SOME OTTAWA GLIMPSES
Special Correspondence by H. F. Gadsby.
Z. A. Lash And His Interests

Ottawa, July 8.—While the explanations and recriminations of Zebulon Aton Lash, K.C., about the burned telegrams continue to excite comment at the capital, they cause no surprise. It is conceded that Mr. Lash is old enough and rich enough to have set opinions. These opinions, which have grown steadily stronger with advancing age, separated him from the Liberal party in 1911 and landed him fair and square among those who believe in ruling classes and things like that.

It is considered only natural that Mr. Lash should entertain the views he does. He is a corporation lawyer of great repute, the guerdoned guide, the paid philosopher and fiduciary friend of the moneyed interests, his relations with the G. N. W. and the C. N. R. being specially intimate. He is a man of wealth and power as he does Mr. Lash feels, doubtless, that public men who have these matters at their disposal are too respectable to be guilty and consequently that any telegrams to the contrary are better got rid of.

Some newspapers are speaking of his arbitrary action in the Winnipeg boodle scandal as contempt of court, but Mr. Lash's contempt goes deeper than that. It is natural that he should have contempt of courts because he is familiar with courts, and familiarity breeds contempt, but that he should have a real old-fashioned, eighteenth century contempt for the people needs some figuring out. Very few men in this democratic age and country can afford it, unless like Mr. Lash they happen to be in the millionaire class, and even then they find it more profitable to keep it under cover.

Mr. Lash, according to the Montreal Star, is one of the twenty-three Atlases who are at the foundation of Canadian finance. Consequently he is a great pillar of the state, and pillars of the state are not always as respectful of the state as they might be, because they know how the superstructure is built. Therefore when Mr. Lash speaks of the Royal Commission appointed by the people of Manitoba to search out and punish graft as a mere "inquisitorial body" he is speaking from the heart. These are, without doubt, the honest and deep-seated convictions of King Zebulon, and it seems a great pity that a constitutional monarchy has no greater reward in its gift for a benevolent Canadian despot than a knighthood, unless of course Mr. Lash should remove to England, where he would at once gravitate to his proper place in the House of Lords.

Meanwhile actions speak even louder than words. The burning of the telegrams by the officials of the G. N. W. Telegraph Company, of which he is President, and of which the C. N. R. is practically owner, is a plain announcement that Mr. Lash is on the side of those in high places, who are likely to be wronged by having the truth told. In some respects his motives are held to be laudable—he has sympathy with the under dog in Manitoba as the upper dog at Ottawa. What's more, there may have been a confusion of duties. The C. N. R. is now the partner of the Nationalist-Conservative Government at Ottawa—the partnership for these terms, $40,000,000 water for the people of Canada and $80,000,000 solid residuum for Mackenzie and Mann. In return for which Canada shares in the obligations of a railway company which is four hundred million dollars in debt.

Keep track of this connection of Mr. Lash's with the C. N. R. for it is the coupling pin which holds his train of thought together. The C. N. R. is the partner of the Borden Government and Mr. Lash is a director of the C. N. R. He is more than that—he is its chief counsel and head lobbyist. Never were there such lobbies as Zebulon A. Lash's. He penetrates easily where lesser men could not get a toehold. He rushes in boldly where even Sir William Mackenzie fears to tread. To see his great mind and deft hand at work on Parliament is both a delight and a liberal education. Sir William may run the cars in to draw it away, but it's Zebulon that lands the money.

The C. N. R. is a partner of the Borden Government—that is to say, the Government owns one-third of the C. N. R. common stock and the C. N. R. owns two-thirds of the Government. The C. N. R. owns Zebulon A. Lash—that is to say it owns him to be its manoeuvring brain at the capital. The C. N. R. owns the G. N. W. and the G. N. W. owns Zebulon A. Lash as its President. Where the ownership is so commingled and commingled is it any wonder that the reasoning becomes entangled. Looking at it from Mr. Lash's

Mr. Kane is accompanied by his nephew, William Robinson, King street, has gone to Carleton Place to spend a short time with relatives.

William Nott, a former organist and choir leader of St. Arce's Church, located for some time past in Winnipeg, stopped off here for a short time this week for a visit with relatives. Mr. Nott is en route to England for a visit with his father, who is seriously ill.

AMPUTATION OF LIMBS.

Only 782 Cases Among British Serving in France.
London, July 8.—In only 782 cases has it been necessary to amputate one or more limbs of British soldiers, admitted to hospitals in England and France since the commencement of the war to the present time, according to a reply made by Harold J. Tennant, Parliamentary under-secretary of war, to a question in the House of Commons.

