Call of Empire Day

DR. G. R. PARKIN TELLS WHAT IT IS

It Reminds Us At This Tremendous Crisis How We Must Fill Our Place in the World.

By G. R. Parkin, C.M.G., LL.D.

The observance of Empire Day was designed to mark and at the same time to promote unity of National life and purpose in the widespread regions which are under the British flag.

The day, originally dedicated to the maintenance of high and inspiring national ideals, will this year be celebrated with a greater intensity feeling than ever before. It finds the nation engaged in a world-wide struggle—fighting for its independence and for fundamental principles of national honor and human liberty, in which it believes and on which it has been built up.

The right of the nation to hold the large place it has won in the world through centuries of effort has been openly challenged by a people acting on principles and inspired by motives antagonistic to our own, organized in its military power beyond precedent, and relentlessly using that power to overthrow accepted forms of modern civilization.

To maintain that right the sons of the Empire, drawn alike from its larger communities and from its smallest and most remote outposts, are sacrificing their lives by thousands on the battlefields of Europe, Asia and Africa. The rulers of the nation have pledged their faith that the struggle will be continued till victory is attained; the fixed will of the nation supports this resolution with a unanimity without parallel in our history.

It is under such circumstances that Empire Day will be observed in 1915. The dramatic interest of the occasion is intensified by the fact that the year marks the hundredth anniversary of our nation's last supreme struggle against a triumph over a threatened domination of the world. It may without exaggeration be said that the contest in which we are now engaged marks the supreme moment of human history.

What then is the call that Empire Day makes to the nation at this unprecedented crisis? It takes two forms.

First it summons each one of us as individuals to brace up within himself the spiritual effort necessary to sustain the mightiest effort of sacrifice and suffering that our people ever been called upon to make. We must cultivate courage to face great dangers, and endurance to bear a prolonged strain of unexampled severity.

We must fit ourselves by temperance, purity and unselfishness to be worthy champions of a cause which we know to be righteous.

It summons us to forego luxury and ease—to shun idleness and indifference—to spare no effort to increase our efficiency for any work we are called upon to do for the common cause. It reminds us that we are bound by every instinct of patriotism to submit our private interests to those of the country—to be ready for any sacrifice, even that of life itself, to save the nation and the world from the dangers that threaten them.

Again, Empire Day calls upon us to consider anew the unique relation which we hold, and are likely in the future to hold towards the rest of the world.

Ever since the Napoleonic era British influence, moral and material, has been immense. With the outward spread of our race during the best safeguard of the future. But while doing this it is equally necessary to have the suspicion, much more the thought, that this organization is undertaken with any view to domination, the rock upon which German ambitions are making shipwreck.

Thus strengthen our national position and at the same time to disarm the fears or jealousy of other nations, will be no easy business. It can only be done by making it clear that we hold our Empire—its possessions, wealth, power and influence—as a trust for the good of mankind, and not for merely selfish ends. This means national self-restraint and humility of spirit; fundamental honesty and sincerity of national purpose; strength of national character; elevation of national ideal.

Empire Day calls upon us to rise to the full height of this difficult task. It calls for searching of the national soul to discover wherein are to be found elements of national weakness and incompetence for the work that lies before us.

A democratic nation such as ours, whose government leans upon the votes of the people, cannot afford that this vote should be an ignorant one, not can it afford to tolerate social conditions in city slums, industrial centres or country places, which degenerate morally and physically its ruling manhood. We must throw the same united energy into the cure of these ills that we are throwing into the conduct of the present war.

A nation exercising far-reaching rule over others cannot neglect in its own homes the vital questions of Duty and Discipline, by which alone qualified rulers of men can be trained.

A nation which, in the greatest crisis of its history, has neglected its efficiency lowered by drunkenness, cannot allow this national cancer to grow unchecked.

A nation which but lately saw itself swept to the very verge of civil war by the violence of party strife cannot afford to allow this great of all dangers to gnaw its liberty again to threaten its political system.

A nation whose greatness has been built up on christian principles cannot afford to transfer its trust to new and weaker foundations.

It is only when we have overcome the enemies within our gates that

Tipperary in China.

The fame of "Tipperary," according to Cartoons Magazine, has reached China. Where the native newspapers print their own version of the famous war song. The chorus in Chinese, with a literal translation follows:

"Shih ko yuan lu tao Ti-po-lieh-li.
Pi yao to jih hsing tung.
Shih ko yuan lu tao Ti-po-lieh-li.
Yao chien wo ngai tau nu,
Tsai hut Pi-ko-ti-li.
Tsai chien Lei-suu Kwei-ri.
Shih ko yuan lu tao Ti-po-lieh-li.
Tan wo hsai tau na-ri."

Here is the literal translation:

"This road is far from Ti-po-lieh-li.
We must walk for many days.
This road is far from Ti-po-lieh-li.
I want to see my lovely girl.
To meet again Pi-ko-ti-li.
To see again Lei-suu Kwei-ri.
This road is far from Ti-po-lieh-li.
But my heart is already in that place."

The Intelligent One.

"It is not uncommon with lawyers when addressing a jury to single out one member who appears to them to be the most intelligent and therefore the one most likely to be influenced by their appeals," said a well-known jurist recently. "But it does not always work out advantageously," he continued. "All the testimony in a case recently tried had been taken, the lawyers for both sides summed up, and the judge had charged the jury, when suddenly someone of the foremost intelligent juror, against whom both counsel had thrived their impassioned appeals. He was thirsty for information, and straightway addressed the Court:

"I have been bothered a lot by two words the lawyers use here all the time."

"What are they?" demanded the Court, expecting, undoubtedly, to be called upon to expound a tortiori, or some other abstruse term.

"'Plaintiff' and 'defendant,'" said the juror. "I don't know what they mean."

We all ought to be rivals in the matter of politeness.

"A penny would be a big price for some men's thoughts."

The long-tongued Christian is only good at funeral time.

Comfort and Cure for Baby's Skin Troubles

Dr. Chase's Ointment Cured When Baby's Body Was Covered With Distressing Eczema.

If every mother could try Dr. Chase's Ointment for the chafing, skin irritation and resulting eczema which tortures so many babies, what a blessing it would be for the little ones.

This letter will give you an idea of what a wonderful work this Ointment is doing in the way of bringing comfort to children who are so unfortunate as to contract eczema. It is so easy for this trouble to develop from chafing or irritation caused by the clothing, and so difficult to get it cured, that Dr. Chase's Ointment is appreciated when once its healing qualities are known.

Mr. M. L. Duclos, Postmaster, Dugasville, N.B., writes: "I believe it is my duty to recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment as a cure for eczema. My baby was seized with eczema and his face and arms were covered with this terrible disease. After trying all sorts of ointments the disease continued to spread until it covered the entire body. When the itching became bad he would scratch himself and was sometimes found in his cradle covered with blood. Hearing about Dr. Chase's Ointment I bought two boxes and before this time had used the child was cured. That was a year ago, and there has been no trace of eczema since. I recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment to all who suffer from eczema as being the best treatment in the world for itching skin diseases."

Dr. Chase's Ointment is for sale by all dealers at 60 cents a box. It is a good idea to keep it at hand along with the bath soap to be used for roughness of the skin, chafing or irritation. Prevention is so much better than cure. Powders clog the pores, but Dr. Chase's Ointment cleanses the pores and thereby keeps the skin soft and smooth. Sample box free if you mention this paper.
