that so many hundreds of thousands of Britain's best breed, the young, the virile, the fit, are marched out to wounding and death, while a percentage of the next generation of Britons, greater than ever before in British history, will be bred by the underfed, the unheroic, the unmerciful, who will breed after their kind their handicapped and the less progeny. War will kill the fit. The unfit will survive and their children will be made still more unfit by the liquor habits which destroyed their parents. War will slay its thousands, but alcohol its tens of thousands.—San Francisco Journal of Commerce.

The Connoisseurs.

Two farmers, attired in corduroys and gaiters, were strolling through a picture gallery, where they looked, and apparently felt decidedly out of place. But at last they brought up before a picture which really seemed to please them—a portrait of a lovely girl with a particularly ugly build.

"This is something nice, Dick," said one.

"What is it called?"

Dick referred to the catalogue.

"Beauty and the Beast," he said.

The other man looked closer at the build.

"Ah!" he sighed, appreciatively. "He is a beauty, too."

OTTO WEDDIGEN, Commander of the U-29, which is understood to have been sunk. He is Germany's most daring under-water navigator. It was he who while in command of the U-29 sank the British warships Hoque, Aboukir and Cressy. For this he was decorated by the Emperor. It was generally understood that he also sank the Hawke. Lately in the U-29 he has been cruising off Settle Island, where he sank four British steamers and a French one. He was courageous and considerate, giving warning in most cases to the crews of the vessels he destroyed.

Napanee

March 26.—The Napanee Foundry Co. has secured an order for twelve hoists, to be shipped to the Watson Contracting Co., for use in the large dry dock which is being built at Lewis, Quebec.

Yesterday afternoon, in the police court, Sidney Lucas was charged with cruelty to a horse. The accused hired a horse and rig from J. Yanalstine's Rivery, and the animal so badly that it was found necessary to call in a veterinary. The accused pleaded guilty, and was assessed $10 and $17 costs.

The Coming Russia.

It is reported in Petrograd that the Czar is formulating a decree providing for compulsory education to be in full force and effect throughout the Empire within five years after the close of the war. The significance of such a move can scarcely be overstated. Russia has a population of more than 160,000,000, two-thirds of which is illiterate at present. The possibilities of such a nation, all educated and inhabiting one of the richest and most extensive areas in the world, are limitless. A modernized, progressive Russia would be a power in world affairs compared with which the Russia of the past is a puny thing.—Indianapolis Star.

Anxious For Peace.

Berlin, March 27. Among the items given out for publication by the Overseas News Agency were the following: "The Dutch Foreign Minister, replying to a memorial addressed to Queen Wilhelmina by a number of her subjects, asking the Queen to use her good offices toward bringing about peace, informed the petitioners that both the Queen and the Government of the Netherlands were anxious for peace, and that they would do all in their power at the proper time to effect peace."

CONFUSION OF TONGUES.

Commanders of Allied Armies Must Be Polyglot.

Memphis Commercial Appeal.

The commanders of the Allied army must be polyglot if they converse with their soldiers. In the British army and on the Continent there are now Highlanders, whose language is more Gaelic than English, there are Irishmen from Connaught who still speak the vernacular of the old sod.

From Canada comes a contingent, some speaking English and some French. From India an army has been landed composed of Hindus, Ceylonese, and members of the tribes whose homes are in the foothills of the mountains between India and China.

Already the French have brought over the Arabians from North Africa and Moors from the same region. The French have also brought up a division of equatorial African Negroes.

When the war first broke out the French called from Algiers its famous foreign legion. In this legion are men from every known race.

When Napoleon invaded Russia his soldiers conversed in many languages and dialects.

The men now contending in all the armies of the nations at war probably speak every tongue that men have used since Babel.
