

GERMANY, NATION OF BLACK HAND AND THE BLOODY HEART

Col. Henry Watterson Says Nothing in Annals of Piracy Equals the Destruction of the Lusitania.

The London Chronicle Would Hang Von Tirpitz And All His Associates--German Outrages on Land and Sea Challenge the Whole Fabric of Civilization.

New York, May 11.—With prompt and thunderous unanimity the newspapers of the United States join in denouncing as an unspeakable atrocity the destruction of the Lusitania and the slaughter of nearly 1,400 passengers by a German submarine.

The crime of infamy, one editor calls the attack, while others freely use such terms as "murder," "piracy and "barbarism." Through the editorials runs a tone of firm denunciation.

The insolence of vanity. "Thy will is law." "The Courier-Journal will not go to the length of saying that the President should advise the Congress to declare a state of war against these barbarians. While Germany may yet become necessary. While actual war is not possible—Germany having no fleet we can wipe off the briny deep, nor army near enough to meet face to face and exterminate yet are we not wholly without reprisal for the murder of our citizens and the destruction of their property."

"We must not get either in haste or passion. This catastrophe is too real, the flash-light it throws upon the methods and purposes of Germany is too appalling to leave us any doubt what awaits us, as the bloody and brutal work goes on. Civilization should abjure its neutrality. It should rise as one might. Godlike force and as far as its moral influence and physical appliances can be made to prevail, forbid the riot of hate and debauch of blood that, like a madman, is running amuck among the innocent and unprotected."

Every pupil in America should send a prayer to God to protest; every patriot minister of the Gospel of Christ should lift his voice in protest, and, more than all, the Christian President of the United States, a bold and brave man, sprung from a line of heroes and saints, ceasing longer to protest, should act, leaving no doubt in the minds and hearts of any that he is not merely a leader in Christ, but a leader of men and nations, and that he holds aloft the sword of God and Gideon."

London, May 11.—The Morning Post editorially says: "It is perhaps vain to go into the rights of this business, because it is covered that by the German Government. It has shown its contempt for all international law and incidentally for the United States. This does not concern us. We are interested in the more practical questions of greater moment to ourselves."

COLONEL HENRY WATTERSON

mand for the prompt and adequate action by the Government at Washington.

Under the caption, "The Heart of Christ—the Sword of the Lord and Gideon," Col. Henry Watterson says in the Louisville Courier-Journal: "Truly, the nation of the Black Hand and the Bloody Heart has got in its work. It has got in its work not upon the armed antagonists in fair fight on battle front, but upon the unoffending and helpless, sailing what has always been and should ever remain to the peaceful and peace-loving God's free and open sea."

"Nothing in the annals of piracy can in wanton and cruel ferocity equal the destruction of the Lusitania."

"But, comes the query, what are we going to do about it? Are we to let the mercy of the insane Hohenzollern, not only through his emissaries sending his odious system of government and debasing theories of castles affecting superiority to our doors and proclaiming them, but bringing the war of conquest and murder across the line of our transit and travel over the high seas, which are our to sail as we list, without let or hindrance from man or monarch, from him or from anyone on land or water?"

"Must we as a people sit down, like dogs and see our law defied, and flag flouted and our protests whistled down the wind of the lordling's majestic disdain?"

Must U. S. Emulate China? "Must we as a nation emulate at once the impotence and the docility of China, and before such proof of the contempt in which we are held by him and his throw up our hands in crenity and despair, saying to

ANOTHER BIG BLUNDER.

Lord Rosebery Writes Of Germany's Latest Infamy. London, May 12.—In a letter to the London Times, Lord Rosebery writes: "There are two of three points to be noted with regard to this infamy—(1) the moral degradation of a nation that can hold such a crime as a victory and rejoice over it; (2) the mental degradation of a nation which can offer war as an excuse for massacre. It is constantly proved in humbler cases of homicide that the murderer declares, 'I'll do for him,' but that this never saved the culprit from the gallows; (3) the stupidity of it. Never has that much-claimed saying, 'It is worse than a crime; it is a blunder,' been more fully exemplified. It is intended to dismay our people; it will only rouse them to more furious efforts. It is intended to alarm neutrals, whom it will only alleviate and incense, and all this to secure, without any possible competition, the title of the enemy of the human race and the horror of the civilized world."

A RARE OLD DIARY.

Journal of John G. Howard Contains Many Interesting Entries.

"On the morning of the 25th—Christmas Day—I shot a deer and some quail at the rear part of High Park, near Bloor street," say an entry for 1837 in the diary of the late John G. Howard, printed in a quaint old volume which Mr. W. C. Wilkinson, secretary of the Toronto Board of Education, recently unearthed in his library. Mr. Howard, one of the most notable characters in the early history of Toronto, is best remembered as the donor of High Park to the city. He kept a "daily journal" of the doings of Toronto in the early days, and in 1838 published the gist of it in book form, now a rare volume which a very few Torontonians are so fortunate as to possess. Mr. Wilkinson has recently printed a volume, an actual volume of the diary from the year 1849 to 1855 in Mr. Howard's handwriting, and so rich is it in little items of interest, personal as well as historical, that Mr. Wilkinson intends to leave it to the Provincial Archives.

The item about deer and quail hunting in High Park is not the only one of interest. From the date of his emigration to Canada in 1832 to his death, Mr. Howard's life was full of event. In 1832, with his wife, he set sail on a small ship for Canada, taking eleven weeks and three days from London to York (Toronto). On landing on Canadian soil somewhere in the gulf, Mr. Howard said: "At first we walked about with great caution, expecting to see wild beasts and reptile. I shot a grouse, a dozen snipe, etc., picked a quart of wild roseberries, and lost about a pint of blood by the mosquitoes and sand flies."

