

THE ASSAULT-AT-ARMS

HELD AT THE ROYAL MILITARY COLLEGE ON WEDNESDAY.

A Splendid Programme of Boxing And Other Varied Events Was Given Afternoon and Evening.

There were seven events in the afternoon programme of the annual boxing tournament held on Wednesday in the Royal Military College gymnasium. There was a large number present and the gentlemen cadets showed the splendid physical training they are receiving...

The first event was the final for the novice championship under 145 pounds of the college, and after three rounds that were very closely contested, D. L. Savage was given the decision over W. C. Thackray.

J. A. Murphy defeated A. McCarter in two rounds for the novice championship of over 145 pounds but so badly punishing him that a continuation of the match was necessary to make the decision.

The match for the featherweight championship brought out two of the "gamiest" fighters of the college. Although G. D. McTaggart won the decision over C. M. Dobell both entered and left the ring with smiles on their faces.

L. A. Welch won the lightweight championship by defeating D. G. Robertson, but only after three very closely contested rounds that brought out the very best in each boxer.

work was witnessed, ending in a tableau. Parallels were equally interesting and several well-featured tableaux were carried out. Vaulting horses were good and ended quite lively.

The final number was the R.M.C. tableau. A supper was tendered by the College to the visitors and others at the close of the programme.

The Evening Events. The Assault-at-Arms was continued on Wednesday evening, before a large crowd of spectators. The programme carried out was of a more varied nature and constituted everything from marching and drilling to bayonet fighting, as well as high horse, vaulting horses, parallel bars, horizontal bar and tableaux.

Probably the most interesting feature of the evening was the bayonet bout between Cadets H. U. S. Page and T. C. Stewart. The two were heavily padded and also had their faces well protected, which allowed some quite desperate thrusts to be made. Demonstrations were given by the defensive and aggressive parties alternately showing the extreme advantage the latter has over the former.

The gymnasium squad created a very neat appearance and the drilling exercises carried out by them were superb. The squad concluded with the "Swedish Drill," a very pretty scene of marching combined with bodily exercise.

The third number upon the programme, entitled "High Horse," was very interesting. Several difficult feats were enacted by the second class cadets.

An extremely difficult number upon the programme was the "Tableaux" that comprised six feats. These were the pyramids, the fans, the R.M.C. towers, the living wall and Kingston tableaux. The tableaux scene was put on by Class 2a.

The second class produced the horizontal bar feats and some clever

THE CALL TO SERVICE

SOUNDED BY PRINCIPAL GORDON, ADDRESSING GRADUATES.

Present Struggle Shows How Men Are Making Sacrifice For Honor And Justice—Degrees Conferred By Chancellor Sir Sandford Fleming.

The call to service for the Empire was sounded by Principal Gordon in a forceful address to the graduates of Queen's University, at the Convocation ceremonies on Wednesday afternoon. The proceedings were unique in that for the first time in the history of the university graduates wearing the King's uniform walked up to the platform and received their degree at the hands of the aged chancellor, Sir Sandford Fleming.

The speaker referred to the Northwest Rebellion, and declared that this campaign of three months had been the means of binding the provinces of Canada together. Tribute was paid to the men in the trenches. The cause was a great one. Sympathy would be extended to those who have been wounded and with those mourning the loss of dear ones.

In closing Principal Gordon stated that all the graduates were called to service, and he expressed the hope that as the graduates scattered to different parts of the country, they would ever remember that the spirit of Queen's University was one of service.

At the close of the ceremonies, a tea was held in one of the college rooms, the proceeds of which will be devoted to the work of the Red Cross Society. It was well attended.

PYGMALION AT GRAND

MRS. PATRICK CAMPBELL IN BERNARD SHAW PLAY.

The Production Was a Splendid One—The Legend on Which the Play Is Founded.

The first visit to Kingston of the distinguished and popular English actress, Mrs. Patrick Campbell, drew forth a large and appreciative audience to the Grand Opera House last night. A play from the pen of George Bernard Shaw, and interpreted by such a clever actress, was sufficient guarantee of its entertaining quality. Nor were high expectations disappointing; on the contrary, the play brought forth on all sides expressions of the warmest commendation.

The play presented, "Pygmalion," is a romance in five acts, and is written in Shaw's most caustic vein. It is a satire on middle-class morality. A professor of phonetics takes a girl from the London gutters, and in six months transforms her into a society queen. As Pygmalion, the sculptor, moulded Galatea, so Higgins moulds this unknown flower girl, and like the sculptor, he falls in love with his subject. In raising her up to the level of a duchess-in-appearance at least—he awakens in her a soul. The appeal of the play lies in the story of her romance.

Pygmalion And Galatea. The legend on which Bernard Shaw's play, as presented at the Grand Opera House last night, is founded, is indeed an extremely interesting one. According to Greek legendary history, Pygmalion was a king of Cyprus, who became so disgusted with the licentious conduct of his countrywomen that he conceived a hatred against the sex in general.

HEARD THE NEWS HERE

Rev. A. H. Scott, B.D., Perth, got the first intimation, on Wednesday from the Whig bullet board as to the fate of his son Lieut. Clive R. Scott, with the Second Battalion of the First Canadian Contingent. There is anxiety as the report placed him among the missing or wounded. The young man, aged twenty-one, felt the conviction that his country needed him and he went ready to meet whatever contingency arose and to serve his country with his best ability.
