"HELL FOR CANADA."

(Extracts from a letter home from Lieut.-Col. E. W. Morris, of Ottawa).

If we don't smash the Germans it will be hell for someone, not excepting Canada and the United States.

The dead are still thick in front and unburied. My O.C.'s batteries were out in front examining the enemy's trenches yesterday and Major Britton of Gnanogue came back much disgusted, having stepped on the face of a very dead German.

On Friday last the enemy put 60 or 70 shells such as I sent you the picture of into or around the headquarters in 40 minutes. But, bless you, we weren't waiting to be examined. We doubled out to a flank when the shelling became pronounced, and smoked and watched it all from the side.

Came back after it was over and cleaned up.

LAUGHTER NECESSARY.

It Is Cure For Many Ills and Prolongs Life.

Milwaukee Journal.

There are people who take life too seriously. They allow their souls to be eaten up with cares and anxieties. Many worries are useless and help nothing. Bits of humor are lost on these persons. They wonder how any one can be so thoughtless about the realities of life. In all the animal creation laughter is given to man alone, given him, like all other faculties, to make the best of life. It is true, it is not for all times and occasions, but it has its place and is necessary to our well-being. A laugh is a cure for many ills. It aids digestion and so tends to good health. It prolongs life. Laughter often settles a disagreement and prevents real troubles. Hard-working business and professional men sometimes forget to laugh. The strain of work grips them hard, and they get old before their time. The ability to see the humorous side of an accident, a mistake or a folly, is a great aid in making life more endurable. Laughter overdone, like all virtues carried to excess, is a vice or a folly. Cultivate your sense of humor. Better to laugh too often than not to laugh often enough.

"Who laughs knows no defeat."

ONE LICENSE LEFT.

FOUND NO BEAUTY.

Henry Fielding Disappointed When He Reached Lisbon.

Westminster Gazette.

Lisbon has at least one strong link with England in the tomb of Henry Fielding.

The author of "Tom Jones" went to the Portuguese capital in search of health and failed to find it, dying there on October 4th 1754, and getting a last resting place in the English cemetery, where a monument has been erected to his memory.

The voyage out took the sick man fifty days of foul weather and the city, when he reached it, failed to please him.

"All looked beautiful at a distance," he wrote, "but as you approached nearer all idea of beauty vanished."

Making Boxes For Shells.

Walkerton, July 2.—The Knechtel Furniture Company's branch has received an order for 25,000 boxes to hold hawtiter shells. Each box is made to hold two shells of the 4 1/2 size. The boxes are to be made of spruce with maple ends. To complete the order will take eight carloads of lumber and a car of hardware. The order is worth about $20,000. It is stated on the authority of the shell committee of the war department that there are 125 woodworking factories in Canada working on shell boxes only. This order will take about six weeks to complete.

MAJOR YOUNG CARRIED

Two Miles In a Rain of Bullets To Safety.

A letter from Major Douglas Young of the Royal Canadian Dragoons, son of Lieut.-Col. D. D. Young, Kingston, tells of his being almost "killed with kindness" during his stay in the Hospital of the Great Company of Fishmongers, London, famous with other ancient companies for its wealth and benefits bestowed. Major Young had a marvellous escape from death, and, as he says, "if it had not been for these good fellows, Chipman, Drury (son of the late General Drury of Kingston), and our quartermaster, I would not be living now."

Hit in several places by shell and crushed beneath sandbags, which bent in several ribs, these comrades carried their wounded officer for two miles in a rain of bullets, mercifully escaping to safety. Major Young was to be moved as soon as possible to the Countess Dudley's beautiful Rest Home near Bournemouth.
