SWING TO JAW

Deprived Johnson of Pugilistic Championship Title.

THE FALLEN CHAMPION

ROSE TO HIS FEET AFTER COUNTED OUT.

He Knew He Was Beaten and Preferred To Take the Count in 26th Round Rather Than Be Knocked Down Again.

Havana, April 6.—Jack Johnson, exile from his own country, yesterday lost his claim as the heavyweight champion of the world, the title being wrested from him by Jess Willard, a Kansas cowboy, the biggest man who ever entered the prize ring as a "white hope," who at last has made good.

Johnson will sail Wednesday for Martinique, there to await passage back to France, where he purposes to lead the life of a farmer raising pigs and chickens. There is no doubt that he is through with the ring.

Willard, last night acclaimed the new champion, is going back to the United States to win the fortune denied him yesterday, when Johnson got $30,000, Willard taking only a small share of the receipts. Just what his share was is not known.

The fight probably has no parallel. For twenty rounds Johnson punched and pounded Willard at will, but his blows grew perceptibly less powerful until at last he seemed unable or unwilling to go on.

Johnson stopped leading, and for three or four rounds the battle was little more than a series of plastic poses of white and black gladiators.

A Spectacular Finale.

So it was until the twenty-fifth round, when Willard got one of his wildly swinging windmill right-hand smashes to Johnson's heart. This was the beginning of the end.

When the round closed Johnson sent word, to his wife that he was "all in," and told her to start for home. She was on the way out and was passing the ring in the twenty-sixth round when a stinging left to the body and a cyclone right to the jaw caused Johnson to crumble on the floor of the ring, where he lay partly outside the ropes until the referee counted ten.

There was much discussion and probably will be for all time, as to whether Johnson was really knocked out. In the sense of being smashed into unconsciousness he certainly was not. The general opinion is that Johnson knew that there was no possibility of his winning, so when he was knocked down he chose to take the count rather than stand further punishment.

Johnson had often said he would not foolishly submit to repeated knock downs when he found he had met his master. A second or two after Jack Welsh, the referee, had counted ten, Johnson quickly got up. A moment later there was a rush of spectators to the fighting platform.

Soldiers Escort Principals

For an instant it seemed as if trouble was threatened and some fifty or more of the several hundred soldiers stationed about the fight arena, jumped into the ring and formed circles about the vanquished and the victor.

Under escort of the soldiers Willard and Johnson left the ring, while the crowd cheered and broke into wild discussion. Willard was out of his dressing room in a few moments, and was being taken away to Havant from the Maricao race track, where the fight was held, by a troop of Cuban cavalry. Last night Willard was the hero of the island. His victory was very popular.

Automobiles returning to the city from the fight flew white flags, and thus the news spread that the white challenger had beaten the negro champion.

Willard is probably the most modest champion who ever stepped out of a prize ring, taking his victory as philosophically as he had looked forward to the fight. Neither he nor Johnson showed much evidence of having been engaged in a heavy weight championship battle.

A Clean Battle Through-out.

The new champion's up, right ear and left cheek showed slight cuts, but at no time was there more than a drop or two of blood in evidence.

In the respect the fight was in great contrast to the Johnson-Jeffries fight at Reno, five years ago, when Jeffries was cut to pieces and blood splashed over the spectators at the ringside.

On the contrary no fight between heavy weights that has gone to a finish was cleaner or less brutal. Johnson's left eye was partly closed in the early rounds, but not sufficiently to interfere with his fighting. His lip also was cut inside and his famous golden stifle flashed from a very red setting.

The end of the fight came with a suddenness that dazed the spectators. It followed two or three rounds of almost complete idleness and the spectators had begun to believe the fight would go the full forty-five rounds.

Victor And Vanquished Talk.

Jack Willard said: "I knew I could do it. Johnson gave me a great battle for twenty rounds, but he could not hurt me, although his punches were powerful."

"I fought cautiously until the twenty-fifth round, and then in the twenty-sixth and twenty-seventh, seeing Johnson tiring rapidly, I went in to finish him up."

"In the twenty-fourth I knew I had the championship within my grasp. In the twenty-fifth I shot across two body punches knowing they would weaken the champion, and when the twenty-sixth came I went out to finish Johnson. When the round started Johnson was slow in getting from his corner and his sluggishness spurred me on. I backed him into a corner, feinted with my left, forcing him to shift his guard and then shot my right against his jaw with all the power in my body, ending the fight and realizing my life's greatest ambition. Johnson said: I met a better man and was beaten."

"I did the best I could and put forth the best that was in me. To win, but, despite the rain of blows, Willard seemed unaffected, though I hit him hard enough and often enough in the first twenty rounds to floor ten ordinary men."

"One consolation I have is that I proved to my friends that I was in condition. This was shown by the fight up to the twentieth round. No man could have tried harder than I to win, but I was up against a man who wouldn't crumple when I hit him and whose right to my jaw took the championship from me."

OBITUARY

A Sad Death.

Particularly sad was the death of the infant daughter of Mrs. and the late James P. Eves, which occurred Friday last. This is the second time death has visited the home of Mrs. Eves. Just six weeks ago her husband was stricken with pneumonia, and taken away after a few hours' illness. Not long ago Mrs. Eves almost met instant death while driving with her sister, and brother-in-law. The horse took fright at a boat going through the lock, and backed over the embankment. Her sister jumped to safety, the buggy falling on Mrs. Eves. The lock men hurried to lift her from under the rig. Her injuries brought on premature birth and caused the death of her little daughter whose funeral took place from her mother's residence, 31 John street, Saturday morning at 11 o'clock. To the sorrowing wife and mother will be extended heart felt sympathy in her double bereavement.