A FRIEND OF SOLDIERS

Endears Himself By Kindly Actions And Personal Interest.
Brescia, July 8.—Little by little from passing soldiers and, from the wounded in the hospital, it is possible to realize the life the King of Italy is leading among his soldiers—a life of simplicity, sympathy, and courage.

His days are spent almost entirely in his little gray automobile, which is becoming almost legendary. It moves so rapidly from one front to another. The soldiers already are saying it brings luck, for their attacks are always successfully successful when the King and his motor are near by.

Nobody can say where the King sleeps, as his hardy upbringing makes it possible for him to take the few hours rest required wherever he finds himself—in a tent, but soldier's bivouac on a mattress of straw, or merely wrapped in his cloak. He has all the calm, instinctive courage for which the House of Savoy is noted. He is constantly in the front line, real fighting is going on, and he is encouraging the men by his presence and seeing that every detail is working smoothly.

King Victor often leaves his motor and moves about familiarly among the troops. He talks little and simply, looking the men keenly in the eyes as he speaks. He knows almost every officer by name, and has the royal gift of never forgetting a face once seen.

HOT WEATHER RULES

- 1.—Load lightly and drive slowly.
- 2.—Stop in the shade, if possible.
- 3.—Water your horse as often as possible. So long as a horse is working, water in small quantities will not hurt him. But let him drink only a few swallows if he is going to stand still. Do not fail to water him at night after he has eaten his hay.
- 4.—When he comes in after work, sponge off the harness marks and sweat, his eyes, his nose and mouth, and the dock. Wash his feet, but not his legs.
- 5.—If the thermometer is 75 degrees or higher, wipe him all over with a damp sponge. Use vinegar water if possible. Do not turn the hose on him.
- 6.—Saturday night give a bran mash, lukewarm; and add a tablespoonful of castor oil.
- 7.—Do not use a horse-hat, unless it is a canopy-top hat. The ordinary bell-shaped hat does more harm than good.
- 8.—A sponge on top of the head, or even a cloth, is good if kept wet. If dry it is worse than nothing.
- 9.—If the horse is overcome by heat, get him into the shade, remove harness and bridle, wash out his mouth, sponge him all over, shower his legs, and give him two ounces of aromatic spirits of ammonia, or two ounces of brandy, or a little water, and a pint of water; or give him a pint of coffee warm. Cool his head at once, using cold water, or, if necessary, chopped ice, wrapped in a cloth.
- 10.—If the horse is off his feed, try him with two quarts of oats mixed with bran, and a little water; and add a little salt or sugar. Or give him oatmeal gruel or barley water to drink.
- 11.—Watch your horse. If he stops sweating suddenly, or if he breathes short and quick, or if his ears droop, or if he stands with his legs braced sideways, he is in danger of a heat or sun stroke, and needs attention at once.
- 12.—If it is so hot that the horse sweats in the stable at night, the horse outside, with bedding under him. Unless he comes off during the night, he cannot well stand the next day's heat.

Had a Personal Sound.

Philadelphia, Telegraph.
One evening, just as the little widow was about to leave the edifice, she was addressed by the deacon.
"Good evening, sister," he cordially remarked, "with the usual hands." "How did you like the sermon this evening?"
"I think that it was just too perfectly lovely for anything," was the enthusiastic reply of the widow.
"It was, indeed," he heartily returned. "I only wish that some of our congregations would come to hear him."

Motor in Sewing Machine.

Popular Mechanics Magazine.
One of the latest developments in electric sewing machines is one in which the motor is built into the machine and its speed is controlled directly by a brake working on a drum mounted on the motor shaft. So long as there is no pressure on the pedal the brake prevents the motor from working, even with the current turned on. A slight pressure starts the machine slowly, and when the pedal is pushed down as far as it will go the machine is run at full speed.

THE SPORT REVIEW

It is not a question with the Chicago White Sox whether they will take the American League flag. They are wondering which team will meet them in the world's series and what they will do with the money.

The announcement from Toronto to the effect that the officers of the Canadian Association of Amateur Oarsmen had decided to hold the Canadian Henley this year, meets with the approval of Montreal racing men.

The tip has gone out throughout the National Baseball League circuit that the Phillies are playing the string to the limit and making the pitchers pitch as many balls as possible. Opposing teams have learned this and a wise pitcher has the Phils in the hole all the time by making sure that the first two pitchers are over the plate.

The Ottawa Baseball club is still after "Chick" Nevitt, the Indian catcher who deserted St. Thomas some time ago. The Senators need another backstop to relieve Lage.

