"But Britain Will Not Fall"

A Remembrance Day Thought From the Orations of Richard Brinsley Sheridan

"The immortality of nations is not consigned to mortal custody. But to fight bravely and to perish gloriously is so. Take our country. Its condition, with all its faults, is the best that ever existed. Take our constitution. Wanting certainly many reforms, yet practically affording the best security that human wisdom has ever given to man. Yet with all this to contend for, we may not be able ultimately to command success. Even Great Britain for her rights and honors might spend her treasure, shed more and more of her best and bravest blood, and yet at last might fall. Yet after the general subjugation and ruin of Europe, should there ever exist an historian to record the awful events which produced the universal calamity let that historian, after describing the greatness and glory of Britain, have to say, 'She fell and with her fell all the best securities for the charities of human life, for the power and honor, the fame, the glory and the liberties of the whole civilized world.'"

GAS MADE FROM AMMONIA.

Liquid Fire Not So Effective as Gas.

London, Aug. 5.—The Daily Chronicle's correspondent, writing from the north of France, says: "An officer who was in the fighting line when the Germans attacked with blinding gas. The flames carry only a relatively short distance, and cannot reach you a long way off, as is often the case with poison gas. The flame is yellow, with a blue nucleus, and is directed through a powerful air jet. It springs from the ground level and expands into a roaring wave fire. Indeed, the flame is very like that of a common bunsen burner of a laboratory, only it is yellow. The pressure of air or other gas that is used through the jet must be enormous, and in view of the volume and fury of the flame many of the victims died simply from suffocation caused by the immense heat that rolled forward in front of the flames which did not touch them. The energy and power shown by our men in the face of this terrible surprise was beyond praise."

A correspondent of the London Lancet says that he is not convinced that the gas used by the German army is chlorine, as has been generally believed, and in replying to his communication the editor hazards the opinion that the difference in clinical and post-mortem observations of "gassed" patients may be due to the use by the Germans of gases other than chlorine.

The correspondent, Dr. Lennox Wainwright, of the Army Nursing Home at Folkestone, says that an examination of the blood did not answer to the accepted chlorine experi-

MENTA.

He says he is inclined to think that the gas is nitric peroxide made from nitrate of ammonia, and that the symptoms are more like nitric peroxide than chlorine.

Will Case Settled.
New York, Aug. 5.—Litigation over the will of Mrs. Ruth Louise Bailey, wife of James A. Bailey, of Barnum and Bailey, showmen, is probably ended through a decree issued by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, which decides the merits of the $1,500,000 will in favor of the showman's wife's relatives. MOTOR LAUNCH TOOK FIRE.

Brockville Man Rescued By Campers at Midnight.

Brockville, Aug. 5.—Returning from his cottage above Butternut Bay after midnight, Clinton Lennox, of this town, had an exciting experience when his 22-foot launch caught fire in mid-stream. There was a leak in the gasoline pipe and a high tension magneto caused a spark. The storm of the boat soon became a mass of flames, but Lennox by his cries managed to arouse campers on the main shore, who put out and rescued him. The launch was scuttled.

DOO TURKISH VESSELS SUNK.

Among Number Seven Steamers And Dozen Sailing Ships.

Petrograd, Aug. 5.—Russian destroyers in the Black Sea continue their devastating work upon the Turkish shipping supplies for Constantinople. Although over 300 enemy vessels have been burnt or sunk since the beginning of the war, among the number being several large steamers and a dozen sailing ships of a thousand tons each. Most of the vessels were, of course, small coasting craft, which counted on their insignificance to escape the vigilance of the Russian scout boats. Some were sunk at sea, but the majority were burnt at anchor or within easy reach of shore. Care has been taken also to destroy all boat building yards along the coast so that this small vessel trade upon which Constantinople is largely dependent for the necessities of life may safely be regarded as having been extinguished.
