AN IMPERIAL SCHEME

FOR INSURING EMPIRE'S SOLDIERS AGAINST UNEMPLOYMENT.

When the War is Over—Col. Hammond Tells the Whig What the Salvation Army Proposes.

The Whig had an interview with Colonel Hammond, inspector of social work throughout the world for the Salvation Army. The colonel is at present on a visit to Canada in connection with the Salvation Army's part in the proposed Imperial scheme for insuring the men who have been fighting the Empire's battles on land and sea against unemployment on their return from the war. Col. Hammond said that he was following up inquiries essential to these "after the war" proposals, instituted by Commissioner Lamb in January last, when he visited Canada and consulted with leading statesmen and commercial and industrial authorities on the subject.

The proposals advocated by the Salvation Army to deal with this question are those urged by General Booth in an interview recently given to a representative of one of the great London dailies.

In General Booth's opinion the first thing that should be done is to set up some central authority, adequately equipped, for inviting, obtaining, and considering plans and proposals from all parts of the Empire.

In the next place, the General proposes that this board, which is proposed to constitute, shall be authorized to assist, either by grant outright or by loans, any approved scheme put forward by Dominion Governments, or local authorities, or any substantial, responsible societies or individuals.

Thirdly, a grant of £10,000,000, or some adequate sum from the war fund should be made straight out to enable the Board to meet the difficulties by the better permanent distribution of unemployed labor.

Proceeding, Colonel Hammond said: It is General Booth's opinion that it should be clearly recognized that every man who has served with the colors would have a claim on the State for provision of some kind of employment, should he be unable to resume his old occupation or find work for himself. The Board would take sympathetic interest in home needs, but it would soon find these met by the operations of the normal influence of supply and demand. Every man who was not disqualified by misconduct of some kind, drunkenness or vice, should have a free passage to any part of the Empire, where he could be profitably employed, or where there was work available. Further, the Army would send the man's family, if he had one, after him, also free of charge, as soon as he had found his feet and had a home.

"You can also rest assured," said Col. Hammond, that any scheme that may be devised will take the Canadian circumstances fully into consideration. Nothing will be done by those responsible on the other side of the Atlantic to place competition in the way of the Canadians who have done their part in this mighty struggle.

CONDUCTING AN INQUIRY

Into the Grounding Of the Steamer Glenmount Near Clayton.

Capt. L. Demeres Of Ottawa, wreck commissioner for the Government, was in the city on Friday, and in the City Council Chamber conducted an investigation into the grounding of the steamer Glenmount of the Montreal Transportation Company off Round Island below Clayton a few days ago. He will come to the city again on Tuesday next and give his decision.

The Glenmount, which was grain-laden, on her way to Montreal went aground on a very dark rainy night. It was her first trip of the season to Montreal.

Much complaint has been made about low water in the river since the opening of navigation and it was decided to have the Government make an investigation with the result that Capt. Demeres was sent to Kingston for that purpose.

The evidence of members of the crew was taken, and afterwards Capt. Demeres stated that he would give his decision in Kingston on Tuesday next.

THE GERMAN WARNING.

In the New York papers of Saturday, May 1st, an advertisement appeared warning intending travellers that a state of war existed between Germany and Great Britain and her Allies; that the zone of war included the waters adjacent to the British Isles; that in accordance with notices, given by the German Government, vessels flying the flag of Great Britain are liable to destruction in these waters, and that travellers sailing in the war zone on ships of Great Britain or her Allies do so at their own risk. This advertisement was signed "Imperial German Embassy." This warning apparently did not cause many cancellations, for the ship sailed with a very full passenger list.

Mrs. Hammond Does Not Appear In Saved List

In trying to get news of the fate of his daughter, Mrs. F. S. Hammond, Toronto, who was on board the SS Lusitania, James McParland cabled to London, and telegraphed to the British Consulate at Washington. American Consul F. S. S. Johnson also wired his Government, but up till noon no word had been received.

The Whig asked its press agency as to the fate of Mrs. Hammond, but at noon her name did not appear among the rescued.
