THE PICTURE AGENT

AGAIN THE FEATURE OF POLICE COURT SESSION.

Decisions Reserved on One Charge—Magistrate to Decide the Hay Case On Monday Morning.

Magistrate Farrell, in reserving his decision in the case of Mrs. Elizabeth Clarke vs. John Collins, picture agent charged with obtaining money under false pretences, which was heard in police court on Friday morning, said he was led to believe from the evidence submitted in the case of Mrs. Hay against the same man which was heard on Thursday morning, that a misrepresentation had been made. Whether that would come under the criminal code he would announce on Monday morning.

It was one of the longest sessions which has been held in the police court for many a day. The court, which opened at 10.15 o'clock did not adjourn until 12.45 o'clock.

Mrs. Clarke, who was the first witness called told of an agent of Collins calling at her home and taking an order from pictures. He produced a picture in oil and said he would make her pictures the same way. The agent stated he was offering the pictures for $2.98 for a period of one month, but after that date they would be $15. She told of giving him the order for three pictures but when he returned that evening gave him an additional order, making it four in all. At that time she paid him $1. Collins later returned with the proofs which she claimed looked very good. She told of writing to Collins not to do anything with the pictures until he called to see her as she fears that the pictures were no good. Collins called her on the phone. When he called up to see her with the proofs he carried a beautiful painting of a lady and he stated that hers would look almost as good. He made her pay him $10.92. He spoke about frames and she told him that the pictures would be no good without a frame, and for that reason she gave him the order for the frames, bringing her bill with him up to about $51. She told of paying him $5 on the frames when he took the order.

When he returned to the home with the finished pictures he came into the house with them all in cases and stated that he always likes to hang his own pictures, and for that reason her daughter got a step-ladder. He told her to leave the room while he put them on the wall. He then got her to sign her name to a sheet of paper, which he read over to her, agreeing to pay the balance of the account during the month of August.

"I thought that everything looked all right, and for that reason I handed him over $12," said the witness. When the father and daughter looked at the pictures they were not pleased with them, and Mrs. Clarke called Collins up to the home for the purpose of taking them down off the wall. When off the wall she discovered that they were not oil paintings.

At this point of the proceedings Mrs. Clarke produced a picture of the daughter which Collins had enlarged, and which certainly was not of the best.

Cross-examined by Mr. Cunningham, Mrs. Clarke made no reference to Collins stating that the pictures would be in oil. "I did not know that it was not an oil painting until it was taken off the wall," she said. "Collins asked me if my husband knew what I was paying for the frames."

The daughter of the complainant when called did not swear that Collins said they would be oil paintings, but told about him calling at the home and taking the order.

Collins when called to the box denied that he took an order for an oil painting.

In summing up the case, Mr. Cunningham, who appeared for Collins, stated that no conviction could be found as the complainant in the case saw what she was getting, paid part of the money, signed a note for the balance and did not complain.

Mr. Givens contended that Collins and his agent did take an order for an oil painting. He also emphasized the fact that Collins would not allow her to see the pictures before placing them on the wall in the home. He also dealt with the fact that when Mrs. Clark's daughter complained about the picture of herself, she was told to look at it for a couple of weeks and then if she did not like it he would make her another.

The Magistrate reserved his decision in this case.

More Women After John.

Although John Collins, picture agent, has appeared in Police Court on three occasions during the past week, some of his customers are still after his "hide." On Thursday evening a young woman went to the police station for the purpose of laying an information against him.

After the case in court on Friday morning, the lady in question informed Collins that unless he delivered the pictures which she ordered, last May by five o'clock this afternoon, she would have him before the Court on Saturday morning.

TO FIND A WIFE.

Southern Jefferson County Man Offers a Reward of $50.

Cape Vincent, N.Y., Aug. 20.—A few weeks ago the Eagle published one hundred circular letters for a man living in a small village in the southern portion of the county. The circular is certainly very unique as well as an appealing literary production, and reads as follows:

"Dear Friend:—Having conducted an unsuccessful private search for a wife for the last year or so, I have now decided to enlist the aid of my friends in the quest. Here is my plan: Everyone is requested to send me the names of any marriageable ladies the names of which I will at once enter into correspondence with them with a view to matrimony, and as soon as the nuptial knot is tied I will pay to the sender of the name of the lucky contestant $50.00 in cash.

"Remember the age, race, color and the only stipulation is that it must be a female woman. Send in your list early. Be a sport and take a chance. You may be the winner. Remember, if you do not win you are out only the price of a two-cent stamp, and if you win you win 50 iron men. And, also remember, that if two or more persons send the same name, the name of the one I choose, I will not. Like so many cheap concerns, divide the reward, but each one sending the name of the woman I marry will receive the full amount of 50 bones.

"Please be prompt and send your list at once to—"

Down With Uncle Sam!

No one in this country has been in ignorance of the great effort being made by Germany to bend the United States to her will. The elaborate scheme to "run" this Government from Berlin has been known to all men, and the World has performed good service in producing documentary proof. Proof is what is needed at this time.

Germany lost control of the sea through the inadequacy of its navy—therefore the United States must be compelled by the coercive power of money and agitation to restore to Germany the control of the seas! Germany had all the munitions needed to wage war—therefore the American merchants must be compelled to cease selling munitions in the open market!

