

FLAMING LIQUIDS AND DEADLY BOMBS

Have Been Used By the Germans in Three Determined Attacks on the French Positions, But Unsuccessfully.

All the German Attacks Were Repulsed--The Infantry Clashes Have Grown in Intensity--The French Won Some Victories in the Champagne Region, Where Fierce Fighting Occurred.

(Special to the Whig.) Paris, Aug. 2.—A French official Communiqué says incendiary bombs and flaming liquids were used by the Germans in three determined attacks on the French positions in the Meuse Heights and eastward to Pont-A-Mousson during last night. An official statement from the War Office this afternoon reported all the German attacks repulsed.

All along the line there was a renewal of infantry clashes throughout the night. The Germans launched several sharp attacks against the French positions around Souchez. These were promptly beaten off by the French counter-attacking and tearing up the enemy entanglements. In the Champagne region, mine fighting occurred yesterday and during the night. The result was favorable to us.

War Tidings. Autonomy for the Poles is promised by Russia. It is said the capture of Lublin cost Gen. Woyack 70,000 men killed, wounded and prisoners. Four miles north of Lublin the Russians are fighting fiercely.

Dr. Karl Helfferich, secretary of the Imperial treasury reports German resources as "virtually inexhaustible." Berlin says: "In the fighting in the Argonne between June 20th and July 27th, we captured 125 officers, 6,510 men, machine guns and a great quantity of war material."

State Militia in Control at Massena Plant. Massena, N.Y., Aug. 2.—As a result of the rioting by strikers at the plant of the Aluminum Company of America in which two men were killed, the state militia was called upon, and on Sunday three companies from Malone and Ogdensburg took charge of the situation, other companies from Watertown and Utica are expected.

Finding it impossible to control the 2,400 employees on strike, Sheriff Day called upon Governor Whitman for troops and the three companies reached here at noon. The strikers, barricaded behind the bridge, were charged by the troops and dispersed. After the troops took possession of the plant and established a patrol, the sheriff's deputies meanwhile being sent out to arrest the strikers if possible trouble should break out.

The militia took no part in the shooting near the factory, these encounters being between the strikers. The grievance of the men consists in a demand for higher wages, which they claim was not granted. E. Soullias, a striker shot in the rioting, is dying in the hospital at Ogdensburg, and an unknown Hungarian was thrown into the power canal by strikers who caught him coming from work.

Another British Vessel Lost. (Special to the Whig.) London, Aug. 2.—A Constantinople despatch says a large Russian destroyer has been sunk in the Black Sea. The Admiralty reports that the British steamer Fulgens was submerged near England, and all the crew saved.

GERMANIC FORCES NOT YET IN WARSAW. (Special to the Whig.) London, Aug. 2.—According to the latest despatches from Berlin and Petrograd, Warsaw has not yet been entered by the Germanic forces, although it is not thought that any Russian forces of any account remain in or near the beleaguered city.

Fighting is vigorous and continuous, the object of the Czars forces apparently being to inflict heavy casualties on the German forces, and at the same time give the Russian main army every opportunity for clearing away with all the guns and impediments to a new line of defenses.

JUSTICE OF THE PEACE.

Was Awakened At Early Hour. To Hear a Case. There is no set hour for the hearing of cases by Justice of the Peace George Hunter. He is on the job both night and day. At two o'clock Monday morning he was awakened from his slumbers by a Verona man, who got a warrant out charging two young men living at Belrock, with the theft of a raincoat and $14. The three were in a restaurant, Sunday night together, the two Belrock residents being the guests of the Verona man. After the meal the complainant missed his money and raincoat. Justice of the Peace Hunter heard the evidence in the case, but found nothing to substantiate the charge and dismissed it.

Dr. Mundell stated that he was of the belief that a good many drinkers were getting up against bad whiskey, and that it was driving them mad.

BUILDING IN KINGSTON.

