TREES HEEP TO WIN BATTLES. Forests in France Playing a Big Part in Strategical

Commanders in France are taking full advantage of the wooded state of the country over which fighting is taking place, and forests are playing an important part in various VAN CAMP'S CATSUP Vanhorn, late of the City strategical moves. Fierce fights for forests are of frequent occurrence, VAN CAMP'S SOUPS as such positions are a decided advince of Alberta, gentle- vantage to the army having possession of them. They offer a serious obstacle to the advance of the VAN CAMP'S HOMINY rators by the 28th day of August, A.D. trees. The latter tactics are espe-

> out shells in an upward direction, through holes in the foliage above. An army possessing a wood is, in fact, in as happy a position as if they were safely ensconced in a steel fort. They can concentrate a destructive fire on an approaching enemy, and, being practically invisible, they are safe from a serious counter-attack. The only effective way of dislodging an army from a wood is to fire it, and burn the soldiers This is seldom done, however. as a hostile army covets the wood for its own purposes, and is not like. ly to destroy these fortifications of

In the present war forests are proving invaluable as - means of concealing troops from air scouts. Infantny, cavalry, and artillery can be secreted in their thousands in forests, and if the trees cover a long stretch of country the troops can advance to points of vantage safe from immediate attack or discovery by