Our Government was to be bullied and threatened and our foreign policy was to be "made in Germany." Where the "Kaiser touch" could swing Americans susceptible to flattery the "Kaiser touch" was applied. Where the clink of coin would prove effective the coin-clinked. The "invisible army" remained invisible while the designs of the precious crew of conspirators were being formed. Then the mask was dropped and forged passports and other measures were adopted as naturally as though the operators were in Berlin.

So it went. It is a revelation which should stir this Government to action. The Germans appear to have assumed that President Wilson would tolerate anything. The exposure should go on and there should be a house cleaning in the Diplomatic Corps. For this matter goes at the very heart of national decency and national self-respect.

This Government must be conducted by Americans and not by Germans.

A Close Call.

Writing to friends at Kingston, England, Driver J. R. Gurney, of the New Zealand Army Service Corps, says: "One afternoon Douglas Raeburn, of Surbiton, and I were sitting on the ridge outside our dug-out when he said: 'Will you cut my hair, Joe?' I replied that I would endeavor to do so. I set about my task and had practically finished, with the exception of shaving his neck, as I had seen it done this way sometimes in Kingston. I placed the scissors on the top of our dug-out and began the operation on my chin with the razor, when a shell burst, a piece of which struck the scissors and knocked them about a yard in front of where we were seated. I picked up this piece of shell, but soon dropped it, as it was very hot. I again secured it and handed it to my comrade to keep as a memento."

Steel Talks.

W. E. Corey, who used to be president of the U. S. Steel Corporation, said on his return from Europe the other day, that the Allies expect the war to last about three years longer. He also thinks the United States should keep out of the war, because it would take ten years to get the United States ready to be of much use. He admits that America might "lick" Spain or Portugal. And he also thinks the Grand Duke Nicholas is the greatest military leader in Europe. It's quite easy to see where Mr. Corey's sympathies lie. United States Steel may have produced the most consequential peace advocate in the world outside of Mr. Bryan, but his name, although it begins with "C," doesn't happen to be Corey. Anyway, he is not saying much now that steel men who built the plants are now making munitions of war for Europe, and also the Peace Palace at The Hague.

The Wheat Speculator's Dilemma.

Montreal Herald. What is back of the cancellation of wheat contracts by European interests, and, the consequent flutter on the wheat exchanges of this continent, will probably remain a mystery for the immediate present. People may well believe, however, that it portends the early forcing of the Dardanelles. The moment this is done, the surplus of two seasons' crops in Russia—this year's and last year's—will be released. Russia's normal exports of wheat are from 160,000,000 to 180,000,000 bushels per year. With such enormous quantities of grain available, speculation counting on exploiting the war needs of the Allies for their own benefit will be doomed to disappointment. Hence their present flutter. It is a good sign.

NEARLY ALL SAVED FROM THE ARABIC.

(Special to the Whig.) New York, Aug. 20.—The following comments to-day were typical of the attitude of the New York press toward the sinking of the Arabic:

Times: "We reason, we appeal, we protest, we remonstrate. Written answer is evasive and irrelevant; actual answer is a defiant persistence in provocation. It should be plain even to the most war-mad Germans that friendly relations between the two countries cannot continue to be maintained if these intolerable wrongs continue to be perpetrated."

World: "No verdict can be pronounced until all evidence is at hand. But the situation is undeniably serious. It is so serious and the issues involved are so grave that final judgment must be suspended until all facts are known beyond the possibility of doubt."

Two Americans Lost.

(Special to the Whig.) Queenstown, Aug. 20.—The United States Consul here officially reported this afternoon that the only Americans now missing from the sunken Arabic are Mrs. Josephine L. Bruguiere, New York, and Dr. Edmund Wood, Janesville, Wis.

London, Aug. 20.—Ambassador Page held a lengthy conference with Sir Edward Grey, British Foreign Secretary, this afternoon.

Canadians Saved.

London, Aug. 20.—Among the Canadians saved are Major George K. Money and two daughters, Stratford; Cyril Money, Tilsonburg; and Messrs. Delormier and Bures, of Montreal.

Captain Saw Torpedo.

Queenstown, Aug. 20.—Captain Finch, who is suffering from injuries to his leg, said last night that he did not see the submarine, but distinctly observed the torpedo approaching the ship. "It was then impossible to escape it," the captain said. "We had only eight minutes to get the boats away and save all on board."

Warnings To Uncle Sam.

Hamilton Herald. German propagandists in the United States grow bolder. They now deem it expedient to imitate the methods of their brethren at home and resort openly to the policy of intimidation. Among the most active pro-German agencies in the States is an institution called The International Bureau of Information, the manager of which is a gentleman of the name of Wenschek. This bureau is circulating through the mails tons of literature designed to extol the Teutonic cause and discredit that of the entente Allies. Recently it has made the mistake of defending assassination. It has glorified the late Muentzer, who tried to assassinate J. P. Morgan and blow up the capitol at Washington, as a hero and martyr, and describes him as "one of America's noted professors"—an insult to American educationists which is keenly resented. Going further, it warns the American people that "they had better not meddle with the German factor," as they are threatened with "danger from within as well as abroad."

They Don't Like Mr. Rogers.

Winnipeg Free Press. Political pundits down East will be busily engaged in estimating the effect of the Manitoba landslide upon future Dominion politics. Let it be said that no Dominion issue entered into the Manitoba campaign except one: the propriety of Mr. Rogers continuing in public life as a representative in the Dominion Government of Manitoba. The people of this Province will not have this man to rule over them. If Sir Robert Borden does not take the plain hint given him on Friday, the people of Manitoba will take the matter in their own hands and make a complete job of it at the first opportunity.