President Hempstead of the New York Nationals has succeeded in purchasing the release of Catcher Charley Doolin, former manager of the Philadelphia Nationals, from Carry Herman of the Cincinnati club. Doolin will report immediately to Manager McGraw.

The 1915 pennant chase in the American League is over. Connie Mack has spoken. His words are these:
"The White Sox are the best team I have seen this year. Early this season I pitched the Boston Red Sox to capture the pennant, but I've changed my mind. Detroit isn't dangerous."

DEATH CAP AND FLY CAP.

The Most Deadly of All Species of Poisonous Mushrooms.
The two most feared and deadly poisonous mushrooms the world over are the death cap, (Amanita phalloides) and the fly cap (Amanita muscaria). These two species in the same genus have destroyed several emperors, a pope, and probably average 500 deaths annually in various parts of the world, to say nothing of innumerable mammals, birds, reptiles and insects, the latter being almost wholly destroyed by poisonous fungi.

Of the two deadly species, muscaria is most easily detected by the layman. It is a large, showy mushroom, orange yellow in color, with what looks like warts over the cap. You see them in dooryards, where evergreens are growing, sometimes thousands of them, standing tall and splendid in the grass. Keep your hens in the henyard and your cows in the barn while these fellows are up, with their tempting appearance.

The species Amanita phalloides can readily be avoided. Whatever the color of the cap, white or gray, the under side of it, the gills, are pure white. The cap may or may not be covered with warty protuberances. The stem terminates in a bulb, usually wholly or partially beneath the soil. If a large, deep chunk of earth is taken out around the bulb invariably will be found setting in a cup. Handle a poisonous mushroom as freely as you like, but do not experiment with one at the table. There are other species, both in the amanita genus and that of lepiota, that closely resemble it and which may be deliciously edible. You cannot learn these differences from the books. Only an expert, with the right tools, fresh species in hand, can teach you such differences.

Chinese Have Typewriter.

Christian Herald.
A Chinese typewriter has been invented. It has 4,200 characters. It has only three keys. It can make 50,000 letters or characters by combinations of the basic 4,200. It is still a crude affair, but workable, and perfected models are under way. To write a letter you turn a cylinder upon which are the 4,200 characters, until the right one comes opposite the key-word of the guide on another cylinder, then you strike the printing key just as on an American machine, then you begin a still hunt for the next character which you are to print—and so on while reason lasts.

New Means of Giving Light.

Popular Mechanics Magazine.
Heavy glass partitions which are translucent, substantial and fireproof are being introduced as a means of distributing sunlight through large business buildings, without lessening the privacy of the various offices. The walls are sound-proof and non-transparent, which gives them essentially the advantages of the ordinary wall, but not the disadvantages. They are built of clear glass units two inches thick and either six or eight inches square, which are reduced to translucency by impressed designs.

Here!

A Cockney angler, thinking his Highland besman was not treating him with the respect due to his station, expostulated thus: "Look here, my good man, you don't seem to grasp quite who I am. Do you know that my family have been entitled to bear arms for the last two hundred years?"
"Hoot, that's nothing," was the reply. "My ancestors have been entitled to bare legs for the last two thousand years."

The Worthless Survive.
Louisville Courier-Journal.
I tend my plants with lavish care. But they are slow.
Of care the weeds receive no share And yet they grow.
If there should be a bit of frost My posies droop.
A dash of hail and all is lost At one fell swoop.
A dry spell or a sudden squall And my plants die.
The weeds go safely through it all: I wonder why?

BUSINESS TALKS
To the Readers of the Whig
by the Advertising Department

You need not tell a successful local merchant that "it pays to advertise." He knows it.

In every city on this continent the daily newspaper furnishes the medium of intercourse between the up-to-date store and the customer's home.

In a word, successful retailing and newspaper advertising are inseparable. You may find the exception, but the rule remains a fact.

General advertisers who use the newspapers successfully have merely added together the experiences of local merchants in every city. The sum total of this is a national campaign.

"Universality" is a large word, but it expresses in a few syllables the supremacy of the newspaper as a general advertising medium.

The newspaper advertisement is the message that goes every day to every buyer of every product, everywhere. It wins the interest of the prospective customer, and then it turns that interest into an actual sale by pointing out the counter where the product desired is found. That is direct demand—the straight line drawn between producer and consumer through the retailer's store.

And that is why the retailer—himself a newspaper reader—invariably prefers to sell and to push newspaper advertised products. The direct demand created by the advertiser makes customers for the store. Thus newspaper advertising insures dealer support.
