

ELDERLY PEOPLE SHOULD TAKE VINOL

Aged Texas Woman Says: "Old People Who Are Weak and Feeble Should Know the Merits of Vinol."

Grand Saline, Texas.—"I am an aged woman, and for a long time was weak and feeble, but I have found Vinol to be the best medicine to create strength for old people and for chronic colds I have ever taken. It has restored my health and strength so that I feel almost young again; in fact, I am now doing all my own housework."

"Old people who are weak and feeble should try Vinol and know its merits as I do. I have proved Vinol a good reliable medicine and much cheaper than paying doctor's bills, and you may publish what I say about Vinol for the benefit of others."—Mrs. FANNIE E. ROGERS, Grand Saline, Texas.

Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic, sharpens the appetite, aids digestion, enriches the blood, building up natural strength and energy.

We have seen such splendid results from its use that we return the money in every case where Vinol fails to build up and strengthen feeble old people, delicate children and the weak, nervous, run-down and debilitated, or asthmatic colds, coughs or bronchitis.

BATTLEFIELD ETIQUETTE.

Soldiers Have Many Rules Governing Their Behavior. The etiquette of the field of battle is quite as important as that of the home.

An enemy has a perfect right to bombard a town which refuses to surrender, but to deliberately destroy unpopulated places and national institutions is an act of vandalism.

The reason so many towns in Belgium were evacuated on the approach of the enemy was because the Belgians trusted in the good faith of the Germans to adhere to the rules of war etiquette.

The rules in regard to prisoners of war are clear enough. Anyone wearing the uniform of a recognized military force must be captured and treated as a prisoner of war.

A prisoner of war cannot be compelled to give his parole. Should he, not being on parole, attempt to escape he may be shot while in the act of escaping, but if captured he is not to be punished beyond being placed in more rigorous confinement.

A general is entitled to make full use of traitors and deserters, but he should not tempt men to be false to their allegiance.

A commander is entitled to disseminate false news; indeed, much of the art of war lies in hoodwinking your opponent. There are, however, limits to the way in which deceit may be practiced.

Thus it would be most

EUROPE'S HUGE COLONIES.

Tremendous Issues That Hang on Present Conflict. The capture of German Togoland by British forces is a reminder that no part of the world is without the very real possibility of conflict between the nationals of the contending powers.

Almost exactly half the land surface of the earth is held, directly or as dependencies, by the group of nations engaged in the present war.

The warring nations of to-day hold away over 29,000,000 square miles with a population of 898,440,000, representing considerably more than half of the world's population.

Germany has secured a foothold in Africa, where she controls about a million square miles in the southern part of the continent.

France at present holds more African territory than any other nation, aggregating more than four million square miles, or a greater area than that of the United States with Alaska and the insular possessions.

This includes most of the Sahara Desert, but also Algeria in the north, and a vast fertile area of the valleys of the Nile and Niger.

Egypt is still nominally a dependency of the Turkish empire, but for all practical purposes, both upper Egypt and lower Egypt are British.

The Sudan provinces of British West Africa, which includes a frontage of about 400 miles on the Indian Ocean.

In the very heart of tropical Africa lies the Congo Free State, with nearly a million miles area, nominally a Belgian dependency, touching British South Africa and also British South West Africa.

It requires no bold stretch of imagination to conceive that when the powers sit down around Europe's council board at the end of this war, Britain may ask, in payment for her services in sending an army to rescue Belgium, that the sovereignty of the Congo Free State be intrusted to her.

France might be expected to assert, because her African holdings would likely be consolidated and considerably extended as the result of her participation in the war.

Great Britain would possess a great strip, running almost due north and south from the Cape to the Mediterranean littoral of Egypt.

She would control the interior lake region of the continent whose vast bodies of navigable fresh water are fairly comparable to the Great Lakes chain of Canada; the Congo valley, the gold and diamond reefs of South Africa, and practically every mile of the immense and rich valley of the Nile.

Holland, Germany and Great Britain are about equal partners in the ownership of New Guinea, the second largest island in the world, lying immediately north of Australia.

In addition to the African holdings, Britain has vast colonies and rich protectorates the world over, including the great empire of India; France has colonies and protectorates in India, China, South America, and the West Indies, the North Atlantic, and Indian and Pacific Oceans; Germany has colonial possessions in China and the Pacific Ocean; Russian despotism hangs like a dark shadow over the two continents of Europe and Asia and presents a long coast line on the northern Pacific.

This very rough outline of elements which will have to be weighed when the world's peace is restored, will suggest the tremendous issues that hang on the contest.

Almost Hurt Him. Two negro men were employed in tearing down a three storey brick building. One negro was on top of the building taking off the bricks and slinging them down a narrow wooden chute to the ground.

The other was picking them up and piling them. When this latter negro was stooping over to pick up a brick the former accidentally let one fall, striking him directly on the head.

Instead of its killing him, he merely shook up, without rising, and said: "What you doin' dar, nigger? You make me bite my tongue."

Destructive Power of Shrapnel. The shrapnel is really a flying cannon which shoots its charge while in flight or explodes on contact.

Its speed is 500,000 feet per second is produced by a pressure of from 30,000 to 35,000 pounds per square inch from the powder that expels it from the gun.

Its bursting charge exerts a pressure of from 20,000 to 25,000 pounds per square inch. The metal body of its case has a tensile strength of 135,000 pounds to the square inch and an elastic limit of 110,000 pounds per square inch.

Wrong Diagnosis. "I like your face, sir," said the inquisitive stranger. "It is a cheery face, a face with a mission; it is the face of a man who believes in reducing the burden and annoyances of his fellow men. You're the sort of man who believes in banishing the shadows," the inquisitive man went on.

"Nope," replied the little man, with a vigorous shake of his head. "You've lost me this time. I'm the man who puts up the awnings."

Progression. Grocer.—You gave that woman a potato too many when you measured out that quarter peck, my son.

Boy.—What's one potato, I'd like to know?

Grocer.—One potato in a quarter peck! Four potatoes in a peck! Sixteen potatoes in a bushel! Sixteen hundred potatoes in a hundred bushels! Why, my boy, you'll ruin me if you keep on.

A Zeppelin has been wrecked in Belgium while flying over the District of Ypres. It was heavily shot at and badly damaged.
