The Crucifixion-Andrez Mantegna

Out of Corruption

Church Life, Toronto.

God is drawing back up into the sky the beautiful white coverlet, laid over the earth while she lay in her winter sleep. We know that soon the March winds will rouse her and she will wake up and bestir herself and when she has been bathed in April's rains, will begin slowly and delicately to clothe herself in a new garment of green, until in the June sunlight we behold her in the very perfection of her beauty.

But if we did not know that while the earth remains, seed-time and harvest and cold and heat, and summer and winter, and day and night shall not cease, how would it be with us? Go into the garden. There is a round, black patch from which the snow has disappeared. To the outward eye just a black, ugly patch reminding us of corruption and decay. —yet in that noisome soil the lily bulbs are beginning to germinate and soon the first green shoots will force the way up to the surface and rain and sunshine will do their work, until that which is now nothing but the eyesore to us will be filled with the bloom which is the fitting symbol of the beauty of holiness.

So in the garden of the soul waiting only for the operation of the grace of God, are potent beauties unsuspected and undreamed-of—traits which the world would never credit—capacity for suffering, loving sacrifice, and spiritual vision unknown to all, but the Heavenly Gardener.

So in the Church, the Sunday School, the Mission, the city slum, the haunts of vice and squalor, the very poison itself, ground prepared and tended by the under gardeners of God, looking so hopeless, so ugly, so repulsive, or what is worse perhaps, so commonplace and mean, there are springing up flowers of a beauty which shall never fade, and which shall adorn at last the King's Garden. His Paradise, where the Prince of Heaven, shall walk and in which His Soul shall have infinite delight.

So, too, from the reek of the battlefield lying black and desolate with a horror from which our hearts turn sickened and despairing, shall spring at last the Lily of the King—God's lovely Lily of Peace.

HORACE GAUL RECOVERING.

Had Narrow Escape While In The Trenches.

Ottawa, April 1.—Horace Gaul, the former Capital and Ottawa hockey club player, seriously wounded while fighting for the British in France, is now doing nicely in the Netley Hospital, England, according to a letter received yesterday containing the first particulars as to how he sustained the injury. Writing from the base hospital, somewhere in France, Gaul stated that he had been wounded two days previous. Parts of his letter had been censored and cut out, but he says he was in a trench with the 8th Battalion when orders were received to shift to a barn several hundred yards away. The barn was subjected to a heavy shelling and Gaul was hit by three bullets from a shell, which exploded a few yards away. The shrapnel entered his head behind the ear, but he was rescued and removed on a stretcher to a base hospital.

Another letter from Netley states that two of the pieces of lead were removed and that the doctors hoped to have the third out in a few days. He had been under the X-ray several times. He will be laid up for some time. Gaul says he had a remarkable escape.

FOUR GERMAN STOWAWAYS

New York, April 1.—The Holland American liner Rotterdam sailed today for Rotterdam with 200 passengers, and a large quantity of mails for Holland, Germany and Austria. Among those who sailed were A. Chester Beatty, an American mining engineer, who has interests in Russia, and who was accompanied by his wife and son. Lieut.-Col. George Cornwallis West, husband of Mrs. Patrick Campbell, the actress, was also a passenger. Before the ship sailed four stowaways were found by the stewards on their final inspection. They said they were Germans who wanted to go home to join the army. All four were put off the ship by the pier detective. The Rotterdam will call at Falmouth to land her passengers for England.

MAX HARDEN'S LATEST.

Says, German Submarines Will Lay Mines Around England.

Rotterdam, April 1.—Maximilian Harden in his latest lecture at Berlin on the course of the war says: "Our chief enemy, England, has it is true, not yet received any mortal wound, but the greatest danger is threatening it from our submarines. As soon as we have succeeded in extending the radius of action of the four bigger submarine types they can be used for lavish laying of mines. "On that day the island kingdom will find itself surrounded by a new circle of mines and its mastership of the sea will be at an end. "In everything Germany can have confidence. After eight months of tremendous struggle, it is true, it is not standing as conqueror but its power is untouched."

WITHDRAWING FROM YSER.

Holland Hears German Move Follows Recent Reverses.

London, April 1.—The Dutch correspondents of English newspapers in their despatches refer to persistent rumors in circulation in Holland of a change in the German front in Belgium, which is alleged to have been necessary by the fall of Przemysl and by the pressure of the Allies along the existing extended front. According to these rumors the line on the Yser is to be abandoned in favor of a less-extended line slightly west of Brussels.

James H. McComb, his infant son, Stafford, and his niece, Mary L., three years of age, daughter of his brother John, perished in a fire which destroyed his home at Blackwater Lake, nineteen miles from Parry sound. The Birkenhead dockers demanded to be paid for Saturday for the work done on Friday nights and Saturdays.

A FRANKLY SIMPLE FROCK.

gathered the next step is to sew the skirt to the waist over the stay. The center-front of the waist is indicated by large "O" perforations. The hem at the front is turned in at the notches, after which the side front is tucked, stitching 1/2 inch from folds. Turn under edge of side-front and side back or slot perforations; lap on front and back to small "o" perforations, notches even, and stitch. Close under-arm seam as notched. Gather waist between double "TT" perforations. Stay to lower edge, center even, small "o" perforation at under-arm seam. Close seam of square collar as notched, terminating seam at small "o" perforation; sew to neck as notched. Sew standing collar to shield as notched, adjust, bringing large "O" perforation to corresponding perforation in front. The apron trapezoid must be made before waist and skirt are joined. Now close the sleeve seam, gather the lower edge and stitch to band. Sew into armhole, easing in the fullness, the seam at notch in front.

In cotton voile or for afternoon it can be carried out in figured silk or all-over embroidery. Eight and three-quarter yards of 36-inch material or 5 1/2 yards of 46-inch all-over lace make the dress. The vest and collar may be of a contrasting material, if desired 1/2 yard being required for the purpose. The figure and can be cut in one piece. If preferred, the skirt can be made first, though this is purely arbitrary. Many home dressmakers like to take up the waist and sleeves in the beginning and get them out of the way. The back seam of the skirt is first closed after which a hem between 3 1/2 and 4 inches is turned under. Now, taking the upper edge, find the double "TT" perforations and gather between these if the skirt is made first it will have to be put aside at the point and the waist taken up, for after the top is

This costume in figured silk, with apron tunic cut in one piece. The design is most effective in embroidery flouncing. This design is especially commended to the home dressmaker because it can be used in so many different ways. As a morning frock it may be developed.