Italy Masses Great Armies Near Frontier

Chiasso, Switzerland, April 6. (Via Paris).—The assembling of Italian troops on the Austrian frontier is continuing with the greatest activity. All houses of peasants near the frontier have been occupied by soldiers.

This information reaches Chiasso from Italian sources, which say that still more important military activity is under way.

Information on this point is refused transmission by the Italian censors. The prohibition of the publication of army and navy movements, which went into effect on March 31st, is being enforced strictly.

Regiments from Rome, Naples, and even distant Calabria are now camping along the Austrian border in the provinces of Brescia, Udine, Vicenza and Belluno. The concentration of troops is so complete that it includes full supplies of ammunition and airships.

A SAD CASE.

Faces Court-Martial For Killing Loved Wife.

Paris, April 6.—Captain Herail, an officer in the French cavalry, will be tried by court-martial Saturday for killing his wife at Compeigne because she persisted in following the army to be near him, in direct violation of orders issued by the military authorities. For some time after the crime Herail was a mental and physical wreck. It was feared that he would not survive, but he recently recovered and was turned over to the military police by the hospital authorities. He will be defended by Henri Robert.

IN MILITARY CIRCLES.

No Word Yet of Date For Barrieffield Camp Opening.

No more applications are being accepted for positions with the Royal Army Medical Corps for Imperial service. Over fifty applications could have been sent from this division.

One company of an Army Veterinary Corps will be organized in this division, consisting of one lieutenant, one sergeant-major, one sergeant, two corporals, and sixty-eight rank and file. The corps will mobilize in St. Jean, Que.

A Provisional Medical School opened in the Armouries on Tuesday morning. It is expected that about twenty doctors will take the course, which is for ten days. Capt. R. J. Gardiner and Corps. J. T. Reid, P.A.M.C., and F. C. Roberts, A.M.C., are the instructors.

No orders have yet been received for the date of the opening of Barrieffield camp. Queen's O.T.C. was asked to train at Niagara-on-the-Lake but refused, and will likely train at Barrieffield. They are supposed to have at least five days under canvas but the camp will likely be for ten or twelve days.

The Netherlands Government has issued a warning against the misuse of the Dutch flag on the high seas.

KINGSTON YACHT CLUB

HAS THIRTY MEMBERS SERVING AT THE FRONT.

Officers Elected At the Annual Meeting Held Monday Night—J. Arthur Dalton Is the New Commodore.

The annual meeting of the Kingston Yacht Club was held on Monday evening at the Club House, Commodore E. W. Waldron presiding. Reports of the various committees were presented, and the following officers were elected:

Commodore, J. Arthur Dalton; vice-commodore, Dr. J. J. Harty; rear commodore, L. C. Lockett; secretary-treasurer, C. S. Kirkpatrick. The executive committee of last year was re-elected, and the vacancies on the regatta and entertainment committee were filled. A vote of thanks to the retiring commodore was passed. No programme of races was drawn up for the ensuing year.

On motion of ex-Commodore Prof. I. E. Martin, a resolution of condolence was passed and will be forwarded to the wife and family of the late Lieut.-Col. Frank Strange, who was one of the leading members of the club. The resolution expressed the great loss the members of the club and yachtsmen in general had sustained by his untimely death.

It may not be generally known, but the club has thirty members overseas. Including out-of-town members the club has upwards of sixty men on the firing line. This is certainly a most creditable showing for such an association.

Rural Telephone Saved Furniture.

The rural telephones were put to excellent use on Monday when fire broke out in the Gillespie homestead, occupied by J. Gillespie, on the Gananoque Road below Barrieffield. As soon as the fire was discovered, a request was sent over the wire for help from the neighbors. The response was quick, and but for the help of the neighbors a great deal more damage might have been done. The contents of the house were saved, although the fine brick house was totally destroyed. The loss of $6,000 was covered by only $1,000 insurance.

"The Black Box."

The absolute supreme of mystery serials, written by the acknowledged master of mystery story writers, E. Phillips Oppenheim. This is the most thrilling and entrancing serial ever produced. It is marvellously unique from start to finish. It is a completely new, novel and strange with a gripping power that will surprise you. Oppenheim's books sell by the millions. In this story his genius outdoes itself. If you want the best see the Black Box at the Ideal Theatre next Monday and Tuesday.

Late John Simpson, Cataragui.

The funeral of the late John Simpson, who died at his late residence, Cataragui, last Friday, was held on Monday afternoon, at Cataragui cemetery. Rev. Mr. England officiated at the service in the deceased's home. The bearers were Dr. Northmore, Bath; Mr. Weld, London; John Simpson, Jr., and son, Cataragui. The service was very largely attended, and among those present were members of the County Council. The remains were buried at Cataragui cemetery.

Meeting Of Veterans.

The Kingston Veterans' Association was addressed on Monday night by Lieut. A. W. S. Hughes and Prof. L. W. Mulloy. The latter criticized the press of Canada for not urging the Canadian Government to send a larger number of troops to help Great Britain in the war. He does not think that Canada is doing its duty.

I.O.F. Entertainment.

City Hall, Wednesday evening, Donald MacGregor, Harvey Lloyd, Misses Bigwood and Dillon, and G. A. Mitchell, A.S.C.R.

The Commons spent a whole day in amendments to the controversial elections act, among the improvements suggested being provision for a Public Prosecutor, and awarding a contested seat, where corruption is proved, to the claimant if his campaign is clean.

But contentment and ambition have nothing in common.