Record For the Seven Months of The Year. The records at the office of the City Engineer show that for the seven months of the year ending July 31st permits were granted for building value at $130,522. For the month of July, the amount was $12,428. For the month of July, 1914, the amount was $58,108. For the first seven months of 1914 the value of building was placed at $234,180. The falling off this year is due to the financial stringency and the war. In July last year the Reliance Molding Company's factory was erected, and also the military stables, which helped to swell the amount.

This Is the View of a Chicago Correspondent — The Eyer-Pressing Hosts of the Czar Must Have the Final Victory—The Homes of Warsaw Have Been Broken Up. Chicago, July 31.—Passet Digby cables the News to-day from Stockholm. For some days the Russians have been fighting a tenacious rearguard action above Warsaw while the evacuation of that city was in progress. The general staff is persuaded that the Warsaw triangle is no longer tenable, although the Germans are battling with a great deal less determination than they did during the long advance from Lemberg.

WAS BLOOD-STAINED BED SLAT USED IN MURDER?

The finding of a bed slat, one end of which is spattered with blood, has led to the belief that this was used to inflict the ugly wounds found on the face and neck of Mrs. Nancy Job, who was murdered in her little home on Wellington street, early Saturday morning. Sunday morning, the police made another search at the house, when they came across the slat. The slat was examined to make sure if they are blood stains, and the question then to be decided will be as to whether the slat could have been used to inflict such injuries as the woman suffered. The woman looked as if they had been caused by a knife, but so far, no knife has been found in the home, which could have been used for this purpose. A small jack knife was

SUDDARD STANDS ACCUSED OF MURDER

The Verdict of the Jury at the Coroner's Inquest Held in Police Court on Saturday Night.

The Evidence Showed That Suddard Wore Squeaky Boots And Was Found in the House, His Face and Hands Covered With Blood--He Seemed Intoxicated.

That Alfred E. Suddard did kill and murder Mrs. Nancy Job," was the verdict rendered on Saturday night by the jury empanelled by Dr. D. E. Mundell. The inquest was held in the Police Court room, before a crowded audience. Several witnesses were called, and the hearing of the evidence occupied an hour and a half. The jury returned a verdict in half an hour.

Interest in the hearing was intense. Half an hour before the inquest was opened, a crowd of several hundred people, including men, women and children, lined up in front of the Police Court door, anxious to secure entrance. When the door did open, there was a mad rush and there were many disappointed people, as there is very little space in the police court room, for spectators. The room was soon filled with men, and no women secured an entrance. A big crowd waited outside until the verdict of the jury was announced.

Alfred Suddard, the young man charged with the murder, was present during the proceedings, also his counsel, D. A. Givens, who questioned a number of the witnesses on different points. J. L. Whiting was present on behalf of the Crown. Suddard sat in his shirt sleeves during the taking of the evidence, and although he kept his eyes on the witness stand, he did not appear to take much interest in the proceedings. His father was present. The jury was composed of the following: William Newlands, William H. Dalby, George Hunter, T. Nicholson, James Halliday, J. B. Cook, A. McKee, B. Whitney, D.

Mills, A. J. Murray, Robert Snowden and E. G. Barrett. George Hunter was elected foreman of the jury. Constable Samuel Arnie, who was first called, said he was at the police station when Suddard was brought in by Constable Mullinger, and told of the prisoner being searched. He had in his possession a small knife, a dollar bill and forty cents. The dollar bill was soaked with blood. The prisoner's face was covered with blood, and also his hands. His clothes were disarranged. He could see no cues on the accused, and as he had blood on his face and hands he asked him what had happened. Suddard said: "I do not know; Constable Mullinger brought me to my senses." Witness could not swear that the accused was drunk. He did not describe her injuries. Her face was badly cut. There was no blood wound over the left eye, another under the right eye, one below the jaw, and a gash on her lip. Asked as to the condition of Suddard, he said that he appeared to be "intoxicated, dazed and in a stupefied condition."

Mrs. Mary Perry, who lived in the quarters opposite to those occupied by Mrs. Job, told of hearing a man wearing "squeaky" boots, entering the hall from the street door, and walking to Mrs. Job's door. She (Continued on Page 3.)