He arrived in Toronto at six in the morning, on Sept. 14, 1832. Mr. Howard was a trained architect and surveyor, and expected to find employment at once from the Canadian Government. He had to undergo many hardships, however, until his worth was made known, and then he designed most of the houses of Toronto, and later, as City Engineer, erected most of the civic buildings, including Queen Street Asylum, the old courthouse and jail, the old market, and most of the bigger buildings on Front street.

"The Lord Bishop Stewart, of Quebec, called to pay his respects to Mrs. Howard, who was busy washing in one corner of the kitchen. She took her hands out of the wash tub and the bishop shook hands with her."

"In 1833 I built Dr. Widner's cottage on Front street, Thomas Mercer Jones' villa on the corner of York and Front streets, Chewett's Buildings, and the British Coffee House, where the Ross House now stands."

"In 1834, the first Mayor, William Lyon Mackenzie, employed me as City Surveyor, and I put down the first 11-foot plank sidewalks on King street."

"On Thursday, Dec. 7th, 1837, I led the right wing of the scouting party up Yonge street to attack the rebels, who had congregated at Montgomery's Tavern."

All this time Mr. Howard was busy putting up scores of residences, shops, and institutional buildings—schools and taverns.

"In 1842 I built two stores on King street, Nos. 103 and 105, with German silver sashes and plate glass. No. 103 was built of the first white brick used in Toronto. I gave the brick-maker $60 for 20,000. They were of clay."

"In 1844 I shot a bald eagle flying over the city."

"In 1844 I gained first prize of $50 for a design of a market house for Kingston, but got only $25, they were so poor."

"In 1863 I was appointed an associate judge, and had the honor of sitting on the bench for four years with Chief Justice Robinson, Judge McLagan, and Judge Richards."

Canadian Chaplains. The Canadian Associated Press has received from the front interesting details regarding the work of the chaplains in the Canadian division since the contingent left England. The number of chaplains has been reduced to eleven. They are mostly distributed in the clearing hospitals, where they get in close touch with those most immediately needing their ministrations. Up till recently the chaplains were taking long journeys all over the rear of the fighting, visiting the various Canadian units, who were distributed in many different parts.

The Bishop of London, whose visits to Canada will always be remembered, visited a certain portion of the Canadian detachment. His lordship had the pleasure of meeting several Canadian soldiers who had been commended by him when he was Bishop of Stepney, and who afterwards emigrated to Canada. The Bishop of London spent the whole of the Easter festival with the troops in the field. Canadian chaplains are impressed with the wonderful efficiency of the medical arrangements. The nearer you get to the fighting the better are the feeding arrangements," says our informant.

Emigrants For Nova Scotia. E. B. Elderkin has returned to Canada after six months in Holland superintending the distribution of Canada's relief gifts for Belgians.

Mr. Elderkin incidentally has done some emigration work, securing for Nova Scotia twenty-five Dutch families, seven of which have already set sail, and the others, dreading North Sea dangers, are postponing their departure.

Bringing In Settlers. The land rush into Southern Alberta is beginning again. O. T. Lathrop, returning from a trip to the coast and western States, brings back with him the vanguard of a whole army of landseekers who he states will be pouring over the border to take up wheat lands in the West this summer.

DAYLIGHT SAVING SCHEME

To Be Again Tried in Regina This Year. Regina, May 12.—The daylight saving scheme as worked out in Regina last year was so successful that the city council has decided to allow the by-law providing for the establishment of this measure to stand, and Regina will again be on "fast time" this year.

The scheme, as worked out in Regina last year, was a decided success, and while numerous complaints were raised against the adoption of it at the commencement of the year, no criticism was offered after it had been in operation for a month or two.

Regina is noted as a city of municipal ownership. One of the latest moves in this regard is the establishing of a municipally owned farm. This farm will comprise land used by the city waterworks department for the securing of water for consumption in the city.

As Regina's water supply is derived from artesian wells, considerable land is available for the farming scheme, and it is proposed to raise sufficient oats and hay to feed the horses used by the street cleaning and other departments, and owned by the city.

An effort is being made to get the Saskatchewan Breeders' Association the Regina Butcher's Section of the Retail Merchant's Association, and Canadian Soldiers' Association and the civic authorities to co-operate with a view to the establishing of a packing plant and abattoir. While all three of these branches have been endeavoring to promote the establishing of the packing plant and abattoir.

Denmark Outspoken.

London, May 12.—The Hovedstadens of Copenhagen is quoted by Reuters' correspondent as follows: "It is clear that Germany now holds herself outside of international law. Here is the embodiment of German military will. If the violation of Belgian neutrality, if Louvain, Senlis, Rheims, have not yet taught us Danes that neutrality is only a conception of a State, that it has nothing to do with the hearts of the citizens, then the Lusitania will teach us and all the world, Germany will know that the torpedo that hit the Lusitania, also hit us and wounded the human feeling of the whole world."

Peterboro Men Killed.

Peterboro, May 12.—Private despatches from Ottawa told of the deaths of eight Peterboro men who left with the first 57th contingent. All were killed in action. They are Sergt. Major Fred Howarth, Sergt. Fred Stevens, Ptes. O. D. Taylor, W. F. Gibson, George Minorgan, T. H. Griffiths, Douglas Leal and E. B. Boswell. The latter married Miss Winnifred Boulden, of Toronto, before leaving for Valcartier last August.
